Teapot Investigators Informed Part Of Mysterious Canadian Company's Profits Went To Pay Off Debts Incurred By G. O. P. Committee—Former Chairman Asserts Contributions From Individuals.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 11—(U. P.)—In a telegram to Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the public lands committee, Will Hays tonight denied knowledge of the existence of the Continental Trading Co.

The telegram addressed to Nye at Washington was signed by the motion picture executive and read as follows:

"The Los Angeles press has just informed me of dispatches from Washington that your committee may desire me to appear personally. May I take this opportunity of assuring you that I shall be very glad to do this if the committee so desires.

"For the information of your committee may I state that neither at the time I was chairman of the republican national committee, nor in three years thereafter, during which the deficit was being raised, did I have any knowledge whatever of the existence of the Continental Trading Co. nor do I have any knowledge now of its activities or of any bonds ever owned.

"Any contributions about which I testified in 1924, or of what I have any knowledge whatever, were from individuals and were not related in any way to the Continental Trading Co., nor to any oil leases.

"Furthermore, I may state that I did not know, directly or indirectly, of any negotiations on the part of any individual or company for the leasing of any government oil

Weather Bureau Says No Disastrous Flood In Valley This Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Unless the rains that cause high water in the Mississippi region are considerably above normal during the next two months, the prospects so far this year are that there will be no great flood comparable to the 1927 disaster, the weather bureau announced today.

"The rivers will rise, as they usually do, in the spring, and some are as may be partly flooded, but present indications are that there will be no calamitous rising of rivers and the flood division of the bureau undertakes to warn dwellers of the lowlands along the larger streams of the various river stages and the coming of dangerous floods. It does not have facilities for extending that service to the small streams that are liable to flood from so-called cloudburst rains.

"The recent development of radio transmission has enormously increased the distribution of flood warnings so as to make it practicable now for almost every one interested or affected to receive them more readily and much earlier than ever before."

Borah Feels Outlook Good In Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(U. P.)—Chairman Borah of the committee investigating United States marine activities in Nicaragua, said he was optimistic over the situation in the Central American republic.

Secretary of Navy Wilbur and other navy officials testified today that General Sandino was the only remaining disturbing element and that American military officials there believe a fair election can be held.

Admiral Julian L. Latimer, who commanded the naval forces at the beginning of the American occupation, testified. Borah added, that mostof the Nicaraguans wanted peace.

Reports Doubted.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Notwithstanding official reports received here that Gen. Augustino Sandino, leader of the Nicaraguan rebels, is believed to have broken his followers up into small parties, which, official reports said, were believed to be fleeing toward the Honduras border, unofficial, but apparently authentic, information indicated that Sandino was in Matagalpa department with a strong following, making preparations for a protracted stay there.

Unofficial reports said the bandit apparently was finding much sympathy for his cause among the Matagalpa population, which is largely Indian, and it was believed he was busily recruiting followers to replace his heavy losses in his recent clashes with the United States marines.

NURSES HOME TO BE BUILT

Four Story Building at St. Elizabeth's To Cost About $150,000.

Plans for the erection of a four story nurses home just east of St. Elizabeth hospital, Eleventh and South streets, are now being formulated. Architectural plans are being drawn and construction will be started as soon as possible in the spring.

Since the nurses are now housed on the fourth floor of the hospital, the capacity of the hospital will be materially increased when the new building is constructed. Laboratories and X-rays will be moved to the quarters now occupied by the nurses and there will be room for about 50 more patients.

Upon the completion of the new home, which will represent an investment of about $150,000, buildings on the hospital grounds will extend from Eleventh to Thirteenth streets.

A total of 2,809 patients were treated during 1927 at the hospital according to the annual report of Sisters in charge. Of that number 394 were charity, 234 part pay-

PAIR OF YOUTHS STICK UP THREE LINCOLN STORES

Holdups Busy in Southeast Part of City Saturday Evening.

BANDITS ESCAPE WITH NEARLY $80

Dilapidated Touring Car Used by Two Young Armed Bandits.

Two youths traveling in a dilapidated tourning car staged holdups at three Lincoln stores within three hours Saturday night and obtained about $80 in silver and currency. Police were scouring the city late Saturday night and early Sunday morning in an effort to locate the car which answers the description furnished by two victims of the stick-ups.

The epidemic of holdups started at 7 o'clock when the Sumner Street grocery, 2600 Sumner street, was entered and the proprietor, Henry Bosserman, and his son, Walter Bosserman were held up. The cash register was cleaned of $24 and young Bosserman's wallet containing $1 was taken from his trousers while he and his father were facing the wall.

Holdup No. 2 occurred less than an hour and a half later at the Lohman grocery, owned by H. H. Lohman, which is located at 1919 South Seventeenth street. Mr. Lohman was unable to make any definite check on the amount taken but said that it would be around $35 or $40, most of which was scooped out of the cash register. Several dollars in currency was taken from his pocket while he was lying face down on the floor in the store's back room where the holdups placed him.

Kalin Pharmacy Robbed.

At 9:50 B. C. Kalin, proprietor of the Kalin Pharmacy, Twenty-first and J streets, notified police that he had just been held up and robbed of about $20. He was unable to furnish a complete description of the two who entered his store but his brief account of their antics and

BANK DEPOSITS ARE 274,461,662

Statements of 885 State Institutions Show Conditions Good.

Shrinkage in Total Partly Seasonal and Due to Fewer Reports.

State banks of Nebraska, 855 in number, had deposits on December 31, last, amounting to $274,461,662, as shown by the summary of their business statements for that date collected and compiled by the state banking bureau. Their cash reserves at the same time totaled $49,971,475, or 18 per cent, being three points above what the law requires.

As compared with the last preceding statements, on September 30, deposits fell off by $8,903,941. This is accounted for partly by the seasonal decline which always occurs in the fall months and partly by the fact that twelve banks which were included in the September showing have since been closed for liquidation and partial payment been made to their depositors.

The number of banks reporting on the December date was 855. After counting out the twelve which are no longer in business, the statistics given out by Trade and Commerce Secretary Bliss exhibit the following decreases since September.

Loans, $2,689,961; bonds and securities, $3,240,964; cash reserve, $2,515,322; undivided profits, $357,113; notes and bills rediscounted, $112,990.

The only increased item in the list is judgments and claims, which is $25,644 above what it was September 30.

Reasons for Shrinkage.

The September showing of deposits marked a considerable increase over the previous statements in June, notwithstanding that the number of banks had diminished. This was due to the large quantities of wheat harvested and shipped

Lindy Declines Kiss From A 4 Year Old Girl

HAVANA, Feb. 11—Accorded one of his greatest ovations today, Col. Lindbergh directed his remarks to the future of aviation.

"Any business house would do well to look forward and aid in development of aeronautics," he told his listeners here today.

He was made a life member of the American chamber at the conclusion of the luncheon and Secretary of State Martinez and United States ambassador Judah spoke in praise of his achievements.

Just as Lindbergh was about to leave the table, Jacquelin Merendi, a four year old girl, was lifed up to present a bouquet of flowers to him. As she threw her arms around his neck and tried to kiss him, Lindbergh, blushing, pushed her away and instead stooped and shook hands with her.

HICKMAN FIGHT MAY BE TAKEN TO HIGH COURT

Attorney Charges Kidnaper 'Legally Deprived' Of Jury Trial.

Defense Maneuver Results in Temporary Delay in Sentencing.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—A legal battle which may be carried to the highest court in the land to save William Edward Hickman from the gallows was launched today when defense attorneys asked a new trial for the kidnaper-killer of 12-year-old Marion Parker.

That the Hickman case would be taken finally to the Supreme court of the United States was indicated when Jerome Walsh, chief defense counsel, charged Hickman had been "legally deprived" of a trial by jury on the kidnaping and murder charges.

Walsh, in his motion for a second trial, attacked the constitutionality of the recently enacted California statute, which provides that the question of sanity is the sole issue to be determined by the jury in an insanity defense.

Hickman was deprived of his rights granted by both the federal and state constitution, Walsh charged, contending that Hickman had not been tried on the kidnaping and murder charges and had not been accorded "due process of law."

Walsh demanded a new trial for Hickman also on half a dozen technicalities.

Predicts Year's Delay.

Defense attorneys declared a year's delay was likely, while the district attorney's office predicted Hickman would be hanged within six months.

The new legal maneuver on the part of the defense resulted in a

Levine Plans Another Try at Endurance Mark

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Weather permitting, Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic flier, will make another attempt tomorrow to establish a new world's endurance flight record, he announced tonight. His attempt this morning ended in a near crash, but his monoplane, the Columbia, was not badly damaged, and he believes it will be in shape for a take-off Sunday.

Levine and Wilmer Stultz, commercial pilot, tried to take the plane off the ground today, but 200 yards from the starting point the tail skid of the ship struck a frozen rut and snapped off, the rudder post broke and the Columbia swerved at right angles and came to a stop, narrowly missing a parked automobile.

BOMB PLANTED NEAR ELEVATED

Powerful Explosive Missile Found in Loop District of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(U. P.)—A bomb described by police as "powerful enough to destroy a five story office building," was found at the base of an elevated railway upright in the loop district late today.

Six sticks of dynamite, wrapped in tape attached to a "six minute" fuse, were found under a newspaper by a mounted policeman. A squad of police was sent to surround the district.

The dynamite was described at detective headquarters as the most powerful ever found in a bomb here. An analysis showed the sticks contained 60 per cent nitro-glycerine.

Detectives and police were working on several theories.

One was that the bomb may have been placed there by a crank, who intended to set it off to wreck the elevated railway.

The position of the dynamite, it was pointed out, was where it might have been set off accidentally by a spark from the elevated tracks.

Police also considered that the bomb might have been a cache of racketeers who planned to destroy some nearby business house.

Later Tuesday morning the prisoners, Samuel Baxter and John Burns, were seen in Danville, Ill., indicating they had overcome their captors within an hour after leaving Lafayette. Danville is two and a half hours drive from Lafayette, in the opposite direction from Pendleton.

An automobile similar to that in which the party traveled was found today in a garage at Decatur.

Intensive search around Lafayette has revealed no trace of the deputies.

Chicago police weer ordered to keep watch for the prisoners. The fear is that the two had slain the deputies and buried their bodies.

LOWDEN QUOTES LINCOLN IN A POLITICAL TALK

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 11—(U. P.)—Interpretating the ideals of Abraham Lincoln in the language of today's economic and social problems, Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, addressed a group of New Mexico republicans here tonight.

Lowden emphasized Lincoln's "concern for the common, everyday man."

"Principles rather than politics appealed to Lincoln," said Lowden. "All great questions seemed to him to involve some quality of right or wrong. It was his habit, therefore, to resolve them into their fundamentals.

"The duty of the nation to agriculture was realized by the Civil war president," he said.

"That interest is most worthy of all, to be cherished and cultivated. If there be inevitable conflict between that interest and any other, the other should yield," Lowden quoted Lincoln as saying regarding agriculture.

Lincoln further recognized that "labor is the superior of capital, and deserves the highest consideration," said Lowden.

Lowden warned against the nation allowing its natural resources to become depleted. He urged conservation.

'DARE' OF WILLIS MAY BE ACCEPTED EARLY THIS WEEK

All Indications Point To Formal Announcement Soon Of Cabinet Officer's Entrance Into Ohio Fight For Republican Nomination — Visitors Leave Washington Conference Apparently Well Satisfied.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Herbert Hoover will formally announce his candidacy for the presidency early next week and at the same time will take up the challenge to battle it out with Senator Frank B. Willis in the Ohio primary, according to all indications here tonight.

Willis, the self-appointed favorite son of Ohio, already has "dared" Hoover to come into his state and make a contest, promising that "it will be no kid glove or powder puff affair."

A number of confreneces were held today by Hoover and his Ohio supporters and advisers.

Hoover had nothing to say after the conferences. The Ohioans, however, were apparently well satisfied.

The Hoover handlers do not expect to capture the state. What they do expect, and what most politicians here believe they will get, is a split in the Ohio delegation of fifty-one votes.

Not Friendly to Willis.

The larger cities like Clevelana and Cincinnati are not particularly friendly to Willis because of his extreme views on prohibition and for other reasons. Most Washington politicians concede that Hoover will pick up some delegates if he decides to get into every district, as his Ohio managers are advising him to do. Estimates of how many run all the way from six to thirty, this last figure being the optimistic hope of the Hoover advisers.

The Ohio primary is slated for April 24, with entries closing on February 24. This leaves two months for a slam bang battle. It is confidently expected here that it will be just that, for Ohio will provide the first battleground where the Hoover strength may be tested.

It is anticipated that all of the anti-Hoover elements in the republican party will get into the fight on the theory that a defeat for him there would be so damaging to his prestige that it would make infinitely easier his ultimate defeat in the Kansas City convention.

Willis' Platform.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 11—(U. P.)—Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio, "favorite son" for the republican presidential nomination, announced his

Her leading man, James Hall, suffered broken ribs and other injuries.

Miss Daniels and Hall were in a Pullman car, which was being carried on an automobile truck when the accident occurred. They were working on a film "Hold Everything"

A branch from a tree swept the car from the truck, dropping it to the pavement.

Engineer Killed

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 11—(I N. S.)—Walter Shields, engineer on Southern Pacific train No. 49, died at a hospital here today, following a train wreck fifteen miles north of here, caused by a mule's insistence on its right to stand in the middle of the roadbed in the path of the approaching train.

The locomotive, after striking the mule, plunged down a fifteen foot embankment and overturned, pinning Shields beneath the wreckage.

Fifty passengers aboard the train escaped without injury.

400 FISHERMEN DIE ON ICE FLOE

Russians Swept Into the Baltic Sea; Rescue Attempts Fail.

LENINGRAD, Soviet Russia, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Four hundred fishermen tonight were believed to have been drowned in the Gulf of Finland after having been swept out into the gulf on a huge ice floe.

The ice field on which the men were fishing through the ice was broken loose from the shore by a heavy storm last night and was swept out to sea. The floe, with the luckless men on it, wildly gesticulating and calling for help, disappeared in the direction of the Baltic sea. The heavy sea and large ice cakes prevented rescue boats from approaching the floe.

The boats put out again this morning as soon as light permitted, but were unable to find any trace of the floe. It is feared that the ice field may have broken up during the night unde rthe pounding of the heavy waves and that the men perished.

HOPE SAVE GIRL FROM HANGING

Foster Mother Wages Battle for American In Canada.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 11—(U. P.)—A desperate legal fight to save a pretty American girl from Canadian gallows was planned tonight by her foster mother here, while the girl's own mother apparently was unaware her daughter was a condemned murderess.

The girl is Mrs. Doris Snyder Palmer McDonald, reputed once to have had comfortable wealth, sentenced to death with her sailor husband, George McDonald, for the murder of a Canadian taxi-driver.

The foster mother is Dr. Frances Palmer, Oklahoma City sanitarium head, who claims the girl is insane.

The mother, according to Dr. Palmer, is Mrs. Hazel Snyder, now living at 1601 West Madison street, Chicago.

Mrs. McDonald, young and pretty, must hang with her husband at Valleyfield, Canada, March 23, unless efforts of friends and attorneys are successful.

She and McDonald were convicted of killing Adelaird Nouchard, taxi driver, near that Canadian town last summer after he had

The radio sets were uncovered during a general cleanup which followed the recent killing of Guard Joseph Tinney by two breaking prisoners. Knives, black jacks and other weapons also were taken from many cells, it was stated.

STATE WILL TEST ROAD MATERIALS

Attempting to Find Best Surfacing for Nebraska Highways.

Gravel Will Be Base Used On All Experimental Sections.

A number of experiments with different types of hard-surfacing for highways, other than paving, will be made by State Engineer Cochran and his assistants during the spring and summer, in the hope of finding some combination of materials that will serve the purpose in Nebraska without running up the cost too high for the large mileage of roads needing improvement in the state.

Gravel is to be the basic material used in all these tests. It will be mixed with various kinds of asphaltic, tar, oil, and cement products to ascertain which give the best results in binding it firmly to the roadway, preventing the wind blowing it off, and keeping the surface as smooth and even as possible.. Ability to withstand wear and tear of vehicular traffic is another important point to be determined by the investigation.

In some of the other states having abundant supplies of natural rock, excellent roads have been built by laying and rolling a heavy base of large-sixed pieces, then adding a top layer of smaller fragments, and working tar, oil, or asphalt into the upper surface. Highways of this type in Indiana are said to wear almost as well as ordinary concrete pavement, which costs a great deal more.

Tryout on Mile Sections.

The state engineer's office plans to cover several different strips of road, each a mile or so in length, on the Cornhusker highway south of Lincoln, with different gravel combinations, so as to subject them all to virtually the same traffic conditions and observe how well each type bears up under the strain.

A top layer 3 or 4 inches thick will probably be tried there, as the amount of travel passing over the Cornhusker daily is several thousand vehicles when the weather is favorable for motoring.

Eight or ten different mixtures will be utilized for hard surfacing as many sections of the highway. At the end of a given period the condition of each will be inspected to determine how well it has stood up.

Other tests are to be made on the graveled section of the S-Y-A, from Lincoln to Woodlawn, where traffic is not so heavy. There the experimenting will be done with a 2-inch layer.

Highway Official Optimistic.

"What we are trying to determine is whether gravel in combination with other materials will provide a satisfactory hard surface for our heavily-traveled highways in Nebraska," said Chief Lobdell of the state bureau of roads and bridges. "We think that with the right sort of binder it can be made to fill the bill.

"On this new type of highway, it is intended to keep windrows of gravel along one side to be spread as needed in maintaining the road as its surface wears off. The same gravel can be used, when needed, for replenishing the whole surface as a new layer."

Should the tests prove successful, gravel hard-surfacing will later on be applied over a considerable mileage of state and federal highways in Nebraska.

brought up at 1:30. All were in good condition. Five of them were able to walk from the cage to the temporary dressing station beside the shaft up which they were brought by the rescue parties.

Cling To Air Line.

Five more men are known to be alive on the 645-foot level. The intervening barrage of gas and smoke has made it at the moment impossible to get through to them. The men survived because they hung on all night to the nearby airline.

It was the hoist bell ringing at the mouth of the shaft that gave the anxious people waiting above ground their first indication that there was life in the gas filled pit. Instantly the hoist shot down to the 550-foot level.

There, waiting calmly as though he had just finished his day's work and was coming off shift, was an elderly man, George Zoleb. Determined not to die without making at least one last struggle for his life, he left the five men with whom he had spent the anxious hours and crawled on his stomach to the shaft

Rumor Given Credence.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—A political sensation featured the senate's oil inquiry today when it was established for the first time that a part of the Continental Trading Co.'s mysterious $3,080,000 Liberty bond "slush fund" was used to pay off debts incurred by the republican national committee in the 1920 election.

This oft repeated rumor was announced as fact by Senator Nye, republican of North Dakota, chairman of the senate committee, when he declared that a $75,000 gift to the republican national committee by Harry F. Sinclair in 1923 had been in bonds originally owned by the Continental. The gift was made fifteen months after the Harding administration leased Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

On top of this the senate committee learned that $61,600 of the bonds had been paid to Henry Smith Osler, Canadian president of the Continental, as his "commission" for handling the Liberty bond fund.

These developments, added to previous revelations, accounted for a total of $1,169,000 of the $3,080,000 fund.

The Sinclair gift was traced by D. Manley and another agent of the senate committee, who learned that the Continental bonds were given Will H. Hays, then republican national chairman, by Sinclair, and cashed by Gen. T. Coleman DuPont, now a senator from Delaware, to pay off a debt owed the Empire Trust Co., of New York, by the republican national committee.

Hays, DuPont and William Boyce Thompson of Chicago, chairman of the republican ways and means committee in the Harding campaign, will be called as witnesses due to this development.

Heard of Gift In 1923.

The senate first heard of the Sinclair gift in 1923 when Hays said Sinclair had given the republican national committee $75,000 in cash. In the following March, Leon W. Baldwin, president of the Empire Trust Co., testified that Hays had turned over $75,000 in Liberty bonds to his bank to help pay off a $100,000 loan.

"The bonds were delivered by the republican national committee to General DuPont, who is chairman of our board, and myself," said Baldwin on that occasion. "I think the bonds came from Mr. Hays. They were of $75,000 par value."

It was this testimony of Hays and Baldwin that led to the revelation that Sinclair used $75,000 of the Continental bonds in paying this debt. The senate investigators traced the numbers of the bonds, which were cashed by DuPont, and found that the first $25,000 of them tallied with those issued originally to the Continental company. Nye announced that the remaining bonds also were known to have been Continental bonds.

The investigators learned that DuPont took the bonds from the bank, converted them into cash and used the proceeds, along with a personal contribution, to pay off the whole $100,000 debt. At the time DuPont was chairman of the board of the Empire Trust Co.

Confirms Rumor.

This revelation confirmed a rumor that has been going the rounds of Washington for the last five years that the republican national committee had been paid some of the Continental's profits on one occasion, a newspaper story charging Sinclair with having given 75,000 shares of his stock, valued at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 to pay off the whole Harding campaign deficit. This was indignantly denied by Hays at the time, but it was then that the former republican national chairman first told of the $75,000 gift. He denied, though, that the gift was paid to him in bonds, saying he could not remember, as he had not personally handled it.

From two officials of the Dominion Bank of Canada, the senate committee further learned that Osler had shared personally in distribution of the Continental bonds. Edward Scott Howard of Toronto, an inspector of the bank, and Albert W. Rice, an assistant agent in New York, told the committee Osler received a "2 per cent commission" for buying the bonds for the Continental. On a total of $3,080,000 this commission amounted to $71,600.

Acted on Osler's Orders.

Howard testified that he had bought all the bonds for the Continental on orders from Osler and with moneys furnished him through Osler. He also revealed for the first time that four persons, other than Osler, probably shared in the original distribution of the Continental bonds.

"The bonds always were delivered to Osler in person," said Howard. "They always were divided into four equal packages before delivery as Mr. Osler asked. He never gave any explanation."

No names ever were put on these packages, he said.

Rice confirmed this tetstimony. In all, both men testified, the bank had bought $3,080,000 of Liberty bonds for Osler with Continental funds. On each delivery, they said, 2 per cent was subtracted and placed to Osler's personal banking account. They also told of buying $600,000 of bonds for Osler with the latter's personal funds.

The committee adjuorned to meet again next week.

temporary delay in sentencing Hickman.

Judge Trabucco, who had set this morning as the time for passing judgment upon Hickman, postponed the sentencing until next Tuesday morning, when he will first hear oral arguments over the new trial.

While Hickman gains a brief respite, the prosecution today took steps to hurry Hickman on his way to San Quentin penitentiary, the scene of his probable execution.

District Attorney Asa Keyes paved the way for sending Hickman to the state prison next Tuesday night when he indicated Hickman would not be held here for trial next week for the murder of C. Ivy Thoms, Los Angeles druggist.

Hickman, together with Welby Hunt, his 16-year-old confessed confederate in crime, face trial next Wednesday on an indictment charging them jointly with the Thoms murder.

to market during the summer season, which brought millions of dollars of cash into Nebraska.

The fall season, however, was a very open one, with considerable rainfall in September and October, which delaped cornhusking until late November and December. As a result, very little of the big corn crop moved to market before the first of the year and cash returns therefrom were too small to figure materially in bank deposits. Shipments of livestock, also, were rather meager during the autumn months. Altogether, farmers did little more than mark time, financially speaking, in the last quarter of 1927.

Bankers always expect a falling off in deposits between September and December and the recent period was no exception to the general rule. It is believed they will go up between now and the first reports to be made in 1928, which will be under some date in March.

Compares Well With Year Ago.

General conditions in Nebraska can be judged better by comparing this statement with that of one years previous, on December 31, 1926, when the state had just passed through a season of drought and extensive crop failures over a considerable part of its area.

At that time deposits in 883 operating state banks were $275,517,197. The present figures are $1,054,000 below these, but it must be borne in mind that there are now thirty-eight fewer banks to make up the total. It is quite apparent from this that the banks still in business have very materially increased their deposits within the last year.

Some of the other items show even better in the comparison with a year ago. Cash reserve at this time is $3,159,000 more than then, even with the smaller number of banks to make up the aggregate. The value of bonds and securities held is $5,191,000 greater and undivided profits have increased by $349,000.

On the other hand, bills payable have been cut down by $1,449,000, which is a distinct improvement in the banking situation. Loans and discounts are $12,000,000 less.

Analysis of the deposits reveals that individual checking accounts total 2¼ millions more now than a year ago and savings deposits have gained $1,800,000. Time and demand certificates are about $5,000,000 below the December, 1926, record.

appearance le dpolice to believe that the same two youths were involved in all three robberies.

The pair was apparently about the same age—20 years old and each of the two young men was of medium build and 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall. Both were light complexioned. The man who held the gun, at least in the first two stick-ups, had an especially pointed and extended chin. He was wearing a derby hat and a yellow sweater, while the other wore a light tan cap and a gray overcoat.

In every case they worked calmly and rapidly, those who were held up said, and appeared quite accustomed to staging holdups. They said very little, scarcely any more than a preliminary command and a warning to keep quiet.

The youths made their initial appearance when they walked into tht Sumner grocery after parking their car at the curbing in front of where Mr. Bosserman and his son were standing behind a counter. One drew the gun quickly from his side pocket and quietly informed the Bossermans that they were about to be held up.

Ordering them to face the wall, he held the gun on them with one hand and went through the younger Bosserman's pockets with the other. The second holdup, meanwhile, had obtained his loot from the cash register. They then made their way to the front door very quickly, jumped into the car and sped north on Twenty-sixth street.

Forced To Lie Down.

Police started a very thorough and intensive search when the report of the second holdup came in from the Lohman grocery. Mr. Lohman was working at the rear of the main store room preparatory to closing up when the men entered. The marched him into the back room and made him lie face downward on the floor. And following the same methods, the one holding the gun went through Lohman's pockets while the other took all silver and currency in the cash register.

Then at 9:50 came the third affair which in all details was identical to the first two. The pair entered the Kalin Pharmacy, walked over to Mr. Kalin, the sole occupant, flashed the revolver on him and had him get into a corner with his face to the wall. While one held the gun the other rifled the register till. The gunmen also searched Mr. Kalin but took nothing but an empty billfold.

Before leaving the men helped themselves to several packages of cigarets and matches. Then they dashed from the store, jumped into a car on the east side of the store and turned west on J street.

Allen Linden who happened by as the men were starting away declared that they were in a coupe rather than a touring car but their descriptions tallied with those given by the Bossermans and Mr. Lohman.

HOG RECEIPTS IN JANUARY HIGHER THAN YEAR AGO

At the seven principal cornbelt markets, hog receipts were 19.6 per cent heavier in January than in the same month a year ago. At the Omaha market the receipts were 14.5 per cent higher than a year ago, according to figures compiled by the state and federal crop statistics bureau.

In spite of this increase, however, the gross value to the seller was conservatively seven million dollars below the value of hogs marketed in January, 1927.

The average weights were very close to those of last year for the entire cornbelt area, while the Kansas City and Omaha weights were higher by 11 and 8 pounds respectively.

The Omaha values per head this year averaged $20.11 as compared to $28.33 a year ago. In Chicago the average value per head was $18.56 as compared to $27.03 in 1927.

At the Omaha market 348,447 head sold this year brought $7,007,269.17, which is $1,607,260.57 less than the gross value of 304,078 head marketed last year.

Not Afraid to Hang.

(Copyright, 1928, By International News Service.)

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 11—"I am not afraid to hang, if hang I must."

Doris Palmer McDonald, 21-year-old American girl, made this assertion in an exclusive interview today—the first interview with a condemned prisoner within the walls of a Canadian prison. She and her husband, George McDonald, have been convicted of the murder of Abelard Bouchard, a Montreal taxi driver, who was killed in a holdup.

She is a tall, slender, light-haired girl, with deep brown eyes. Upon her eyelids were purple shadows, symbols of a woman who has known disillusionment; there is a terrible calm about her. She has not long to live—until March 23, when she will be executed unless fate intervenes.

"I'm not a murderess," she exclaimed. "I have done other things such as writing bad checks, but murder—no, not murder."

She mentioned Ruth Snyder.

"What remorse she must have felt," said Doris. "But then she was guilty—she admitted it. I am not."

She showed signs of remorse, declaring at one point in the interview:

THE EQUALIZATION FEE

The McNary Haugen bill is based upon the tariff principle of a cost of production price in the home market and a world price in the foreign market. This situation is brought about by an equalization fee, and control of the surplus behind a tariff wall. The crop is handled by pooling the grain so that it may be distributed in accordance with the law of supply and demand, obeying the three requirements of quantity, time, and place. Controlling the surplus maintains the domestic market price and permits the sale of export grain at the foreign price without affecting the home market. The fund necessary for carrying on these operations is raised by an equalization fee, or tax upon every bushel of grain that goes to market, and this tax is borne entirely by the farmers. It is a physical impossibility for twenty million farmers to organize without government help. All that the farmer asks is that the government provide the loans and organization necessary to put the thing on its feet.

There is no more price fixing in this arrangement than there is in any other tariff embodied principle. If a protected price and American standard of living is all right for the manufacturer and laborer, why isn't it all right for the farmer? It is time for the American farmer to demand effective protection against the peasantry of Europe.

As a matter of public policy farmers should be encouraged to produce plenty of grain. A shortage of bread would be a calamity. The production of grain is different from that of manufactured articles in that the amount of the yield cannot be determined beforehand. If one starts out to make a thousand plows he knows that they will be made. When a man sows a hundred acres in wheat he does not know whether he will get one thousand or three thousand bushels. The farmer has to try to raise all that he can so as to offset unfavorable weather and attacking insects. He can limit acreage, but he cannot determine the amount of production. If the public does not choose to carry the surplus that the farmer is encouraged to raise for its protection and benefit, the least it can do is to help provide the mechanism whereby the farmer can carry it without ruining his business. The McNary Haugen bill provides such a machine.

STEEL TRADE EXPANSION BIG DURING WEEK

"Warning Gestures" of Federal Reserve Fall On Deaf Ears.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Outside of the broad expansion in the steel trade and the speeding up of the wheels of production in the automobile industry, there was little to record of actual progress in strategic sections of American business and industry this week. Wholesale buying of goods for the spring trade was in good volume, but the retail business was mostly of the between-seasons variety.

Strong sponsorship of the industrial and specialty stocks in the New York market this week and a "drive against the shorts" was undoubtedly a more important factor behind the sharp advances in prices than the influence of an expansion in business. The "warning gestures" of the Federal Reserve bank heads have apparently fallen on deaf ears, though they will doubtless play their part when the pools have liquidated and the professionals have turned their efforts to the forcing downward of prices.

An important development of the week was the large increase in unemployment in eastern centers. While employment has picked up at some of the manufacturing centers in the interior sections of the country, the results of the late 1927 decline in profit making are now in evidence in the scaling down of the working lists of some of the leading manufacturing concerns.

Auto Output Increases.

The weekend mercantile reviews noted the irregularities in demand and prices, in trends of productions and employment of labor, and in various industrial movements incident to this season. January output of automobiles was 18 per cent ahead of the same month last year, and steel productions made a 26 per cent gain in the same month. Bradstreet's reports a 2.6 per cent increase in January building permits in 171 cities.

Bullish pools in the stock market employed the well known "strong arm" methods in advancing prices of speculative favorites. Shorts in Montgomery Ward, International Nickel and other fast moving specialties were given a severe setback and little recession from the top prices of the week were permitted by their sponsors.

The call loan rate declined to 4 1-4 per cent for accommodation over the weekend until Tuesday. Commodity markets were quiet and steady with the exception of the crude rubber market, which broke about 3 1-2 cents a pound on reports of a possible abandonment of the Stevenson crude rubber exportation l .p an Fairly steady price conditions featured the wholesale markets for commodities of major consumption. Dun's review reported 44 declines and 32 advances in wholesale commodity prices; and Bradstreets reported its food index number at $3.33, against $3.30 last week and $3.51 for the corresponding week of last year.

Bank clearings for the week aggregated $10,503,000,000, a gain of 11 per cent over the corresponding week of 1927.

Grain Prices Jump.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Grains closed both the day and week sharply higher, led by corn. Wheat closed the day 1-2c to 3-4c up, corn 1 1-2c to 1 5-8c and oats 1-4c to 3-8c. For the week, wheat was up 5-8c to 7-8c, corn 4c to 4 3-8c, and oats 1-4c to 5-8c.

The wheat market was easier on scattered selling early in the week on reports of beneficial rains over the extreme west and southwest, but gained later on support encouraged by the continued firmness in the cash article, and the action in corn.

Offerings to arrive continue light. Mills have done a better business recently for some time and it was reported flour production is running materially ahead of the output the last few years at this season. This improvement in the flour trade was responsible for the firmness in the cash article. Liverpool prices have lost quite a bit relative to Chicago the last week.

A better cash demand and the fact that shorts over-estimated the effect of the first big receipts of the season here, moved corn prices up to the highest levels in several weeks. Shipping demand was reported fairly active from Kansas City and St. Louis, while offerings were much smaller.

Hogs Advance.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Hogs closed 10c to 15c higher than a week ago, steers and cows of good quality 25c to 50c higher, lambs 75c higher.

Demand for hogs was slack early in the week as receipts were exceptionally heavy, but later arrivals dropped off considerably and the market reacted sharply. Receipts for the week totalled 244,000, against 264,000 last week and 157,000 a year ago. Shippers were the most active buyers here during the week. Closing top for hogs was $8.50, with most of the light and medium weights clearing at $8.20 to $8.45 and the best heavy at $8.25. Underweight lights moved at $7.85 to $8.20. Packing sows brought $7.00 to $7.50.

The supply of cattle this week numbered 43,000, the smallest of the season. It was 8,000 less than a week ago and 11,000 less than a year ago. On that account the market was active and steady. Prime cattle were scarce. Top halted at $17.65 and the bulk ranged from $12.00 to $15.00. Lightweight cows moved at $6.50 to $8.00. Canners and cutters sold stronger at $5.00 to $6.50. Demand was especially strong all week for handy lightweight heifers that sold at $11.00 to $13.50. Calves were lower early in the week, but recovered later. Packers bought lights and medium weight vealers at $14.00 tot $15.50. Shippers took the best heavy at $16.00 to $17.00.

This week's gain in the lamb market put the market nearly $3 higher than at the low point in January and at the highest level since June. Top lambs reached $16.00 with most of the lights and medium weights at $15.50 to $15.90. Ewes gained 50c with top at $9.50, highest since last April. Week's receipts of sheep were 71,000.

Chicago Cotton Higher.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Cotton prices closed 101 to 110 points above a week ago. GRAMLICH FINDS CATTLEMEN WANT RESTOCK FARMS

"The high prices of feeder cattle have made the breeders and feeders anxious to restock their farms and get back into the game," says H. J. Gramlich, chairman of the animal husbandry department of the University of Nebraska.

He has just returned from Des Moines, Ia., where he was the judge of the Thirteenth annual show and sale of the American Polled Hereford association.

The grand champion bull, owned by former U. S. Postmaster Burleson, was sold to a Texas ranch for the fancy figure of $1,250. The animal was twenty months old. A sixteen-months old bull was sold to the Speidell ranch, Roundup, Mont., for $1,125, and all the bulls sold at the sale averaged over $400. The sale averaged the highest of any sale the association has had for eight years.

The American Polled Hereford association has its own show and sale each year and is national in character, as there were representatives from fourteen states, coming from Indiana and Ohio to Nevada; and from North Dakota to Texas.

Ex-Governor Packard of Arizona, was one of those who traveled a long way to attend the sale and buy stock for their own ranches and farms.

NEW FRATERNITY INSTALLED HERE

Kappa Rho Sigma Becomes Omicron Chapter of Sigma Phi Sigma.

Twenty-three Actives and Alumni Initiated Into National Group.

Kappa Rho Sigma, for two years a local fraternity at the University of Nebraska, was formally installed as Omicron chapter of Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity Saturday morning at the chapter house, 1546 South Twenty-second street.

Presentation of the charter by official delegates from Sigma Phi Sigma was made after the initiation of twenty-four members of Kappa Rho Sigma into Sigma Phi Sigma Friday night.

The installation was under the auspices of C. R. Anderson and E. A. Norton, both of the University of Illinois, E. R. Summers, of the University of Minnesota, and E. H. Weatherly, of the University of Missouri. Anderson is grand editor, and Norton recorder custodian of the national fraternity.

Sigma Phi Sigma will be the thirtieth national social fraternity to install a chapter on the Nebraska campus.

Organized in 1921.

Kappa Rho Sigma was organized as a discussion group of engineering students in 1921 and 1922. The group temporarily disbanded, but it the fall of 1925 it was revived as a local social fraternity, and since has been active on the campus.

A petition was sent to Sigma Phi Sigma in the fall of 1927, and favorable action was taken on it by the governing body of that organization.

Omicron chapter is the fifteenth chapter of Sigma Phi Sigma. The mother chapter of the organization is at the University of Pennsylvania where the fraternity was founded in 1908 by Brice H. Long, Percy H. Wood, and Guy P. Needham. The Nebraska chapter is the second in schools comprising the Big Six athletic conference. The other chapter is Lambda at the University of Missouri.

The national office of Sigma Phi Sigma is at Champaign, Ill., where the official publication, the "Sigma Phi Sigma Monad", is published. The colors of the fraternity are gold and white, the flowers the jonquil and lily of the valley. The pin is composed of a gold jeweled Phi superimposed upon two gold Sigmas.

Thirteen Active Members.

The following active members of Kappa Rho Sigma were initiated at the ceremony Friday night: Paul R. Jenkins, Gothenburg; Victor H. Sylvan, Gothenburg; Royal C. Kiser, Tipton, Kans., Lyle J. Klotz, Exeter; Raymond E. McCormick, Lincoln; Frank C. Summers, Beatrice; Everett H. Hanson, Kennard; Goeffrey R. King, Arapahoe; Corda L. Wiemers, Diller; Mark Q. Swan, Melbeta; Robert M. Evans, Atkinson; Bernard E. Halstead, Lincoln; and O. E. Gauger, Eustis.

The following alumni returned for the initiation and installation: Arthur Huddleston, Crowell, Tex., Murry E. Dilley, Friend; Elmer Pond, Plainview; Herbert C. Matzen, Yutan; Hubert G. Stamp, Yutan; Verle McBride, Belgrade; Wendell Dodd, Randolph, Ia., Harold A. Morrison, Stapleton; Joe M. Kadlcek, Hay Springs; and Edwin Streetz, Tipton, Kans.

W. M. Stebbins state treasurer, Vernon Morrison, instructor in the college of business administration at the university and R. L. Stockman of Sioux City, Ia., will be initiated as honorary members Saturday evening at the chapter house.

The program for installation was completed with a formal banquet and dinner dance at the Cornhusker hotel Saturday night. Elmer Pond was toastmaster at the banquet and responses were made by W. M. Stebbins, E. F. Schram, chairman of the inter-fraternity council, and the installation team.

Sigma Phi Sigma Chapter Is Installed Here.

The active and alumni members who were initiated into Sigma Phi Sigma and the installing officers of this national social fraternity are shown above. The group to which the charter was issued was formerly Kappa Rho Sigma.

Proclamation on State Primaries April 10 Is Issued By Governor

An official proclamation announcing the spring primaries to be held April 10 in Nebraska was issued Saturday by Governor McMullen, just in time to comply with the legal requirement for such notice to be given 60 days beforehand. It calls for the expression of presidential preference by the voters of each party and the election of national convention delegates and national committeemen, as well as for the nomination of candidates for United States senator, congressmen, governor and other state offices, members of the legislature in all districts, and whatever local offices the law providesshall be filed at the November election.

On the nonpolitical ticket, the gubernatorial manifesto covers supreme judges in three districts, judges of the district court in all districts, and regents of the state university in two districts.

While the poclamation does not specify the time limit in which candidates may file for the primaries, the statutes require nomination papers to be in the hands of the proper officials 40 days before the date of the primary, which means not later than March 1. The secretary of state receives all filings for state offices and those where the election is in a district comprising two or more counties. For places to be filled within a single county, the county clerk's office is the legal filing place.

Here is the list of the various matters and candidates upon which the voters will express themselves in the April 10 primary, as enumerated in Governor McMullen's advance sheet:

7. To express a preference, if desired, by each political party for president and vice president of the United States.
2. The election of one committeeman and one committee woman as members of the national committees of the several parties.
3. For the election by each of the political parties of delegates and alternates to the several national conventions provided by statute.
4. For the nomination by each political party of a candidate for United States senator.
5. For the nomination by each political party of one candidate for congress from each of the six congressional districts in the state.
6. For the nomination by each political party of candidates for state offices, to-wit:
One governor.
One lieutenant governor.
One secretary of state.
One auditor of public accounts.
One commissioner of public lands and buildings.
One state treasurer.
One attorney general.
One railway commissioner.
One railway commissioner to fill vacancy
State senator for each of the thirty-three state senatorial districts.
State representative for each of the one hundred state representative districts.
7. For the non-political nomination of two candidates from each of the three even-numbered Supreme court districts for judge of the Supreme court as provided by the constitution of the state of Nebraska.
8. For the non-political nomination of seventy candidates for judges of the district courts in the eighteen judicial districts of the state as apportioned by the sessions laws of 1923.
9. For the non-political nomination of two candidates for board of regents of the state university for regent districts numbers three and four.
10. And to nominate such other candidates of the state, county or municipality the election of which is provided for by law, at the general primary election for 1928.

V. F. W. COUNCIL MEETS SUNDAY

State Officers to Hold All-Day Session in Lincoln.

Plans Will Be Made For Annual Convention in June.

The council of administration of the department of Nebraska Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet Sunday, February 19, in the Chinese room of the Lincoln hotel. The meeting will be an all-day session with a lunch at noon.

The program as arranged by Nathan Grossman, department commander, includes fixing the date for the annual convention early in June and outlining the program. Apportioning the delegates representation also will be a part of the business.

Three members of the national organization also will be here from Kansas City and will talk on the national program before congress. In this is included a bill asking pensions for all World war men under the same regulations governing the pensions of veterans of the Spanish war. Those who have said they would be here are Capt. Robert B. Handy, national adjutant general; B. F. Snodgrass, member of the national council of administration; and Barney Yonofsky, editor of the Foreign Service, the society's national magazine. Before becoming editor of the magazine Mr. Yonofsky was city editor of the Fremont Tribune.

Members of the council who have notified the department commander they will be here include Commander Frank Crawford, Wymore; Frank Bell, department senior vice commander, Hastings; Lester Anderson, department junior vice commander, Fremont; State Chaplain Frank Major, Kearney; Commander C. M. Mumson, Grand Island; Department Inspector Jess, Fremont; Commander Bruce Lants, Omaha; I. D. Beynon, department judge advocate, Lincoln. Representatives of other posts in the state also will be here along with members of three posts in the course of organization.

The date of the department convention had been fixed for the week of June 14. This is the same date as that of the United Spanish War Veterans at Grand Island and it is believed by Lincoln members of the council that the time will be made a week earlier so as not to conflict with the Grand Island meeting.

February 15 is the thirtieth anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor. The date is also the regular meeting night of Charles A. Fraley post, No. 1450, and the program will be arranged for a memorial service in honor of those who lost their lives when the ship went down. It also will commemorate the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

KIRKBRIDE WILL ASSIST IN DRIVE

Named Vice Chairman of Group $500,000 Masonic Temple Fund.

The organization of a working force of more than 250 Lincoln Masons to obtain a fund of $500,000 to build, equip and endow the new Masonic temple was further advanced Saturday, with the acceptance by W. J. Kirkbride of the position of vice chairman of the campaign. In announcing Mr. Kirkbride's acceptance, O. J. Fee, general chairman of the campaign, pointed out that the organization would be ready to function as an aggressive force during March.

Mr. Kirkbride has been active in Masonic affairs. He is general manager of the Roberts Dairy Co. During the last few years he has been connected with several community financial efforts, and is president of the Lincoln Rotary club. He represented the club at the international meeting in Ostend, Belgium, last year. He is a member of Lincoln Lodge No. 19.

Aiding in the work of preparing the campaign organization are the masters of the various Masonic bodies that make up the Masonic Building corporation, which will be in direct charge of the new structure. These masters are: Howard Barrett, Lincoln Lodge No. 19; Jess T. Turner, Lancaster Lodge No. 54; John H. Strayer, Liberty lodge, No. 300; Marcus L. Poteet, Lincoln chapter No. 6; Francis A. Robey, Lincoln Council, No. 4; Harry C. Hiatt, Mt. Moriah Commandry, No. 4.

Under the plan devised by the Masonic Building corporation, of which Fred W. Tyler is president, and Max Meyer, secretary, the fund of $500,000 necessary for the building will be raised by subscriptions payable over a five year period. The plan provides, however, that through an arrangement with the Lincoln Trust Co., as trustee, funds for the construction of the building will be made available at the end of the campaign.

The plan adopted provides that each subscriber to the campaign will receive the return of the amount subscribed under the Lincoln refunding subscription method, according to Mr. Tyler.

UNIVERSITY SELLS BOOKS WORTH $15,000

Saving to Students On Sales By Regents' Store Since February 1 is Approximately $1,875.

More than $15,000 worth of books have been sold to Univerdsity of Nebraska students since the beginning of the second semester February 1, by the regents' book store maintained on the campus by the university. Because new books are sold at a 10 per cent discount, this represents a saving of approximately $1,875 to students.

The problem of supplying books to the 6000 students of the university prompted the inauguration last year of the Y. M. C. A. book exchange, where second-hand books are bought and sold. Students wishing to sell text books set their own price and if sold pay the book exchange a commission of 15 per cent, which just covers expenses of its operation.

This semester more than 900 books have been placed at the exchange, the average per student being about three books. One student brought in thirty-four volumes to be sold. More than half of the 3,000 books listed in the exchange have been sold.

In the regents' bookstore, where only new books are sold, the total sales for 1927 amounted to $70,000, representing a saving of $8,750 to students.

FAIR WILL GET NO MORE MONEY

Request For Double Appropriation Turned Down in Pawnee.

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Feb. 11—The request of the Pawnee County Fair association to the county commissioners for an appropriation of $4,000 instead of the present $2,000 county aid, will not be granted this year, it is revealed by the county's estimate of expenses for the coming year. The reason given for adhering to the former appropriation is that the county's levy will not permit the increase.

As in years before, the appropriation for building and repairing the bridges and culverts is the largest estimate, totaling $32,400. The county and road district estimate of $27,000 is second highest. The total of the estimate at $138,300, which includes $97,300 in items listed as general fund, and $16,900 in various school district accounts.

The bridge appropriation is interesting at this time because of the letting of bids for Pawnee county bridge construction and repair, that will occur here next Tuesday, at 10 o'clock. Pawnee county is said to have more bridges and culverts than any county in the state.

Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Feb. 11—Solomon Rickner, residing eleven miles northeast of Palmer in Nance county, will celebrate his 106th birthday anniversary on Saturday, Feb. 18. Although he was classed as too old for service at the outbreak of the Civil war, Mr. Rickner enjoys fairly good health, continues to work about the farmyard and gets much pleasure out of his pipe and his radio. His first vote for president was cast for William Harrison.

His wife died more than a quarter century ago and only one of four children, Mrs. Cora Corbett, with whom he lives, survives. Mrs. Corbett will be 63 years of age in April. Mr. Rickner was born in Lancaster, county, Pa., 1822, and when 15 years of age moved with his parents to Marshall, Mich. In 1871 he came to Nebraska and located on a farm six miles south of Columbus. He left Nebraska in 1904, going to Seattle, Wash., where he resided until 1909, then returning to Nebraska. Since 1913 he has resided with his daughter at his present home.

AUBURN NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

AUBURN, Neb., Feb. 11—At a meeting of the school board J. A. Jimmerson was re-elected superintendent of the Auburn schools at an increase of salary. Mr. Jimmerson had been getting $2,700 per year and this was increased to $3,000.

Since the heavy fall of rain in this county during the past week side roads are impassable, but the farmers who are seen on the streets wear broad smiles as to the benefit this moisture means to their wheat crops. One farmer remarked that he had begun to worry about the extreme dryness and feared that the county was due for a short wheat crop this coming season, but this late rain has completely changed his mind.

PAWNEE COUNTY'S CATTLE TOPPERS FOR MANY YEARS

Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Feb. 11—For seven out of the past 25 years Pawnee county cattle have set the record for the year's top price on at the Kansas City market. Not only is the record unequalled by any other single county, but to a Pawnee county man, C. M. Clark of north of Burchard, belongs the distinction of having drawn the world's open market record price of $25.25, on his shipment in December, 1918.

The records, by years and shippers, are:

1916—Sam Small, Pawnee City, $12.
1918—C. M. Clark, Burchard, $25.25.
1920—C. M. Clark, $17.70.
1922—C. M. Clark, $13.85.
1923—William McCalla, Pawnee City, $12.70.
1926—C. M. Clark, $12.75.
1927—C. M. Clark, $18.

CATTLE INDUSTRY WAS NEVER BETTER

Ranchman Says Good Money in Feeding Stock at the Present Time.

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Feb. 11—Kenneth McDonald, an extensive Wyoming ranchman, who also has a large ranch in this county and is at present spending some time in looking over his Nebraska interests, declares that the feeding end of the live animal industry has never been more favorable in Nebraska. The abundant 1927 forage crop, in combination with the corn crop and good prices prevailing for beef, particularly, have all contributed to a condition that could scarcely be improved.

It appears to be a general finding that, though feeders are paying as high as 74 and 75 cents per bushel for corn, in the case of cattle the price is such as to be leaving a margin of profit even on the best feeding processes.

FINE FARM HOME IS GIVEN A NAME

(Special to The Star)

STELLA, Neb., Feb. 11—"Ashland" is the title given the fine farm southwest of Stella belonging to Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cornelius, who were in the office of the county clerk at Falls City this week to register the name. The fact that many ash trees grow on the place determined the selection of the title, while it chances to be a name of interest anyway to Mrs. Cornelius, whose parents, she said, came from Ashland, Ohio.

GAME REFUGE FOR ANTELOPE COUNTY

Izaak Walton League Plans On Having Large Area Set Aside For Purpose.

(Special to The Star)

NELIGH, Neb., Feb. 11—Members of the Izaak Walton league of this city and vicinity have been discussing the advisability of establishing a game reserve in Antelope county. The plan is not to set the land aside from its usual use, but simply to make it a game refuge, where hunting will be strictly prohibited and game will be allowed to breed undisturbed.

Many of the farmers along Cedar creek have taken up the idea and it seems altogether likely a large area in this section will be posted. This is an ideal locality for such a proposition. Considerable of the land is broken, much covered with timber and practically all of it is well watered.

WHITESIDE WINS LOCAL AUDIENCE

Famous Actor and His Company Present Melodrama, "Sakura."

Lincoln theater-goers renewed their acquaintance with Walker Whiteside Saturday evening after a two-year lapse. Appearing in "Sakura," he and his company completely won the sympathy of a fair-sized audience at the Playhouse.

Atherton Brownell's play depicts the conflict between a young Russian and a Japanese prince for the loce of Onda Sada. Won over to the prince by a sense of duty to Nippon, the gil enters on happy domestic life only to be confronted by the flouted Russian, who clandestinely had reached her bridal bower. The prince discovers his wife's lover there, yet gives him safe conduct to save her honor. But the Russian has fiched a priceless state document his brief visit. To recover that paper the prince barters his wife's body, then delivers her apparently dead. She really wasn't and comes alive to live with the prince in happiness ever after.

As Prince Hagane, the inscrutable oriental, Walker Whiteside managed to einject enough half-suppressed passion into the calm dignity of his role to make the portrayal memorable. There were moments in the play of more intensity than often found. Absolute silence in the audience testified better than ensuing applause to the effectiveness of the prsntation. On Mr. Whitside's shoulders rested most of the responsibility for gaining these effects.

From Miss Franc Hale, engaging as her stage personality was, he received not as much aid in the gripping moments as might have been expected. But as "Sakura," the Wild Cherry Blossom, her naive, half-Americanized manner showed in better light. Tetsujo, her father, as played by Frank Henderson, hissed indignation convincly, and the Russian lover, interpreted by Paul McGrath, did some hissing himself.

FEDERAL AGENTS ARREST 27 FOR LIQUOR OFFENSES

Federal prohibition agents arrested 27 persons in Nebraska during January for violation of the federal liquor laws according to a report issued by Elmer E. Thomas, acting deputy prohibition administrator. Federal officers assisted state officers in 46 other arrests, and 24 prosecutions in Federal court were recommended.

Seventeen stills and 17 still worms were destroyed the report states. Spirits confiscated totaled 357 gallons and 220 gallons of malt liquors and 13 gallons of wine were seized. The officers also confiscated 177 fermenters and 8,068 gallons of mash. Three cars valued at $625 were confiscated.

FIRST AID GIVEN INJURED BOY BY TABITHA SCOUTS

Never have the benefits of Boy Scout training been more thoroughly demonstrated than recently at Tabitha Home, in the opinion of Scout officials.

A group of the boys at the home are members of troop No. 22. As a part of their training they have been given a course in first aid and one day last week had occasion to put to practice what they had been taught.

While playing, one of the boys fell and broke his arm. Robert Reynolds rushed to the matron and after telling her of the accident explained that both bones were broken. He also reported that Arthur French and Lester Thoelecke had applied first aid. The injured boy was taken to Dr. J. E. M. Thomson, president of the Lincoln scout council. Since examining the first aid work of the boys Dr. Thomson cannot say enough for the training they have received. No one could have done better, he declared, asserting that once more scouting has measured up to every claim that has been made for it.

W. O. W. LOSES IN ATTEMPT REMOVE MANDAMUS SUIT

Attempts by the Woodmen of the World to force three policyholders, who are trying to mandamus the company in Lincoln courts, to bring their suit in Omaha courts failed Saturday when District Judge Shepherd overruled a special appearance. The policyholders would make officers of the Woodmen concern return to ordinary uses the $1,000,000 invested by them in the Globe Life Insurance company. By making the state insurance commissioner a party to the action, the policy holders have been able to maintain their suit here.

HUBBELL, Neb., Feb. 11—In the passing of Joseph Lamb at his country home near here a few days ago, southern Thayer county lost its oldest and most widely known resident. He was 93 years old last December and was one of the very first settlers in this vicinity, coming here ahead of the railway and taking land between Hubbell and Reynolds which he farmed for 40 years, acquiring more lands in Jefferson and Thayer counties, Neb., and Republic county, Kas.

Mr. Lamb is survived by his widow, five sons, Jay of Texas, Bill and Bryan at home, Joshua, a railway mail clerk of Council Bluffs; George of Lincoln, and a married daughter. A wife by a second marriage also survives.

M'GEE "EARLIEST GARDEN" CONSISTS OF ALASKA PEAS

Lest others fall into the error of sowing their spring gardens in February, Sam McGee of College View announces that his "earliest garden" consists only of a planting of Alaska peas.

Onions, radishes and most other vegetables probably would not stand the cold days ahead, he explains, but this variety of pea can show up green through a snow bank. In the previous years, he has sown it during February but never quite so soon as this. Last week's rain help drive frost from the ground and put the soil in excellent condition, he said.

Road Conditions

For the first time this year road conditions on the dirt stretches in this vicinity are reported to be only fair. The dirt roads on the main highways are dry but somewhat rough, while many of the cross roads are still muddy and rutted in spots. All roads should be improved for Sunday traveling. Roads in southeastern and southern Nebraska seem to have had the most moisture.

U. S. No. 38. Lincoln to Omaha. Graveled and paved. West from Lincoln to Atlanta, gravel. Dirt stretches fair to state line west. Generally good.

U. S. No. 77. Sioux City to Oakland, graveled. Nineteen miles of dirt road fair to Hooper. Graveled south to Lincoln and Beatrice; in good condition. Dirt stretches through Kansas fair.

Veteran Railway Mail Clerk Retired After 40 Years Service

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Feb. 11. — Does the public ever think in this day of rustle and bustle what a railway postal clerk does for its benefit? Julius M. Beecher, postal clerk operating on the Burlington railway between Wymore and Concordia, Kas., for the past seven years, was retired by the postal department the past week after 39 years of continuous service. In that time, according to records and reports made by him, he estimates he handled 6,000 tons of mail matter, letters and newspapers included, some of it destined for every state in the Union and every country on the globe having postal service.

He has worked during the day and toiled throughout the night, sorting letters and throwing them accurately to land in various pouches suspended on racks in the mail car, having as high as 60 different sacks to sort mail into at a time on certain runs which he has held. Each pouch must be ready to close and throw off at its station by the time the train arrives, so that patrons of the local postoffices may get their mail.

During this time Mr. Beecher has figured that he traveled a total of 1,500,000 miles in railway mail cars, or a distance equal to sixty times the circumference of the globe. His run has generally been 150 to 175 miles daily, the one he is retiring from being 162 miles daily except Sunday.

Letters are bound in packets at the post offices, according to directions, and these are broken and sorted by railway postal clerks, being worked into various sacks on the racks, to be thrown off at various stations. Mr. Beecher estimates that he has handled nearly 2,000,000 packets of these letters, and has distributed over a quarter of a million sacks of newspapers in his time. At least 25,000 registered letters have passed through his hands, without a single one being lost.

His First Run.

Mr. Beecher started his career in the Railway mail service on April 27, 1889, on a run on the Rock Island railway between Kansas City and Topeka. He with a clerk named Ira C. Williams, "broke in" the first mail service west out of Kansas City on the Rock Island railway. Beecher was in charge of the first mail car the road operated out of Kansas City and Williams on the opposing train, was the first postal clerk to work a mail car into Kansas City from the west on that road. These two clerks worked together on this run for several months, performing all the mail service the road operated west of Kansas City. Mr. Williams was retired by the department in 1921. He now lives in Topeka and is one of the county commissioners of Shawnee county. The two have lived to see the service of their original efforts expanded to embrace four mail trains daily in each direction employing 20 men, and handling over ten times the quantity of mail matter which was handled on the start.

Postal assignments are made by the postoffice department, and the clerks are not confined to service on any one particular railway. Mr. Beecher has seen service on the main lines of four important railways, the Rock Island, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Burlington. His second assignment was between Kansas City and Belleville, later between Kansas City and Phillipsburg, and then between Kansas City and Colorado Springs, having also been the first railway mail clerk to be in charge of a mail car west of Phillipsburg, when the Rock Island extended the service to Colorado Springs, in 1896. A fellow worker here was R. L. Henderson, now superintendent of 14th division, Omaha. He served between Belleville and Junction City, was stationed at Camp Funston post office during the World war, and for a time was connected with the St. Joseph terminal railway post office. He later held assignments between Cameron, Mo., and Leavenworth, Kas., between Leavenworth and Onaga; Emporia and Moline; and for the past seven years between Wymore and Concordia.

Many unusual experiences have brought variety to his career. Once in Kansas he saw the battered body of a man tossed against the barbed wire fence of the right of way as the train squeaked to a stop with his mail car opposite. The engine had struck an unfortunate trespasser. When a derailment occurred at Paxico, Kas., several years ago, he picked up from the wreckage bushels of letters, all of which were blood soaked.

Goes Through Bridge.

Once his mail car dived through an undermined bridge into a swollen creek and he crawled to safety by stepping on the bar across the doorway and thence over the roof. His train turned over near Lawrenceburg, Kas., several years ago, and while he was not hurt, Charles Baker, a porter, was killed. He has seen some bad snow blockades and has slept many nights on piles of mail sacks but, he has never been in a mail robbery or a serious collision in all his 39 years of service.

While detailed at Camp Funston during the war, tons of mail daily was hauled from the depot to the pot office by four horse hopper shaped hay racks. In one day 35,000 letters were registered through the cancelling machine. Beecher states he distributed 3,000 letters himself in one hour and a half winning in a race against another clerk. At one time the cook at Camp Funston post office was arrested as a German spy. Beecher with the other 41 clerks, was then quartered for meals with a company commanded by Captain Whistler, who murdered the Camp Funston bankers and later committed suicide.

A Christmas Story.

In ilosing his reminiscenies, Mr. Beecher related the following incident of human interest and appeal:

"It was at Camp Funston post office one Christmas afternoon. With 19 other clerks, I was eating up a wagonload of parcels, the last of 2,970 sacks of mail composing the day's work. A bashful, young soldier had been standing near, gazing at the huge piles of mail. He was homesick and when asked what we could do for him he replied:

"Well, the folks at home wrote me a few days ago that they had sent me a Christmas package. I have not got it yet and I come to look for it.' The fact that it should be in the last sack of the last hour's work of the day seemed a joke to the clerks, but we winked at each other and invited the lad to step up and look around. Three parcels were left to sort. The soldier picked up one, scanned the address, and laid it down in disappointment. The second package was treated likewise, but when the last one was lifted his homesick face broke into smiles and he went away happy with his contribution from the home folks."

Plans To Preach.

Mr. Beecher is retired by reason of the age limit, 62 years, and will receive a small pension. His service has been faithful and efficient. He made his last trip on train No. 89 from Wymore to Concordia a few days ago and will live in Concordia, where he has a comfortable home, passing the time with his family.

And what do postal clerks do when they retire? Perhaps most of them do the things that they have longed to do, but, for one reason and another, have been prevented from doing before. In this case Mr. Beecher, who for many years has been a preacher in the church of the Nazarene, is looking forward with much pleasure in giving all his time and efforts in the future to gospel work.

ADMITS TARIFF IS NOT PERFECT

McKelvie Says Schedules Might Properly Be Amended.

(Special to The Star).

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 11—While attributing the present era of prosperity to the national administration and republican policies, former Governor Sam R. McKelvie of Nebraska, in addressing the Lincoln club at its annual banquet here tonight, admitted that "this is not to say that the present tariff schedules are not a proper subject of study and revision." "The demand for this," he said, "seems strongest among farmers, but it has its advocates also among large industrialists."

Mr. McKelvie endorsed the position of President Coolidge on the matter of farm relief, advocating the formation of co-operative associations for the orderly marketing and handling of surpluses. To this end government aid might be extended and a revolving fund at a moderate rate of intefest provided.

The Lincoln club is a republican political organization and Mr. McKelvie's speech was largely along partisan political lines, lauding the party for its accomplishments and assuring his hearers that it could be depended upon in any emergency which might confront it.

NEW WHIPPET IS INTEREST CENTER

Thousands Throughout Country Inspect Low-priced Models.

Price Reduction Brings Notable Reception From Buyers.

TOLEDO O., Feb. 11 —Immediately following the slashing price reductions in the Whippet motor cars, placing them directly in price competition with the lowest priced cars in America, approximately two million persons visited the various showrooms where these perfected Whippets were on display. This outpouring equals the interest displayed when the Whippet was first presented to the public about 19 months ago, which set a record at that time for public interest in a new product.

Reports that are pouring into the executive offices of Willys-Overland Inc., indicate that the interest of the public is centered in the perfected Whippet, this fact being borne out by the sales volume that has resulted, being far in excess of the expectations of company sales executives.

It is said that never before in the history of the automobile industry has a price reduction on a car that had been before the public for more than a year, brought about such a notable reception in every section of the nation.

Reports also indicate that in the higher ranges of cars there is a decided trend toward Willys-Knight models, which have been presented for 1928 with numerous refinements. Unusual interest, it is said, is being exhibited in the new Willys-Knight standard six, the first car powered by a Willys-Knight sleeve valve engine to sell in the $1,100 price class.

In Toledo 40,000 persons visited the Willys-Overland display in two days following the price cut.

More than 200 000 visited the New York sales rooms at Fiftieth Street. Denver reports that 5,000 persons daily visited the Whippet sales rooms. Austin, Tex., reports 1,500 visitors a day. At Wichita, Kans., 3,000 persons viewed the Whippets in two days.

Atlanta Ga. reports an attendance of more than 500 a day with a complete sell-out of cars in stock, while dealers in the adjacent territory placed orders for the immediate delivery of 350 Whippets to fill the orders of buyers.

In Boston and surrounding towns, 13,000 visited the showrooms. At Akron, O., 3,000 visited the Whippet display in two days.

Despite the heavy snowstorms in St. Paul, Minn. thousands came to see the perfected Whippets following the price cut with many orders resulting. This same interest held true throughout other snowbound regions.

A total of 30,000 visited the dealer showrooms in San Francisco in three days. In Detroit, the center of the automobile indutsry, 15,000 came to see the Whippets with the dealers booking scores and scores of orders.

From every point throughout the country the dealers report that the same enthusiasm is being shown in the Whippet which is being offered at the lowest prices in Willys-Overland history. This has resulted in a sales volume never before attained at this season of the year with every indication that capacity production will be necessary at the Willys-Overland plants for months to come to keep pace with the demand of the motor car buyers of the nation.

Hupmobile Given Unique Test For Riding Qualities

A story has just come to light, points out Ralph Hitchcock of Stewart Motors, which affords humorous as well as pointed proof that the design, engineering and manufacturing of up-to-the-minute motor cars requires attention to almost infinite detail.

Last spring, when the new Hupmobile 1928 Six had reached the stage that actual experimental bodies were being tested, the management decided that four experts—one each from its engineering, body, service and sales departments—would be charged with the responsibility of approving its riding comfort. This committee, it was determined, was to ride in each model and recommend every possible betterment. It was to continue doing so until it could approve the comfort, posture and general roadability of each model without reservation.

The four named were among the highest ranking executives in their departments. The humor in the situation lay in the fact that their weights—it was later determined—varied from 135 to 257 pounds, and the heights from 5 feet 6 inches to 6 feet 2 inches.

Out on the road, the slight, mild-mannered gentlemen of 135 appeared for all the world as though he were strangely out of place with a burly 257-pounder alongside him.

The management stipulated that each member of the quartet was to ride 50 miles on each trip in each of the four seat positions—driver's, front seat passenger, left rear and right rear sides. That meant 200 miles of riding each day the committee went out—a good test of a car's comfort qualities. Roads included the best, fair, poor and worst that could be found within 100 miles of Detroit. Seat contour, riding posture, general body comfort—all these were carefully tested. At the end of each day each man made his report of recommended changes. It was only after a long series of tests, and many improvements, that approval was finally given.

Danger in Use of Heat.

If an axle or similar part has been bent in an accident, heating it to bend it back to its normal shape is not invariably the proper process. It often happens that such a course destroys the effect of the original heat treatment which is used to give the metal hardness and load-carrying capacity.

EXPERTS ASSERT COLORS TO STAY

Feminine Taste Demands Continuance Bright Motor Car Hues.

The vogue of bright colors which has featured automobile fashions the past year, shows no signs of passing, and has been strongly emphasized at the 1928 New York and Chicago national shows. Experienced judges seem to agree that the vivid and picturesquely named new shadings which replaced the former somber and monotonous finish of motor cars are destined to occupy a permanent place in public preference.

However, say Chrysler color technicians, the trend is toward a more harmonious use of color, in chromatic blends which employ various related shades of the same basic color, rather than toward sharp contrasts.

Feminine taste largely guides the selection of new automobiles just as it shapes the great majority of expenditures by American families, and it has evidently decreed a permanent vogue for the light, luscious tones which have been so popular of late in home furnishings, in dress and in hosiery, though of course the more restrained finishes are still available for their adherents.

The prospect at present is therefore that color combinations will continue to be chosen in 1928 with scientific selection of color values, as during recent months, and with especial consideration to their adaptability for each particular type and model of car.

Chrysler color technicians, who played the leading role in the trend away from the archaic, somber blacks which had established a melancholy monopoly in the minds of motor car builders until about four years ago, point out that the duotone contrasts which featured their original production in 1924 remained the prevailing vogue in motor car fashions until a year ago, when the Chrysler was again in the forefront of the change to a new color fashion, characterized by chromatic harmonies and blends rather than the widely contrasting hues.

One of the salient points of Chrysler color policies, these experts point out, is the practice of making frequent changes of color combinations for all body types. The practice, it is claimed, unites the advantages of standard and custom car buying by permitting the practice of economy while enabling the purchaser to gratify individual preference regarding all details, including color.

THE acclaim which is greeting the new Willys-Knight Standard Six definitely proves how widespread has been the demand for a low-priced Six powered by the patented Willys-Knight engine.

It has long been our aim to produce just such a car. But due to the greater cost of building the superior sleeve-valve motor, it is only today—after fourteen years of experiment and progress—that we have reached our goal.

Thousands more may now drive the Willys-Knight, the car which is praised so enthusiastically by its present owners. Thousands more may now enjoy its silent power, velvet smoothness, simple design, quick starting, rigid economy. The new Standard Six is notable for the same flashing activity, sustained brilliance, ease of control, freedom from carbon troubles and repairs.

Two Other Favorite Sixes

Willys-Knight Special Six—improved, finer; now still further distinguished by such advanced features as crown fenders, window reveals, steel-rimmed roof, beautiful new color options.

Willys-Knight Great Six—taking front rank with America's most luxurious cars. Now a larger, more powerful engine insures even higher and smoother speed and even flashier acceleration.

Willys-Knight Sixes range in price from $1145 to $2695, in the Standard Six, Special Six and Great Six divisions. Prices f. o. b. factory and specifications subject to change without notice. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

HIGH COMPRESSION WITH ANY GAS!

The simplicity of the patented Willys-Knight engine is responsible for its remarkable efficiency. Two metal sleeves in each cylinder move smoothly, silently up and down, one within the other, in a protective film of oil. They admit and expel gas through openings in their sides. There is no complicated valve mechanism with tappets and cams. There are no valve springs to weaken, or to collect carbon, and thereby destroy compression.

The spherical cylinder head of the Willys-Knight directs the full force of the explosion straight downward against the piston, making the most efficient use of the highly compressed gas. Such carbon as forms serves only to seal the chamber even more perfectly. As a result, the Willys-Knight engine gives high uniform compression at all times, at all speeds—and with any gas. And it is the only type of engine that constantly grows smoother and quieter with use.

State Loop Steamed Up to Fight for Its Rights

Nebraska League Prepares for War

Claims Lincoln Territory and Ready, If Western Plays Tricks, Build New Park In Capital City.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Suggestion that the Western league, Lee Keyser of Des Moines or any other organization or individual be permitted to acquire possession of Landis Field for the purpose of keeping Lincoln in line for revival of Western league ball has stirred up a commotion in Nebraska State league circles that is akin to a formal declaration of baseball war.

Stated briefly, the State leaguers assert that the Western has taken itself out of Lincoln and, under the laws, rules and customs of organized ball, is out to stay out; that the territory has been claimed by the Nebraska loop and the required fee paid over to National Secretary Farrell, wherefore the State league is in and intends to stay in.

Beltzer Goes to Bat.

James E. Beltzer of Lincoln, president of the reorganized Nebraska circuit, which is slated to hold its first meeting Monday morning at the Hotel Lincoln, stepped up to bat Saturday night with a statement that is tantamount to a declaration of war to the knife on the Dale Gear league.

"I can't see where the Western league gets the idea that it can keep a headlock grip on territory that it has abandoned," President Beltzer informed The Star. "If that is one of Dale Gear's schemes I can assure him that it isn't going to work. The Nebraska league has filed a claim on the local territory and paid the $30 fee fixed by national association rules. Therefore, it is our territory and we have a very definite plan to increase our circuit from six to eight clubs and operate a State league club in this city this year.

Nix to Foxy Scheme.

"I have been tipped off that the Western is planning to tie up the situation by means of an unpaid salary lien filed against the territory, the idea being to plant a Western club here after another year or so. That is a cunning little scheme, but it isn't going to work. I have conferred with Mike Sexton, president of the national association of minor leagues, and received assurance that when the Dick Breen club moved out of Lincoln, the debts went along with the club.

"If the Western magnates are looking for a fight, either in the civil or baseball courts, we are prepared to give them all they want. We have the trump cards and will take every trick.

Ready Build New Park.

"I read in The Star that Lee Keyser of Des Moines is coming to Lincoln Sunday to confer with the ball park directors on the business of taking over Dick Breen's lease on Landis Field. That won't be a State league affair, but if the scheme is to get control of the only available park in order to shut us out of Lincoln, then I'll say frankly to Mr. Keyser that his Western league has pulled just another one that isn't going to work.

"The plan of the State league is to arrange for the use of Landis Field for our 1928 games. In case any tricks are played, the purpose being to shut us out of the park, we shall build a new park. I am giving notice to this effect before any deal is made because I wish to warn the stockholders in the local park association that while we are anxious to be fair, we shall fight if forced to fight.

Gave Lincoln Raw Deal.

"I believe most of the park stockholders and a large majority of the fans would prefer to have State league ball. The Western league played the snitch when it pulled out of Lincoln and I can't see wherein Lincoln owes the Gear circuit even a little bit of consideration.

"I am not in on Mr. Keyser's plans or secrets. It was suggested to me today that the Des Moines magnate, in case he takes over the park lease, may be planning to apply for a franchise in the State league and to operate a club in Lincoln. If he has such an idea, I would not object and I am sure the league would give his application serious consideration.

"Farm" Plan Forbidden.

"But it would have to be understood that he must come in under the rules which will govern all other

HUSKER MATMEN LOSE DUAL MEET

Nebraska Wrestlers Bow to Oklahoma by Point Margin of 14-11.

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 11—(Special)—It took the final match to decide the dual meet between Sooner and Cornhusker wrestlers here today and the Oklahomas won a decision that sent the Nebraskans home with the losing end of a 11 to 14 score.

Two decisions and a fall had been marked up by each side when the two heavyweights crawled through the ropes for what proved the most desperately fought match of the meet.

Berry, Oklahoma's unlimited entry, nosed out a 3 minutes and 29 seconds decision over Konkey of Nebraska for the deciding margin, but, in settling the argument the big boys tore down the ring and pulled a big chunk out of the floor of Bennie Owen's new basketball court.

The Summary of Results.

115 pounds—Leach, Oklahoma, defeated Kosowiski, Nebraska, by fall in 5:57.

125 pounds—Mantooth, Oklahoma, defeated Karrer, Nebraska, by decision in 8:24.

Crete high school is in the field with another fine basketball team this season. Coach "Pop" Klein's Crete quintet has included Lincoln in its list of cage victims, the Saline county five having taken Lincoln's measure in two games. Omaha Tech, with a one-point extra period victory at Omaha, has been the only cage quintet to defeat Crete. Members of the squad:

HIGH CAGE FEST SEEN IN OFFING

State Basket Carnival In Capital City Only Month Distant.

Stiff Competition Ahead of Auburn in Peru Tournament.

BY GREGG MCBRIDE.

With the end of the official basketball season only two weeks away Nebraska high school cage quintets are taking stock of their chances of participation in the big basket classic, March 8, 9 and 10 in Lincoln. A 50 per cent victory record is the requirement for tourney entrance this year, and while a number of teams already are over the mark, the majority still are scurrying around for a few more wins in order to get under the wire.

The M-I-N-K tournament at Peru, under the auspices of Coach Lon Graf and his Bobcats, is a feature of the week's card in high school circles. Teams from Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and Kansas are expected to be represented in the meet.

Auburn Won Last Year.

Auburn copped class A laurels last year and, according to present indications, will defend its honors against a group including Corning, Ia., Bern and Nishna, Kas., Rockport, Mo., and Plattsmouth and Syracuse of Nebraska. Coach Fred Rothert's Plattsmouth cagers are in with an excellent record, while Syracuse has a long string of wins to its credit.

Omaha Tech will continue its Nebraska campaign by meeting Creighton Prep. The Drummond five also is booked for a mid-week engagement at Council Bluffs. Central tackles North and then meets Lincoln high in a return game. Omaha South travels to Grand Island to meet Coach Roy Pierce's fast Third City team which is enjoying a big rally.

Hastings In Lincoln.

Hastings invades the capital city to meet Lincoln and Havelock. University Place entertains Havelock for a return game by the Engineers and then moves down to Crete to meet the undefeated Saline county quintet.

Kimball plays at Chappell and Gering at Mitchell in the western conference headliners.

Kearney and Norfolk, leading Mid-State fives, must defend their honors this weekend. Norfolk travels to Columbus Friday and then returns home for a Saturday game with Beatrice. York plays Kearney on the latter's floor. Games this week:

Monday, Feb. 13.

Hay Springs at Crawford; Phillips at Marquette; Wakefield at Belden.

Tuesday, Feb. 14.

KEARNEY SPILLS PERU'S BOBCATS

KEARNEY, Neb., Feb. 11—Kearney Normal upset the dope bucket in the Nebraska Intercollegiate basketball race by defeating Peru Normal last night 32 to 24. The victory gave the Antelopes the lead in the conference race. Local scribes figure it was the first Kearney victory over Peru on the basketball court for 19 years.

Brass Tacks by Cy Sherman

Bagging the Spoils.
When Grapes Are Sour.
Hard Ones for Huskers.
Pausing to Shudder.

If University of Nebraska athletic authorities were grabbing for prestige with one hand while reaching with the other for that vacant date on the Army's schedule, it is strikingly evident that the Cornhuskers emerged from the negotiations with all the spoils in sight.

In addition to bagging the ball game, the same Huskers came forth from the scramble with about all the prestige in the book. As for example, the formal announcement that Nebraska and the West Point Cadets will joust next Nov. 24 at West Point was heralded in eight-column streamers in a large majority of the prominent newspapers from coast to coast.

But while elation and enthusiasm were bubbling over at Nebraska U., there was sorrow, even sourness, in camps of rival schools which had schemed to land the Army booking. As for example, the New York correspondent of a Chicago newspaper blasted his way into print with the following display of venom and bile:

"Nebraska thus wins a prominent place in eastern football, largely through the persistent efforts of a committee which came here some weeks ago from Lincoln, Neb., determined to camp in New York in close touch with the Army authorities until the final decision was made. The Army would have preferred a game with the University of Chicago, and such a game was under consideration, with Nebraska as second choice.

"Thus, Nebraska wins the climax date of the Army's season, and, given its customary strength on the field, probably will become one of the greatest figures in the eastern football situation in 1928."

The jest of the situation, if any, is on the imaginative souls who hoped that Chicago U. might be the one chosen for the Army vacancy. In the first place, the Chicago boosters failed to take Coach Alonzo Stagg into the reckoning. Stagg's 1928 slate was declared full two months or more ago and reliable information from the Windy City is to the effect that A. Alonzo never gave consent to the use of Chicago's name in connection with an Army game.

Another phase of the Nebraska-Army negotiations, not previously unfolded, is that the game was definitely arranged ten days in advance of the formal announcement, wherefore the charge of camping on the Soldiers' trail flattens out into a complete fizzle.

But while Nebraskans generally are pleased over the success of Director Gish in adding the Cadets to the Cornhuskers' slate, it should be apparent to Husker followers that the business of tacking on the combat at West Point involves responsibilities well calculated to command serious respect in the Nebraska camp.

In scheduling the Soldiers, the Cornhuskers now have a game slate much more pretentious than in any previous year in Nebraska annals. Rather oddly, the West Point folks view this phase from the same angle, though applying it to their own case, yet a comparison of the schedules very clearly suggests that the Cornhuskers must tackle the stiffer book.

The Army roster includes games with four secondary institutions—secondary, at least, in a football sense. This quartet includes Depauw, Carleton, Providence and Boston U. Then come the tough ones in Southern Methodist, Harvard, Notre Dame, Yale and Nebraska.

Conceding that the Army is justified in worrying a bit over that final five, what about Nebraska's card? The answer is that the Huskers will be going up against a buzzsaw right from the opening kickoff next October and must stay on that job to the final pistol shot of the 1928 campaign.

Starting with Iowa State, a sturdy foe last fall and apparently destined to be tougher than ever in '28, the Nebraska squad next may enjoy its only "breathing spell" of the season. This particular suggestion refers to the Montana State game, dated for Oct. 13.

The Bozeman clan isn't rated as a foe of first calibre, yet there is an element of doubt hanging around the edges by reason of the fact that Montana State has a team of giants in basketball this winter—a quint which has been cleaning up all opponents in the Rocky region and piling up prodigious scores.

Wherefore the Bozeman shouters have proclaimed that Coach Romney's cagers, if granted the big chance, could easily conquer anything in the Valley or Big Ten. The Montana State situation, therefore, conveys the hint that Nebraska's grid arrangement with the Bozeman clan may be anything but a "breather;" it suggests a foreboding possibility that the Huskers may do the "breathing" reposing on their shoulder blades while the Bozeman bozos are romping to touchdowns.

As for the remainder of the Cornhuskers' journey, one can only shudder. A close inspection of the slate discloses that Nebraska must stack up against Syracuse, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Pitt, Army and Kansas Aggies—seven strenuous assignments within a period of 40 days. The distinguished American general who once described war in graphic phrase surely lived 60 years and more ahead of his time. Anyway, he knew nothing of football nor of the Huskers' 1928 schedule.

Cotner Planning Track Campaign

Cotner college track prospects are looking up this year, although Coaches F. B. Moon and Sed Hartman have only a limited amount of material.

Five lettermen are in school and some of the new candidates have had good high school experience.

The new quarter-mile track will be curbed and cindered as soon as weather permits. The official call for track practice will be sounded at the close of basketball season, as a number of the cagemen are track athletes.

Clifford Howard of Guide Rock, pole vaulter, hurdler and jumper, will captain the squad. Other veterans are Epler, hurdler and jumper; Weaver, sprinter; George Miller, javelin thrower and Shoup, distance runner.

RHYNE GOES BACK TO PACIFIC LOOP

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11—Hal Rhyne, utility shortstop for Pittsburgh Pirates last season, will perform for the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league this year. Rhyne, a former Seal player, was sold to the Pirates two years ago in the same deal that took Paul Waner to the Smoky City. Announcement of the purchase was made by San Francisco club officials here today.

BIG BILL STILL AMERICA'S BEST

Tilden Ranked as Upper Notch Tennis Expert In U. S. A.

Lott, Chicago Youngster, Jumps From Ninth Place to Third.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—The annual rankings were issued late today by the United States Lawn Tennis association, in session here, and for the eighth consecutive time the name of William T. Tilden headed the list.

Inevitably, Miss Helen Wills of California again was crowned queen of the women players.

"Big Bill," aged quite a bit, his legs unable to carry him bounding over the court as once they did, his shots not so deadly, some of his championships stripped from him by a Frenchman ,still is the best America has to offer, in the opinion of the ranking committee.

Second place is given to Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., Tilden's mate in the Davis cup series and with him holder of the Wimbledon championship. The pair of them are given first ranking in the doubles as a result.

Lott in Third Notch.

Not unexpected in tennis circles was the ranking of George Lott, the Chicago youngster, as third in the singles—a jump from ninth last year. The youth last season finally fulfilled expectations and was the sensation of the courts. The other rankings:

Fourth—Manuel Alonso.
Fifth—Johnny Hennessey.
Sixth—John Van Ryn.
Seventh—Arnold Jones.
Eighth—Johnny Doeg.
Ninth—Louis White.
Tenth—Cranston Holman.

Little Bill Crossed Off.

For the first time in more than a dozen years the list does not contain the name of William M. "Little Bill" Johnston. The former champion and co-star of Tilden played little last season after finding it impossible to bring himself to form.

In the women's ranking, Mrs. Molla Mallory was placed second, Mrs. C. H. Chapin third, Miss Helen Jacobs fourth and Miss Eleanor Goss fifth.

Second place in the doubles rankings went to William M. Johnston and R. Norris Williams, third to Johnny Hennessey and Luke Williams, and fourth to George Lott and Johnny Doeg.

Tilden Urges Two Teams.

At the meeting today Tilden again urged that the United States place two teams in the field, one here and one abroad, to play in the Davis cup series.

"If only one team is named it will be a miracle if we bring back the cup,' he said. "With two teams we have a chance, anyhow."

GOLF SHARKS IN GRUDGE BATTLE

Sarazen and Hutchinson Clash Today in Florida For Fat Purse.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11—(U. P.)—Gene Sarazen and Jock Hutchinson, two of the leading professional golfers, will meet in a "grudge" match here Sunday for a large side bet. They will play 36 holes.

The feud between Sarazen and Hutchinson started when Gene won the $3,000 Miami open tournament by a one-stroke margin over Jock. They were all square at the seventeenth tee, with only two holes to play. As Hutchinson was about to drive, a moving picture cameraman began to grind his camera, and the noise so distracted Jock that he halted in the middle of his swing. On his next effort he drove the ball out of bounds and took a five on the hole. Sarazen had a four.

Millionaire Horns In.

Charles Smalley, Chicago millionaire, promptly offered to wager that Jock could defeat Sarazen over 36 holes. The bet was taken on behalf of Sarazen by George Ade, the humorist, and Jess Andrews, the Indiana author.

Sarazen is rated one of the best match players in the world. He is the nemises of Walter Hagen, whom he has beaten more times than any other player.

TECH HI TRIMS CAPITAL CITY

Drummond Cagers Grab Off 19-13 Victory In Exciting Games.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

A Lincoln high basketball team which has been floundering about rather badly for the past two weeks did an about-face Saturday night at Irving Junior high school, giving Omaha Tech, its traditional rival, a nip-and-tuck battle before bowing to the Maroon invaders, 19-13.

The game was the most thrilling of the Lincoln campaign this season the Red and Black tossers trailing until the start of the final quarter, when Lincoln forged ahead, only to be swept aside by a powerful Tech scoring machine. In the last three minutes, the Techsters poured in a free throw and three rapid baskets to put the game on ice.

Worthing Closely Guarded.

The guarding of Batty and the basketwork of Witte featured the Lincoln play, while Worthing and Weiner looked the best for Tech. Worthing was closely watched by the Lincoln guards, but broke loose for two baskets, while Weiner contributed the long basket which turned the tables in Tech's favor and was the signal for the late rally. Weiner's floor game also was excellent, the sandy - haired Tech athlete bringing his high school athletic career to a fine close.

Lincoln started the game with a stalling offense which sought to draw out the Tech front line of attack. During the first six minutes of play, each team took one shot at the basket.

Tech Scores First.

A bad pass gave Tech out-of-bounds and a set-up shot by Swoboda gave Tech the first two points. Late in the first quarter Worthing made good two free throws to enable Tech to set the pace 4-0 at the end of the period.

Batty's free throw and Witte's side basket kept Lincoln in the running and the first half ended with Tech on the top side of an 8-6 score.

Weiner opened the third quarter with a free throw and Murray was loose for a close-in effort. Murray's

Chicago Cub Vet.

CHARLIE GRIMM.

Charley Grimm will be the only veteran in the Cub infield next season, and the former Cardinal and Pirate star, a demon around the initial sack, will steady the inner works of the team considerably.

Grimm was never much of a terror to National league pitchers, but his last year's batting average of .311 indicates that he may have to be watched by the moundsmen from now on.

BOOTBLACK UP TO FISTIC PEAK

Tony Canzoneri Climbs to Heights as Champ of Feathers.

Italian Youth From Way Down South Delivers Goods In Ring.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—It might be well the next time you are in New Orleans if you do not chide your bootblack when he lands a left hook with the toe of his brush flush on the "button" of your corn. Instead, you should smile conciliatingly, tip him with a lavish dime, lift your hat in parting and maybe he will like you enough so that he won't really mind when, a year or two later, you pay your way in to see him win the featherweight championship of the world.

It wasn't so many years ago that Pete Herman quit bootblacking in New Orleans because he realized he was on his way to the featherweight championship and, under the circumstances, he just couldn't give his best efforts to the profession of his youth.

Hot Blood In His Veins.

Today, Herman is a ring tragedy, a blind man virtually, but his purple robe of royalty is draped about the shoulders of Tony Canzoneri and thus the second generation of a ring lineage has been established. Tony, like Herman, has the hot blood of Italy in his veins. He, too, is an ex-bootblack and the parallel is complete with the statement that he came from the stalls of New Orleans.

Canzoneri is the new featherweight champion today because he ran up such a lead on points over Benny Bass, the Philadelphia contender, in the first 10 rounds that it hardly was necessary to fight the other five. The only man in the house who didn't think so was Bass and he closed with such a rush that he all but caught the distressed Canzoneri at the wire, the latter just lasting to get a deserved decision.

New York Scores Again.

Thus, did the New York commission score over the National Boxing association, the latter having nominated Bass as its champion, while New York declared for Tony. The N. B. A. also finished second with Jimmy Slattery in his more or less recent light-heavyweight title fight with Tommy Loughran, the New York candidate. Tony is the first legitimate featherweight champion since Kid Kaplan resigned 15 months ago.

Bass blew his own fight last night. He folded up like a tobacco pouch for six rounds after Tony dropped him for a count of eight in the third round, and while the Philadelphia was doing his buck and wing, Canzoneri so completely took the play away from him that he never quite got it back.

Tony Slow Toward Finish.

With the exception of the twelfth, it was all Bass from the tenth round on, Tony slowing down to a saunter under Bass' heavy rights to the body. By this time, Benjamin had discovered that Tony no longer could hurt him and so he stood and slugged it out with more than an even break on the points. He had Canzoneri visibly abashed in each of the last three rounds, but a late start is often a vain one. It was this time, anyhow. At that, he might have taken Tony in another round or two, but since they pay off here at the end of the fifteenth, I really don't see what can be done about it. Bass' rally merely served to make a fine fight out of what had been a good one.

Benny Rides to Floor.

Benjamin started like a winner and took the first two rounds with a series of stinging lefts and rights to Tony's durable profile. Bass also scored with a natty right cross at the start of the third, but three rights to the stomach did him practically no good, and while he was debating their effect, Canzoneri clipped hi mwith a left hook on the jowl and he sat down. He was up at eight, but the bell rang simultaneously and that probably saved a lot of wear and tear on the shoulder blades.

Tony had his chance to finish his man in the next round, but he fumbled. As Bass' head cleared, he had the foresight to purchase a pair of roller skates and five of the next six rounds went to Tony almost by default, the other being even.

Bass Shifts to Body.

Phil Glassman finally prevailed on his entry to shoot that right of his to the body, beginning with the tenth and, from that point onward, Bass was very much in the money. He moved away from Tony's leads to step in on the rebound with the right counter and, as the bell ended the tenth, Canzoneri was bent almost double and weaving from punishment. Bass landed seven hard rights to take the eleventh and, after blowing the twelfth, he was all over Canzoneri for the final three rounds.

But only a clean knockdown could get Benny the duke by that time. However, you knock this Tony down about as readily as you tip over the average freight car.

DuTeau Present at Omaha Banquet of Chevrolet Dealers

Alfred Du Teau, local Chevrolet dealer just returned from Omaha where he attended the annual Chevrolet convention and banquet, with 700 other dealers of the midwest. The gathering was one of the series of sales meetings conducted by officials of the company on a nation-wide circuit, the primary purpose being to conduct an educational campaign which would result in better cooperation between the dealers and the factories in their plan to market 1,000,000 cars in 1928. H. J. Klingler, general sales manages of the Chevrolet Motor company, was the toastmaster and in his principal address dwelt on certain features which he believed would be important for Chevrolet in 1928.

"I am confident of selling that 1,000,000 cars this year," the Chevrolet chief declared.

Mr. Du Teau is very optimistic for he believes that the midwest faces a prosperous year and will sell more than its full quota of Chevrolet cars this year.

The meeting was most elaborate and comprehensive. Speeches were illustrated in the form of playlets depicting the proper procedure to be followed in the successful operation of a retail automobile business. More than a carload of show equipment with a special show crew was brought to Omaha to provide the setting for the meeting.

Following the afternoon meeting the 700 dealers were guests of the Chevrolet Motor Co. at a banquet at the Fontenelle hotel where H. J. Klingler, presided as host. The day's program was the ninth of a series of forty-three similar sessions that are being held this winter and spring from coast to coast.

"All 7 of our family voted New Hupmobile first in secret ballot"

Oklahoma banker tells how his household selected the Six of the Century

"Our family of seven went shopping for a new car," reports a prominent Oklahoma banker. "We inspected all the well known makes before attempting a decision. That evening we decided to take a secret ballot on first, second and third choice. When the votes were counted the Hupmobile had received 7 for first choice—a unanimous decision."

When a new car makes such an impression it is no wonder that people stand in line to buy, offer premiums for immediate delivery and do other strange things that have not happened since the automobile was a baby and the century had just been born.

As a matter of recorded fact, this creation of new beauty and advanced mechanical excellence has so startled and delighted the motor world that it has been aptly christened the Six of the Century.

You'll find it a deceiving car as well as a beautiful car; for you will assume, as soon as you see it, that it is well above the $2000 price. But it is well below and that is one of its pleasantest surprises.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN

by "Columbus"

The position occupied by Nebraska as a center of breeding was most thoroughly demonstrated during the racing season of 1927 by the number of 2:10 trotters bred in this state. Of the new 2:10 trotters for 1927, seven were bred in Nebraska, five in California, three in Kansas, two in Missouri and one each in Iowa and South Dakota. According to that statement, Nebraska furnished seven of the 14 new 2:10 trotters of 1927 that were bred west of the Mississippi river, or exactly one-half. Furthermore, another of the new 2:10 trotters was owned in this state, though bred in Indiana.

Of the new 2:10 pacers of 1927, Nebraska furnished seven, California six, Iowa three, Missouri three, Colorado two, Kansas one, South Dakota one and Oregon one. It is likewise true that the fastest new 2:10 pacer bred west of the Mississippi river was Zev McKlyo, 2:05¾, a product of Midway Farm, Kearney, Neb. As stated recently in this column, Belle McKlyo, 2:04, also bred at Midway Farm, was the leading Nebraska-bred money winning pacer of 1927. We now learn that she was the largest money winning pacer of 1927 bred in the west.

While writing of money winners it may well to mention that of the leading money winning trotters of any season from 1900 to 1927, only three were bred west of the Missouri river, they being Dudie Archdale, 2:03¼, bred in Nebraska; Sweet Marie, 2:02, and Sonoma Girl, 2:04¼, bred in California. In 1904, Sweet Marie led all other money trotters, with $23,825 to her credit, and in 1907 Sonoma Girl was best with $28,950. Dudie Archdale's best year and her first as a race winner, was 1910 with her total winnings amounting to $29,285. This paragraph shows how difficult it has been for western-bred trotters to assume the lead as best money winners of any given season and is a boost for Nebraska.

When we noticed in the new Year Book that Peter Hancock, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, had reduced his previous record of 2:09¼, pacing, to 2:08¼, as a result of racing in 1927, it brought to mind that genial gentleman Matt Robinson, living at West Point, Neb., in earlier years, who might have been credited with breeding Peter Hancock had not death came along too early. Matt Robinson, a second David Harum, bred and owned until his death the speed producing mare Maggie Hancock, dam of Peter Hancock, etc. by Gregory the Great, 2:23¼.

Prior to his death, Mr. Robinson made arrangements to mate Maggie Hancock with Peter McKlyo and later Mr. Gould purchased the mare of the widow. For many years an ardent admirer of the trotting-bred horse, Matt Robinson would have enjoyed to a degree not common to all men the honor of being the breeder of a three-year-old pacer capable of gaining a record of 2:09¼ and, in addition, of gaining a world's record for age and gait in a dash race of one and a half miles, as Peter Hancock did in 1924. During his life with the trotters, Mr. Robinson trained and raced many but the most noted in many respects was Bobby Dunbar, raced in the early days of Nebraska. That trotter ma le history for his owner and himself, and a story of his many campaigns would furnish good reading.

A breeding establishment that passed years ago and is now forgotten by horsemen of Nebraska, at least to a majority, was located near North Platte and owned by M. J. Keith. At that ranch were found scores of well bred mares and several stallions that were purchased for their presumed qualities as sires of speed. Although a few standard performers came from the Keith ranch, its success was not marked, especially in view of the many high class mares owned there. Following the death of Mr. Keith and the dispersal of his stud of mares and stallions, Gov. Aldrich, then living at David City, purchased a car load of the best mares and shipped them to his home town, disposing of many and retaining a few. From that bunch of mares a number of great race horses was secured, being positive evidence that the proper combination was not possible at the Keith ranch. We venture the assertion that what has been written of the Keith ranch at North Platte is news to many readers of The Star, as 30 years is quite a period of time—long enough, at any rate, to make of some things only memories.

Opportunities are of vital necessity if a stallion is to become successful as a sire of speed and those advantages are not afforded all stallions worthy of patronage. We are thinking of Lobasco, 2:10¼, at one time champion race stallion among trotters. Lobasco was the first champion trotter owned in Nebraska, but his success as a sire was not marked. In fact, that great trotter accomplished really nothing in the way of siring speed and his lack of success was due to the man who owned him—a man that was not capable of appreciating the greatness of a horse such as Lobasco was. Men like N. J. Ronin, Ed. Gould, W. O. Southwick and others whose names might be mentioned would have made Lobasco famous as a sire.

Father D. B. O'Connor of Havelock advises us that The Triumph, 2:08¼, brought to Lincoln as a yearling by H. C. Wittman, is well liked at his new home in New Zealand. In short, so well thought of is that stallion that the farm where he is owned is called Mardella Stud, after the dam of The Triumph. Mardella was a great brood mare by Del Mar, 2:06¾, by Electioneer, 125, and, in addition to The Triumph, 2:08¼, is dam of The Design, 2:08¼, an own brother to The Triumph.

It is also worthy of note that both sons of Mardella are owned in New Zealand and also are appreciated by brood mare owners in that far-away country. Some of the choicest foals at Mardella Stud are sons and daughters of The Triumph and as harness racing is very popular in that dominion it is safe to predict that numerous winners eventually will come from the loins of that handsome and fast son of The Exponent, 2:11¾.

FIGHTING CANUCK SITTING PRETTY

Jack Delaney Very Much In Fistic Picture as Title Contender.

Has Knockout Punch and That Counts Most In Ring Affairs.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.)—Give a man a punch—and I don't mean on the nose but in the hand—and you can guarantee to make of him, overnight, the least illogical of all contenders in the division of heavyweight boxing. This may not have been so in the days of yore when men were hitters but it can't miss today. It is the sole reason that Jack Dempsey, aged and tottering though he may be, remains stand-out heavyweight contender, regardless of whether he cares to contend or not.

And, by the same token, it leaves Jack Delaney, French-Canadian gent with the Celtic moniker, sitting in behind the dealer in the Sharkey-Heeney-Delaney-Risko elimination stakes in March. Do you think, for example, that Sharkey will knock out Risko or vice versa? Neither do we. Do you suppose Jack Delaney might stop Heeney? He very naturally might. Heeney is easy to hit and Delaney has the punch. Voila! One first class contender!

Others Outsmarted.

It seems to me that the Delaney camp has out-smarted the others in picking its spot in the eliminations. Sharkey, for example, didn't want any part of Risko, but had to take him. The latter is tough and Sharkey merely is a fair hitter. The result should be 15 uninspiring rounds, regardless of who wins. The old knockout, the greatest "convincer" in boxing, doesn't figure to lend its more or less artificial aid to the occasion.

It was the lack of anything even suggesting a knockout that made the recent Sharkey-Heeney bout almost a double elimination. Neither exhibited the all-necessary punch. But Delaney has it and Heeney has a rather accommodating lack of defense. Voila, as we remarked before. It wouldn't be at all astonishing if Delaney emerged from the general excitement as the biggest figure of the quartet.

Anything Possible.

Anything, in fact, is possible with a man like that. He was passe and discredited a few months ago. Today, he is very much in the portrait. Why? The punch again.

It doesn't make much difference to the buttonhole makers who the punchee may have been. All they want to know is who did the hitting and in which round did they bear the remains tenderly out. Delaney has been rebuilt by virtue of knockouts over three men who were ready for the cleaners, anyhow.

Call of Bank Note.

Berlenbach, all washed up long ago, was stopped in a Chicago ring and everybody said, what of it? But when Delaney knocked Sully Montgomery silly in the first minute of play, they leaned forward in the chairs and said, "Ah." This was very significant. It is the love call of the wild bank bill, summoned to his mate—to the highly attuned ear of a promoter, the most intriguing sound that issues from a human throat.

Montgomery was no bargain, in truth, but that doesn't enter into the matter at all. The sock makes them forget everything.

K. O. the Big Clincher.

Therefore, when Delaney disposed of Jack Humbeck, the Belgian, in seven rounds, the evidence was absolutely unassailable. Humbeck couldn't lick anybody in his previous starts in this country. But why be cavtious. They don't want to know who it was; only when and how.

All of which seems to indicate that you can't stop a come-on from coming right on. And, as to that, nobody wants to.

BRITON BRINGS SPEED MARVEL

Capt. Campbell Comes to Try for Record On Florida Beach.

BY J. C. OESTREICHER.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(I. N. S.)—A number of remarkable departures in automobile construction are embodied in the new racing car in which Captain Malcolm Campbell, famous racing driver, will defend the British speed record against American challengers at Daytona, Florida.

Captain Campbell outlined the design of his new car in an interview with International News Service, when he expressed the belief that the machine would not fail in its attempt to uphold the speed record of 203 miles an hour set last year by Major Seagrave.

The principal characteristic of the new car is the fact that its oil and gasoline tanks are unburstable. Besides, this, it has an entirely new type of gear box, allowing wider range and control and a detachable fin or rudder for direction and stability.

"I have cristened my new car the "Bluebird'," Captain Campbell said. "She has cost me ten times more than I anticipated, but she is worth it.

Plenty of Confidence.

"I have the greatest confidence in her but what she is likely to do in the way of stop-speed figures I cannot say, although I believe she is capable of tremendous speed.

"The detachable fin is very necessary," the driver declared, "to maintain direction and stability, for when a car is really going she begins to 'float' as it were, and it is difficult to keep your direction."

Captain Campbell realizes that he does not face an easy task in meeting the best racing drivers of America.

"Major Seagrave, with his 203 miles an hour, has put the Americans on their mettle," he said. "America has some of the cleverest engineers in the world, with unlimited resources at their disposal.

"There will be at least two American cars against me. One is a car fitted with three big Liberty engines capable of developing 1,500 horsepower.

"The other is a twin-engined Stutz of comparatively low horsepower, but the very latest in efficiency an distreamline design — more like a projectile than a motorcar."

Captain Campbell, when departing for America Feb. 1, was accompanied by four mechanics.

IS CALLING FOUL ON CROWD FAIR?

One Rule of Basketball Neither Logical Nor Just.

BY C. E. McBRIDE.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Feb. 11—Is the basketball rule that gives an official the power to call a foul against a team for unbecoming conduct on the part of a crowd or certain individuals in that crowd a fair measure?

An emotional crowd packed closely around a court, with a furious game in progress. The referee calls a foul. The crowd roars, an emotional roar of dismay and chagrin rather, or at least more, than a distinct disapproval of the referee's decision. The referee calls a foul on the crowd and another free throw is made. Perhaps not knowing what it all is about, the crowd keeps up its roar and the referee calls another foul. And so on and so on.

Is it a fair rule that permits such a thing?

Suppose the game is in a city where the crowd may be more than the strictly college crowd. Should the home team be made to suffer for the behavior of spectators who have nothing in common with the home team? In the smaller college towns it is easier to control the crowd; in the cities it hardly is possible.

Unfair and Unnecessary.

Charles W. Corsaut, coach of the Kansas Aggies, answers "no," to that question. He believes that the rule permitting the fouling of a crowd is unfair and unnecessary.

"It is unjust to a team that fouls be called against it for rowdy behavior of spectators, the players not being in any way responsible for that conduct," Corsaut says. "It ought to be an unnecessary rule. The official should be able to control the crowd, which always in the main is composed of true sportsmen. Quigley seems to be able to do it. In a recent game the crowd roared at one of 'Quigs's' decisions. 'Quig' stopped, put the ball down, raised his hand for quiet and said simply, 'I expect all of my decisions to be greeted with respect.' That was all. He called no foul. That hint of the courtesy he expected was enough for the crowd. Its behavior was excellent from then on."

In cases where the crowd is so unruly it cannot be controlled it is up to the athletic director and coach to take a hand. That is the opinion of Corsaut. It is a matter of education.

Improving In Valley.

Coach Corsaut says that the standard of basketball is improving in the Valley.

"I know a team this year that five or six years ago could have cleaned up all the teams of the conference, with the possible exception of the University of Kansas," Corsaut says. "But it is different now."

Corsaut would like the system of officiating, an official at each end of the court, each taking up the play as it comes into his territory, that is now in vogue in Valley conference games.

"It's a great system," Corsaut says. "Most fouls in basketball are committed from behind or in front, few from the side, and with an official in front and one behind they're getting all the fouls. Our games have been smoothly run and few fouls have been missed."

Rougher and Rougher.

Basketball in the Valley is getting rougher and rougher.

That is the opinion of Charles Corsaut, coach of the Aggies. He does not mean dirtier and dirtier, but rougher and rougher, the switch to the man to man style of play being the main answer as Corsaut sees it.

"The man to man style naturally makes for a rougher game," Coach Corsaut says. "It brings more bodily contact at greater speed and it naturally follows that the play is rougher although I would not have it said that the resultant roughness is in any way intentional—it is just a natural consequence of the man to man style."

"One big result of the man to man style," says the Aggie coach, "is a brilliance of individual play. The game as it seems to be developing now calls more and more for the smart player and the result of many games hangs on the ability of one or two players to outsmart their man to man opponents."

HAVELOCK WINS OVER SOUTH SOO

Engineers Win Weird Contest By a 6-4 Score Margin.

SOUTH SIOUX CITY, Neb., Feb. 11—Havelock defeated South Sioux City high in basketball here tonight by a 6 to 4 margin. The game took a peculiar turn, South Sioux City playing a stalling game to hold the score down and Havelock being content to maintain its early lead.

South Sioux City gained the opening tip-off and then took the ball into the back court, holding possession there for four minutes. Fogarty broke through and scored a basket and Shipman scored again to give Havelock a 4-0 lead.

Play Stalling Game.

South Sioux City tried the delayed offense again in the second quarter and Meredith finally scored, the half ending with Havelock ahead, 4 to 2.

After the opening tip-off Wilson of South Sioux City retired to the back court and held the ball for eight minutes without making a pass. Havelock adopted the same tactics in the fourth period, but South Sioux City opened up in the last two minutes and Ogdrun tied the count with a long shot. Warga's basket in the last few seconds of play won the game. Score:

DOANE REPEATS ON METHODISTS

Tigers Trim Wesleyan By 20-11 Margin At Uni. Place.

The Doane College cage quint, still flushed with a sensational win over Hastings, rose to the heights Saturday night in its brilliant 20 to 11 victory over Nebraska Wesleyan at the latter's floor.

Featuring the battle was the airtight defensive play of the rivals, Wesleyan compiling only a pair of field goals—none in the second half. Doane garnered only two baskets after the intermission.

It was Captain Sanderson, nearing the close of his last season for the Bengals, that led his team to the triumph. He put his mates in the lead shortly after the tip-off with a mid-floor tally and was a prime factor in keeping it for his team. Besides being high point man of the game he played a vital role in the stellar defensive exhibition of his mates.

Ragged Basket Work.

Seven of Wesleyan's eleven points were earned from the foul line. Calvert, although tossing no field goals, was high point man for his mates with four markers.

Doane had the edge at almost all times except in the latter part of the first quarter. With the score standing 9 to 2 for Doane at the end of the first ten minutes of play, the Methodists produced a rally that threatened to tie the score, but fell shy a pair of points. During that brief space of time Wesleyan registered almost all of its scores. The count stood 11 to 9 for Doane at the half.

free throw spotted Tech to a 12-6 advantage. Witte was fouled as he tossed a basket and when he counted from the foul line, Lincoln crowded within three points of the Tech total. Witt's field goal whittled the Tech margin down to 12-11 as the third quarter ended.

Lincoln Once In Front.

The final period was played during a riot of noise and Lincoln had an excellent opportunity to drive home the winning points early in the period. Boulder slipped in a basket after a minute of play to give Lincoln a 14-13 lead. Witte was beneath the basket for a set-up basket but muffed the opportunity and Weiner took the ball off the backboard, dribbled to mid-court and sank a long shot to swing the margin again in Tech's favor.

When Worthing slipped in a free throw, the sudden turn of affairs seemed to throw the Lincoln machine out of gear and the Techsters then went on a scoring rampage, Weiner and Murray breaking the Lincoln defense to score from the floor. Score:

Local Reserves Trim Temple Hi

The Lincoln Reserves raised their percentage in the Greater Lincoln league when they defeated the Temple high aggregation 20 to 16, in a cage contest preliminary to the Lincoln-Omaha Tech tussle Saturday evening. Five minutes of the first quarter had passed before either team was able to score, Ayers sinking an under basket shot for Lincoln. Crause then started the scoring for Temple and his teammates had run up a 6 to 2 lead on the Lincoln team before the quarter ended.

Coach Overman's reserve team got down to business at the beginning of the second period and held an 11 to 7 advantage at the end of the first half. The Lincoln quintet stretched its lead still further in the third canto, but the Temple outfit made a desperate rally in the last of the fourth quarter, only to fall short of the needed points. NEBRASKA LEAGUE PREPARES FOR WAR clubs, by which I mean that the State league would not permit him to operate a 'farm' for his Western league club at Des Moines. In the Nebraska circuit, the league, not any of the individual clubs, will have title to all the ball players.

"Mr. Keyser is an experienced baseball man of good reputation in professional circles. He could be a valuable asset to our league and I am sure the Nebraska circuit would give him a hearty welcome.

"But it might as well be finally understood that the Western isn't going to be permitted to give our league a raw deal, such as it recently gave Lincoln. We know our rights and intend to have all that is coming to us under the rules of organized ball."

State League Session.

Arrangements for the Nebraska league session were completed Saturday by President Beltzer. The State loop directors are scheduled to assemble Monday at 10 a. m. at the Hotel Lincoln, with President Beltzer presiding and George R. Mann of Lincoln acting as secretary. Every one of the six Nebraska cities in the reorganized league—Beatrice, Fairbury, McCook, North Platte, Grand Island and Norfolk—will be represented by one or more delegates. Only the club presidents, already chosen, will have voting power.

HOCKEY BATTLES START OLYMPICS

Ice Teams Get Together In Opening Card Of Winter Sports.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 11. —(UP)— The ninth Olympiad, opening in a driving snow storm today, gave to France, England and Switzerland initial honors in the 1928 games, which will end this summer in Amsterdam.

Spectators and representatives of 25 nations, awaiting administration of the amateur oath by President Edmund Schultess of the Swiss confederation, formed a white company as the first events, the international ice hockey matches, opened.

The first hockey scores:

France, 2; Hungary, 0; England, 7; Belgium, 3; Switzerland, 4; Austria 4; Sweden 3; Czecho-Slovakia, 0.

Austria and Switzerland's struggle for supremacy on the ice formed a dramatic opening day. Austria led 4 to 1 as the first period ended. Switzerland overtook her opponent and scored a fifth goal just as the game was concluded. The point which would have given Switzerland a victory was not allowed, however, The tie will be played off.

Skating Contests Monday.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Feb. 11, —(I. N. S.) — O'Neil Farrell, crack Chicago skater will pit his speed against Bertil Backman, Finnish skating champion, in the 500-meter skating event Monday, it was decided today when the drawings were made for Monday's program of winter sports competition in the Olympic games, which opened today. In the 5,000 meter race, Farrell will be matched against the French champion, Charles Thaon.

The 500 meter event will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning, and the 5,000 meter event at 2:30 in the afternoon.

Champion vs. Champion

The 500-meter race promises to be the most interesting contest of the day, as Largen, the world's champion skater, is matched against Thunberg of Finland, the Olympic champion in this event.

The complete drawings for Monday were as follows:

O'Neil Farrell (United States) drew Georgio Borani (Italy); alentine Bialis (United States) drew Fritz Mober, (Austria) and Eddie Murphy (United States) drew Decio Trovati (Italy) in the 500 metres race.

In the 5,000-meters race, Murphy drew Moser; Paffe drew C. Burmeister (Esthonia); Farrell drew Charles Thoan (France) and Bialis drew Rudolph Reidel (Austria).

BASS GAME GUY EVEN IN DEFEAT

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(I. N. S.) —Well, maybe this fellow Benny Bass really doesn't like the going when it becomes rough, tough and distressful, as so many have alleged to be the case, but, if so, the young man succeeded in fooling a lot of people last night during the course of his attempt to beat Tony Canzoneri for the featherweight title.

As matters stood today, Bass in some naive quarters was almost a hallowed martyr to the cause of Spartan gameness, while the very least that could be said for him was that he made a brave, though losing fight of it.

Bone Tale Sounds Fishy.

First reports had Bass in a hospital with a broken collar bone on the right side, said to have been sustained in the third round. But calm reflection started the boys guessing how many punches a man with a broken collar bone might care to start with the hand so affected. He started about a thousand of them and finished about 998 by conservative estimate. As a matter of fundamental fact, he seemed to prefer the right and, speaking as one bone to another, that simply isn't being done in the circumstances mentioned.

Right Side Injured.

The belief that Bass injured his right side is supported by the dialogue in his corner between rounds. But the fact that he almost had Tony out in the thirteenth with punches from this same right hand repudiates the claim that the side of the body in question could have been injured so badly as stated. The only pain that I noticed in connection with Bass' right-handers was registered in toto by Canzoneri's countenance.

Benny Plenty Game.

For my part, I think Bass gave an exhibition of gameness that needed no melodramatics by way of further proof. His collar bone or something on the right side really was injured, but the boy never stopped swinging after the ninth round. Even an admittedly game fighter, and previous to last night Bass wasn't supposed to qualify in that league, didn't have to continue under those circumstances.

He didn't have to get up, either, after that knockdown in the third. The bell ended the round at that juncture, but Bass was on his feet, ready for more, at the time.

Both Eyes In Mourning.

The further fact that with a right eye badly cut and the left almost closed, he came on in the late rounds and almost stole the decision hardly makes him out a complacent loser, particularly in view of the fact that he was taking the play away from one of the hardiest souls in all boxing.

Considering the matter from left to right, there doesn't seem to be anything for it but to rewrite the popular verdict on the state of Bass's morale. I don't care what he was in the past at that. All I know is that he was a good, game guy last night.

FEBRUARY 20 IS DATE AUTO SHOW

Plan 1928 Omaha Exhibit Bigger and Better Than Ever Before.

Display at Auditorium Will Feature Annual Review of Styles.

This year's Omaha auto show, to be held at the Omaha auditorium, the week of February 20, is causing keener interest than any similar event ever held here, according to A. B. Waugh, veteran manager, who has handled the big show for years.

At no time in the history of automobiles, has there been a greater number of new cars on the market than this year. During the last few months, drastic improvements have been made in many models. You might be thoroughly familiar with all of last year's models, yet be almost entirely uninformed about the 1928 cars, so great have been the alterations.

All of the leading makes of automobiles distributed in the middlewest, in many of their models, will be assembled at the Omaha show, Feb. 20 to 25. There will be more new models shown this year than at any former show.

Here one may inspect all of the new 1928 models. You may see for yourself the changes and improvements in carburetors, ignition systems, steering wheels, braking systems, instrument boards, and body styles.

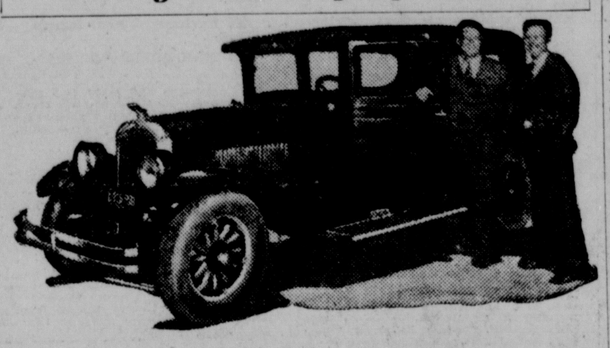
A feature of interest in automobile design this year is the fact that on many cars there is furnished standard equipment such as heat indicators, four-wheel brakes, gas strainers, air cleaners, shock absorbers, high compression heads.

Many of these new models are not yet on display at many of the smaller cities and towns in the Omaha territory. That is the reason Omaha auto show officials are making plans to entertain the greatest out-of-Omaha crowd which has ever visited an Omaha show. A orchestra, widely known by their radio performances will play each afternoon and evening.

So much favorable comment was made regarding the style review during former Omaha auto shows, that this event is to be featured again, each evening of the show, at 9:30. An augmented style revue has been arranged which will be of intense interest to the lady visitors. All the newest advance styles in gowns, coats, wraps and lingerie, will be displayed on live models amid elaborated stage settings.

The new "speaking movies" are being shown at several theaters. This is the very newest development of the movie industry. Full feature pictures are shown, the voices of the players being heard simultaneously with the picture, greatly increasing the interest of the picture.

Gehrig Likes Flying Cloud.



It won't be long now before spring training will start in the baseball camps of the big leagues and the gentleman shown in the photograph above, about to enter a Reo Flying Cloud, wil ltake the mothballs out of his uniform in anticipation of another, successful season on the diamond. For he is none other than "Larrupin" Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, mighty swatter of the pill and all-around player deluxe.

During a recent visit to California, Lou went for a spin in a Reo Flying Cloud, and expressed his astonishment at the easy handling of the Flying Cloud and praised its power and efficient brakes.

At Gerhig's left is Wilbur Cooper, famous southpaw of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Wilbur says he likes to drive, as well as throw, a fast one—so he is spending the winter in California selling Reo pleasure cars.

REVISE PRICES HUDSON-ESSEX

Reductions on All Models Announced; Several New Body Types.

The Hudson Motor Car company, announces interesting new prices on all Hudson and Essex models. The most important revision in prices is in the Essex Super-Six four door sedan, which is now priced at $795 as against the former price of $835. The Essex coach is now $735 and the Essex coupe $7745, with rumble seat $30 extra. These are all the usual Detroit list prices.

On the Hudson chassis two new custom models are to be offered this year, a Voctoria, with seats for four passengers and a five-passenger landau sedan, both priced at $1,650. The seven -passenger custom sedan at $1,950 and the standard five-passenger sedan at $1,450 complete the models mounted on the 127-inch wheelbase chassis.

In addition to the coach and sedan models on the 118-inch chassis, priced respectively at $1250 and $1325, there is an attractive coupe at $1265 as an entirely new model. This also may be had with rumble seat for $30 extra. Open sport models on both Hudson and Essex will be announced at a later date.

All the new 1928 bodies are lower, longer and with clearer vision.

Hudson Company Starts Twentieth Year of Progress

An optimistic view of 1928 as an automobile year is expressed by R. B. Jackson president of the Hudson Motor Car company, in his remarks to Hudson stockholders, which accompanied the annual report. He said, in part:

"We are now beginning our twentieth year, with our factories well rounded out, both as to personnel and physical equipment.

"Our dealers throughout the United States have been increased in numbers and strength, affording us one of the best distributing systems in the country.

"We have appreciated the value of export business and have persistently developed it for years. Our foreign distributors are well organized and financially capable. To encourage them and at the same time offer our product at competitive prices, we have established assembly plants in several strategic locations. As a result regardless of the great drive for foreign business, we have maintained our position. During this period, we have increased this export trade from nine to fourteen per cent of our total volume.

"It is our belief that 1928, the twentieth Hudson year, will bring marked results in our further growth and success. The company's history supports this confidence."

LITSEY PRAISES NEW CHEVROLET

Manager Large Drivurself Corporation Describes Popularity.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 12—Wholesale replacement of former Chevrolet models with the new 1928 line is now under way by the Hertz Drivurself corporation, one of the largest fleet users of passenger automobiles in the world, which controls the operation of automobile rental stations in more than 300 representative cities in the United States and Canada, according to advices received here from Chas. W. Litsey, operating vice-president and general manager of the Hertz organization, with headquarters at Chicago.

"Replacement of old models with new ones is a regular periodical event with us, made possible by the extreme popularity of our Chevrolets," said Mr. Litsey. "This means that they are almost constantly on the road, and as a result they pile up a tremendous mileage total at the end of a year. In addition, their low initial cost and economy of operation enable us to pay out in Hertz mileage our full investment within twelve months, despite the fact that our Chevrolet rental rates are lower than on any other make of car in our service.

"During 1928 practically all former Chevrolet models will be replaced with the 'Bigger and Better' line in order that full advantage of the added features in the new car may be available for Hertz patrons. More than 3,000 Chevrolets are now in use by Hertz stations, and this number will be considerably augmented during the year because of the insistent calls for this make of car.

"We have used Chevrolets in the Hertz organization consistently since our inception. They now make up approximately one-fourth the total number of cars in our service."

AGED MICHIGAN MOTORIST ONCE DROVE OX-TEAM

Ninety-one years old and still driving an automobile!

Alden Ward Chase, a resident of White Pigeon, Mich., who says he will still be driving a car nine years from now when he attains the century mark, is a surprisingly spry and alert exponent of "keeping up with the times."

The hand that 80 years ago had snapped a bull whip during an ox-team trek from Indiana to Michigan has acquired and retained the art of guiding a motor car in modern traffic. He was 82 years old when he obtained his first driver's license and proudly exhibits the document to anyone who may question his age.

In the last four years he has driven his Oakland touring car a distance of 13,000 miles. During a recent visit to Detroit he borrowed an all-American sport roadster and drove it around for an hour "just to see whether they still make 'em as good as my old car."

"When I came to Michigan by ox-team, ten miles a day was good traveling," he said. "Now we toot anybody off the center of the road if they loaf along at ten miles an hour. The modern 'covered wagon' is fine—but for a real 'kick' I like the open cars best. I was brought up on fresh air and I never got over the fresh air habit."

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Watch Hot-Spot Cleaning.

Now is the time to give careful attention to engine efficiency. In this connection, the cleaning of the hot-spot is important. On some cars this spot, which enables a portion of the exhaust gases to heat a portion of the intake manifold, is so designed that its cover can be removed and the carbon on the intake pipe scraped off. After a year's use, the intake will collect a thick coating of carbon, all of which must be heated before the heat from the exhaust gases reaches the outside of the intake pipe. The engine will draw a warmer and more powerful mixture in a shorter time if the carbon is scraped off this intake manifold.

Lubrication Foremost Thought for New Cars.

More and faster cars demand more frequent and better lubrication. New cars, capable of from 60 miles per hour and up, must be given good care to stand the wear and tear of rushing traffic. For economy's sake alone, the experienced driver will not run his car more than 500 miles without having it oiled and greased. Likewise, for safety's sake alone, all parts should be kept well lubricated and working freely that traffic crashes may be avoided. It requires better motor oils, higher grades of grease and more special types of lubricants for certain parts to properly service a car today than the types of old.

Beware of Deadly Carbon Monoxide Gas.

A word of warning is offered to owners of motor vehicles in regards to the deadly carbon monoxide gas. The dangers to persons who are getting their first experience in the handling of engines is especially grave, because the gas has no odor and gives no warning. Here are a few simple suggestions for safety. Never start a motor unless the garage windows or doors are open. After starting, run car into open before warming up. Cut off engine before working about rear of car where gas from the exhaust may be inhaled. Do not sit in a tightly closed car with the motor running. Never allow children in a garage when engine is running.

Save the Battery.

There are many important rules to follow to keep a battery in first class condition. Here are a few of them: Watch the ammeter to see that the battery in charging or discharging properly. Test with a hydrometer at least once every week. Add enough distilled water every week to keep the electrolyte over the plates. Never let the switch stay on while the engine is not running. Prevent short circuits by watching for weak places in the insulation. Never lay a tool or other piece of metal across the terminals of a battery. Keep the terminals tight and free from corrosion. Keep the terminals covered with cup grease. Prevent freezing by seeing that the battery is always fully charged.

Keep Motor Horn in Condition.

A horn that refuses to sound may be due to dirty commutator and brushes, broken or shorted wires in the circuit or adjustment needed because of wear at diaphragm teeth. The commutator of the horn is similar to that of the generator and this should be cleaned with a piece of fine sandpaper, never emery cloth or paper, each six months; it should be then wiped clean with a cloth. Brushes should be long enough to bear firmly on commutator. By means of the adjusting screw, the armature is moved forward to compensate for wear at the diaphragm. A break in the horn wire causes failure. A grounding of the horn wire shows on the ammeter when the button is pressed. A horn that goes out of commission ca frequently be brought back by simply wiping off the commutator with a rag. The ammeter should read between six and eight when the horn is used. The motor driven horn should be lubricated every three months, and any surplus oil, especially around the commutator, should be wiped off. The vibrator type should be kept clean and the connecting wires should be tight on the terminal post connecting to the wire from the horn button.

Always test a used car thoroughly before buying.

Use second and low gears upon steep hills or rough or sandy roads.

Some gasolines, originally refined to a water-white color, soon become a straw color even though not exposed to light. Slight discoloration of gasoline, if it is pure, does not mean anything in mileage efficiency.

Elaborate Dinner Dances Feature St. Valentine's Week Among Lincoln Clubs

Cupids and quivers and arrows, red and white crepe paper, and lacy valentines are running riot on the walls and pillars and tables of Lincoln ball rooms this week, and there isn't a brick of ice cream that isn't pierced by a crimson heart. For the dancing clubs are celebrating St. Valentine's day, and the little love god brings many an interesting decorative motif in his wake.

Several of the clubs are having elaborate dinner dances during the week, for the week of February 14, is always a festive one, and the time for joy. Others are having informal affairs, but the lack of dinner has never prevented enjoyment of the light fantastic, and no one cares as long as the floor is smooth and the music extraordinary.

Members of the Merrymyx club will have an informal party Monday evening at Rosewilde, with the valentine idea carried out in the decorations and the favors. Supper is to be served in the intermission. On the committee for the party are Messrs. and Mesdames John Mengshol, R. A. Campbell, L. W. Hill, H. J. Utter and E. Erickson.

A dinner dance has been planned for the Monday night club at the Country club. The tables are to be decorated with the red and white of the season. During the dinner, a group of students from the Flavia Waters Champe studio will give a program, and the orchestra will also play. A few favor dances have been arranged. On the committee are Messrs, and Mesdames Leland Waters, Cedric Potter, and Wardner Scott.

The Tuesday night club is planning for an informal dance at the Lincoln hotel for forty couples. The committee of arrangements is composed of Messrs, and Mesdames A. A. Tanner, E. C. Colhapp, Bruce E. McEntire, Otto Zumwinkle, and Joseph Albin. The favors for two of the dances will be valentines, and been issued for the affair, including guests of the alumnae members, prominent musical people of Lincoln, and the members of the active chapter.

tion, Mrs. Harry E. Flansburg, the president of the Lincoln Junior League; and Dr. Flansburg, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Woods, J. L. Biddlecom, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Krause, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kinder, and Ernst Herminghaus.

There are many familier names among the artists who will exhibit at Morrill hall. Carolson, for instance, is represented at nearly every annual with one of his snowscapes. Berninghaus with his "An Old Man of the Pueblo," is not a newcomer from Taos. Another artist who has appeared on canvas in a most finished style many times is R. Sloan Bredin, while Grabach, with his love of the everyday life will be represented by "The Sidewalks of New York."

Eugene Higgins, whose pictures have been so much admired by the Lincoln people, is sending especially for this exhibit, "Fishwomen of Galoway." An interesting feature of the galleries will be "Stelka," done by Emma Fordyce MacRae who will be remembered for her decorative piece "Iiris" last year.

Schwartz Exhibitng.

William S. Schwartz had a one man show in Morrill hall galleries during November and December, and is remembered for the luminous quality of his painting. "Pau." Trebilcock had a picture in the exhibit several years ago in the Universty of Nebraska library building entitled "A Lady from New England." This year his offering, "Amelia Chiarina Castaldo," promises to be of a different type than his former picture.

A prize winning picture comes direct to Lincoln from Chicago. It is called "Nude," and its creator, Samuel Halpert, won the Norman Wait Harris bronze medal and cash prize at the most important of the Chicago exhibits during the winter season.

Marcena Barton, Ross Moffett, and J. Jeffry Grant are other artists awarded prizes and honorable mention at the annual show in Chicago. They are represented by pictures on display at the Nebraska annual exhibit.

Thirty-eight Exhibit.

It is interesting to note that the Nebraska Art association has held annual art exhibits for almost as many years as has the Chicago Art Institute. This is the thirty-eighth exhibit for the Nebraska association, while Chicago has just closed its fortieth.

The pictures of this exhibit belong to the contemporary American school of painting, and the artists are all Americans or those who have identified themselves with our traditions and technique.

An effort is being made to secure Mary T. Thayer, director of the Omaha Art institute, and Frederick Whitney, director of the Cleveland institute, for lectures during the exhibit, which is to close March 18.

A. A. U. W. WILL ENTERTAIN UNI, SENIOR WOMEN

E. Sheldon will give her impressions of the conference on the cause and cure of war recently at Washington, D. C. Mrs. Arthur Smith is chairman of the committee. She is being assisted by Mrs. Floyd Seybolt, Mrs. Ernest Ames, Mrs. F. M. Fling, Mrs. W. W. Putney, Mrs. H. T. Folsom, Mrs. J. E. Almy, Mrs. T. A. Colburn, Mrs. Warren Day, Miss Valeria Bonnell, and Miss Belle Farman.

DINNER DANCES FEATURE WEEK FOR DANCING CLUBS

the refreshments will carry out the same idea.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. M. Thomson are the leaders for the Cotillion club Tuesday at the Country club. It is to be a dinner dance, with the red and white of St. Valentine's day and his symbols combined in the table decorations. A series of stunts will be given during the evening.

Thursday evening, the Saturday Night club has its dinner dance in the ball room of the Lincoln hotel. As a slight variation, this is to be a patriotic party, in honor of the famed men of February, and it is also guest night. Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Westover, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Coryell, and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Ludwick are members of the committee.

The week closes with the dancing party of the Allons club in the Lincoln hotel ball room Friday. Mesdames H. C. Zellers, E. S. Trenholm, S. J. Everson, A. J. Yost, and O. F. Wilmeth are arranging the evening for fifty-five or sixty couples This party, also, will use the Washington birthday suggestions for its decorations and dances.

What's What In Decorating the Table Properly

What's what and how to use it in table decorations is something that every popular hostess has right at her finger tips, but there are some things to be remembered that are sometimes forgotten by even the most fastidious. The following ten commandments for hostesses concerning the arranging of the table, which is especially interesting.

Never start the day off with an untidy breakfast table.

If a colored damask cloth is used, be sure the glass and china harmonize.

In using candles for table decoration, remember they should be used after dark. Flowers should be used during the daytime.

Always arrange your silver so it can be used from the outside in.

It is essential for correct dining to have the damask cloth straight on the table.

Never overload the table. Rather have too little than too much.

Always have the hostess served first. It is an age-old custom.

Use a solid damask cloth if possible. Husbands grow tired of the bare lunch counter effect.

To give the best appearance to your table linen, press it first on the right side, then on the wrong.

Whether the occasion demand a formal or informal setting, remember the paramount object is to obtain a table which is discreetly and appetizingly beautiful. To obtain this result complete table harmony must be preserved.

Be Little that's the Charm

Banish Fat in this easy way

All ideas of beauty, style and fitness call for slender figures now. All who seek to please, in movies or society, must banish excess fat.

Note how many do that. In every circle you can see that most folks now are slender. Fat is the exception.

One great reason is Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. They have told the results to others. The slender figures now seen everywhere are largely due to that.

No abnormal exercise or diet is required, though moderation helps. The results of Marmola come through supplying a substance which Nature employs in nutrition. Its purpose is to turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat. The use is based on wide research and experiment.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. This is to let you know just why it acts and avoid any fear of harm.

Marmola has for two decades held top place in this field. Go learn the reason. Watch what it does for beauty, health and vitality! Then tell your friends who need it. No one can afford to be abnormal when reduction is so easy. Order now—before you forget it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

THE SHOPPER

Will Your Prince Charming

LIKE Cinderella's, choose you by your slipper? Then let's wear the slipper befitting a princess. And surely it must be selected from I. Miller's exquisite spring models at Speier's. The one pictured above is one of my favorites in the spring showing. Fashioned of soft black patent with slender heel, low cut and delicately trimmed in genuine lizard. There is new smartness in the use of two tiny straps and their fastenings of buckles. This is a slipper extremely smart for day or evening, and an indispensable member of the smart shoe wardrobe

A Printed "Something"

IS the demand for all spring wardrobes that wish to be termed "correct." I think I've discovered positively the gayest assembly of printed hats and matching scarfs possible. At Sternberg's I found these jaunty models with scarfs to match in clever printed designs, some actually depicting dances, with figures of decollette women and black tuxedoed men on brilliant back-grounds; old dutch mills in harmonizing settings, others purely conventional. Yes, I'm sure these are the "something" in prints that you'll want.

It Isn't Unusual

TO get a beautiful LeMur permanent, but it is exceptional to get this beautiful wave for only $5.00. Mr. Petersen at Ray Pierson's Barber Shop is an artist in permanent waving and he is specializing in this for early spring permanents. His shampoos and fingerwaves are only $1.00. You'd better make an appointment with him now for yours. L-5038—1231 N street.

Even Now

THE sweet girl graduate is planning ahead of the last minute rush in June and having her picture taken. Mr. Skoglund at the Hauck's Studio has made some very lovely ones already and is anticipating many more. Somehow through his years of experience he has a way of making each individual picture one of beauty.

If there's anything I like to do more than to shop, it's to shop and as that's about all I have to do why not trust me to do some personal shopping for you. Write me.

Champe Says—"

Better hurry and get your permanent wave now while the price is still $5.00. No appointments necessary. Champe's Beauty Shop, 2nd floor, 1229 N street."

Undies of Rayon

FOR spring are now being shown at Gold's and you'll be using decidedly good taste and true economy if you choose from these new models for your spring wardrobe. You'll discern the cleverness of the designer in this group, although some are fussy and frilly, still the slim lines have been achieved and you may be sure will fit smoothly beneath today's straight line frocks. Teddies, bloomers, dance sets, slips and nighties are all included, and they are fashioned in delicate pastel shades. T'would be wise to lay in your complete summer stock from these, for they're only $1.95.

Patches Aren't Usually Pretty

BUT these new little imported felts of patchwork design I saw at Gold's were extremely so. I watched a lady select one in wood violet and I thought "just the one I'd have chosen," but when I saw the many others of crushable straw, hand made Italian felts with luxurious angora embroidery, I decided I could say the same of a dozen others.

Serve This at Your Next Party

STUFF whole apricots with Philadelphia cream cheese and chopped pecans and serve on lettuce leaf with salad dressing. Beachly Bros. have jars of this lovely fruit in thick syrup. Also their whole pineapples in cans are not only perfect for individual salads, but have the exquisite flavor of fresh ones.

Once You Start

USING the Evans' many services to help you out it becomes a habit and eventually you'll just be calling B-6961 for everything along the line of housework. Every housewife is intensely interested, right now in Mr. O. J. Fee's special house cleaning service for, surely, at this time of the year things have a dingy look: floors need rewaxing, windows need cleaning; outside and in, curtains need cleaning, bedding needs washing, mattresses need renovating and to be remade, in fact a thousand and one things need to be done, and only one pair of hands is the usual moan, but not so at the Evans. All these things can be done even better than you can do them yourself, for in this great establishment, they have the most modern and thorough equipment and experienced helpers available. You may be perfectly sure any work turned out by the Evans to be first class in every respect and above all, perfectly sterilized. Call them at B-6961 for an estimate.

Be Correct and Display

BUT one eyebrow. The most alluring hats for spring are fashioned to reveal only one. Turners' display of these includes, felts soft straws, failles and dainty crochet. Here are two models which intrigued me, one rose glow felt trimmed with tiny animals of reptile, another more fussy of honey beige crochet with hand painted pansies.

March Winds are Coming

AND a very fine preventative for chapped, rough faces is to start having regular facials. If your skin has the proper care, no amount of wind or dust will effect its smoothness. If you're waiting for a new permanent, have water waves to prolong your old one. Call your favorite operator at Rudge & Guenzel's Beauty Shop.

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

Tragic Case of Young Girl Forced to Housekeeping Duties Because Mother Is a Wage-Earner — Should a Widowed Mother Regard the Objections of Children When Lonely For a New Mate?

This is one of the most tragic letters I've ever read and the riddle behind it is hard to solve. Do you suppose the mother mentioned here thinks she is doing the unselfish thing, the fine thing, by working away from home so she can buy extra clothes and a few luxuries that they could not afford at home? Or is there something beyond the understanding of her little girl that forced her away? I don't know, but if it is the former, if she is working to bring money into her home, I would say she is making a terrible mistake. It isn't money that is needed here, but a mother, and I wonder how we can help her to see it.

Dear Minerva: As you have listened to so many troubles, I wonder f you could spare a few minutes for mine?

I am a big sister, mother, daughter and housekeeper to my father and two brothers, nine and six. Over three years my mother has lived in Omaha during the week where she has a very good job. Father's work keeps him here, so we can't move there. Ever since then I've had almost full charge of the housekeeping and my brothers. We have had several housekeeprs, but I have been unable to get along with any of them. When the last one left, I told daddy I would rather do the work myself, even if I was going to school, than to put up with another woman in our home. So for almost a year I've had control.

Minerva, my mother comes to see us every week, takes us to shows and provides most of our clothes and gives us many things we would not be able to have otherwise. But it isn't the things she can give us that I want. It is my mother. I haven't had a mother to take any troubles to since I was almost eleven. I will be fourteen this month. My brothers were six and thre when mother left.

I can't manage my brothers very well as they grow older because they realize that other boys do not have their sisters for bosses. Daddy helps me all he can and works, too, but the boys need a mother to help them. I need one too.

Mnerva, can you suggest any way to bring my mother back? No, mamma and daddy aren't divorced, I'm afraid they will be if we go on living like this much longer. I've asked mamma to come back, but I almost have to joke about it to keep from crying. She has never said "no," and sometimes she even says, "Maybe, sometime." So, Minerva, please answer before it is too late. Lonesome Girl.

A. Dear little girl I have just one thought—don't joke about it to keep from crying. Show your mother your heartache and your tears. Let her see how desperately she is needed. We're all so fearful of showing our eral selves, aren't we, that it is our fault if we are misjudged. Perhaps she thinks you are getting along pretty well, because you are so efficient and poised. Give her a glimpse of the real you—the lonely you, and tell her how the little boys need her hand.

If there is something behind her refusal to stay home that is too strong for her to overcome, nothing will help, but try just once showing her your need—and may it help.

Needs Adjusting.

Let's straighten out this girl's twisted psychology:

Dear Minerva: You probably won't print this, but as kissing is being discussed, I want to have my say.

Do I believe in kissing? Well, to to tell the truth, I don't, as I can't get enjoyment out of a kiss, but I do let the boys kiss me. Why, you ask? Well, because I don't think a kiss means anything, or at least it doesn't to me. People say that you should think of your self respect. I do, but the receiving or giving of a kiss doesn't lower my self respect in the least so long as it is just kissing. Besides that, nearly every fellow (I have never met the exception) would not go wth a girl unless she did give in a little and not remain so terribly stand-offish. Yes, I am fully convinced that is the truth.

The fellows come in and say they respect a girl more who does not allow them these privileges, but does a girl of sixteen or seventeen care very much if they respect her and she is popular? I don't think she does, or at least I don't, because I wouldn't marry any fellow I've met yet anyway and if I do meet one, I will probably act so that he will respect me. But so much has been said about fellows respecting girls that I have to ask, what about the girls respecting the fellows? Does a fellow thing that a girl respects him after he has gone with her and kissed her? No, I don't imagine many girls do. I know I don't.

Now about joy riding; I don't think there is any harm in it if the girl is the right kind, because she can generally make the fellow behave if she wants to. All girls have a certain sense of right and wrong and they can go so far without violating that sense.

This is a pretty long letter, and my ideas may be all wrong, but I believe in them. What do you htink. Minerva? Convinced.

A. Well, it's ths way. I'm not as commercial as you are. And I hope you're wrong about other girls. This business of paying for a boy's smiles and attentions is too much for me. Forgetting this self-respect stuff—it seems so sort of messy, but of course it is all a matter of taste.

Children Prejudiced.

Here is a problem that presents the prejudices of children on the one hand; a mother's desire for love and normal companionship on the other. If you faced loneliness and widowhood at twenty-eight (o. any other age, for that matter), and your ten-year-old children objected to your remarriage, refusing to live with you if you took the step what would you do? Change the children's minds, or change your own?

Would you argue thus: "I brought them into the world. They had no say in the matter of their coming. Therefore I owe my life and happiness to them. No sacrifice is too great."

Or might you reason that a few years more would take the boys away from you? They would likely marry and make homes for themselves, wives and children. You would no longer have a place except at your own lonely hearthstone. A companion would make life much more worth the living. Their prejudices would disappear with time, as even adult prejudices have a way of doing.

Pro and con. Even while thus thinking of their future and your own, you might debate with yourself: It is now that counts—now while their minds are impressionable, while their little lives are mine to mold. Their home life during childhood may mean everything."

And should you decide at last that life would be too lonely, that you would change children's minds, how would you go about it? Changing minds requires some tact and patience. Forcing an issue roughly might not help your cause. But do you think there is a way in which a mother, in a situation of this kind, may have not only the love and happiness of her children, but the love of a husband, too?

Dear Minerva: Do give me some of your sound advice, please, quickly.

I shall begin at the first of my story. When I was sixteen I eloped with a young Russian. We were very much in love, and to this day I do not regret it. My parents, staunch Americans, objected, not only because of my youth, but because of my husband's nationality.

When I was seventeen, twin sons were born to us. We were very happy and contented. A little over three years ago my husband was killed in an automobile accident while were in Russia. Upon my husband's death, his family, brother and two sisters, took over the place and I returned to America with my two seven-year-old boys. The twins were passionately fond of their father and seemed unable to realize that had been very young, only two years older than I, and always ready to play with them. I am now nearly twenty-eight and the boys are ten. Recently an Englishman of whom I am very fond asked me to marry him. I accepted and when I told the boys, they declared they would not live with us. What shall I do?

I can force the boys to stay with me, but I am afraid they will hate me. They are moody, like their father was. Both prefer Russia to America, and always address me in Russian.

I have a right to marry again, haven't I? Oh Minerva, what shall I do? I want a companion as I know this man would be.

I love this middle-west which was my childhood home, but would be happier to live in the east where I would live if I marry, as I feel the need of having more and more varied people about me. This small town (not Lincoln) is stifling to me. Also the boys would really have better advantages if I married again. Though I have money enough for their education now, a woman alone is quite handicapped with two boys.

A. Your boys are young, and though they seem decided in their opinions, I believe you can tactfully win their co-operation. Teach them that your happiness, for now and the future, must be considered as well as their own. As gallant protectors of their mother, they should see that you need the love, companionship and protection of a man. Try to win their liking for the man himself. But most of all, try to win them on the basis of their consideration for your lonliness and need.

Capital Punishment.

Dear Minerva: I wonder, since the public has read about so many murders and more recently about the kidnapping and murdering of those two little girls, just what the general attitude is toward capital punishment. I notice that a judge in Michigan thinks the state should have capital punishment. I wonder haw many of your readers have read the debate on capital punishment that took place a few short years ago between Judge Talley and Clarence Darrow. It is a masterful debate, and is well worth the reading. As a prelude to what the Bible says on the subject may I quote from Judge Talley in that debate? He said: "Does any one dispute the right of a nation to kill in the protection of its citizens? Why should the right of any state be questioned when it seeks to protect its citizens and their lives and property against unjust aggression? . . . Those who would seek to take away from the state the power to impose capital punishment seek to despoil the symbol of justice. They would leave in her hands the scales that typify that in this country at least all are equal before the law and that these scales must never tip from one side to the other, loaded on either side with power or influence of the litigant that comes to the temple of justice. They would leave over her eyes bandage that typifies that she must be no respecter of persons, but they would take from her hand the sword, without which the other symbols would be meaningless things. For if justice has not the right to enforce her edicts and her mandates, then her laws may be lost upon a senseless people. . . .

"It will be argued, I am sure, as it has been argued countless times by those in favor of abolishing capital punishment, that it is not a deterrent to those who would commit crime; that it deters no one with murder in his heart from committing murder. I can read books without number in favor of that argument. I can delve into the works of Bocalley and Lombroso and Lawes and other men who have made intensive study of this question. But out of my own experience, as lawyer for defendant, as prosecutor for the state, and as judge of the greatest criminal court in all the world, I say that the only thing the criminal fears is the penalty of death that will follow his crime. And I need not read that in any book or any essay or any treatise. That is my experience of more than twenty-five years."

The average newspaper reader, who has followed the daily account of murder trials, will agree with Judge Talley here, for it is the fear of the death penalty, and the desire to escape it, which causes the murderer to resort to insanity dodges, and take advantage of every technicality in the law.

One argument so often brought up against capital punishment by those who seek its abolishment is that it is a barbarous, inhuman law, and that the death penalty is merely a formal murder. The claim is made that in sentencing a murderer to death the state is descending to the level of the murderer.

The quickest way to probe the right or wrong of a question is to discover, if possible, what God's attitude is, for He is the original and rightful authority, the fountainhead of law and government. Let us see if He ever manifested any opinion on this subject.

In Genesis 9:6 we read: "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made He man." A lawyer once advanced the argument that this referred to cannibalism. He based his argument on the context. If this were the only thing the Bible offered in regard to the subject, there might be more weight to that argument, but later texts dispel that conclusion. In Exodus, the twenty-first chapter, God, in speaking to Moses, says: "Now these are the judgments which thou shalt set before them." And in the twelfth verse of that chapter we read: :":He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death."

Verse 15: "And he that smiteth his father, or his mother, shall be surely put to death." Verse 16: "And he that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death."

Leviticus 24:17: "And he that killeth any man shall surely be put to death."

Numbers 35:16: "And if he smite him with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer; the murderer shall surely be put to death."

Numbers 35:17: "And if he smite him with throwing a stone, wherewith he may die, an dhe die, he is a murderer; the murderer shall surely be put to death."

Numbers 35:18: "Or if he smite him with a hand weagon of wood, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer; the murderer shall surely be put to death."

Numbers 35:19: "The revenger of blood himself shall slay the murderer; when he meeteth him, he shall slay him."

Numbers 35:20--21: "But if he thrust him of hatred, or hurl at him by laying of wait, that he die; or in enmity smite him with his hand, that he die: he that smote him shall surely be put to death, for he is a murderer; the revenger of blood shall slay the murderer."

Numbers 35:30: "Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death by the mouth of witnesses: but one witness shall not testify against any person to cause him to die."

Numbers 35:31: "Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction (bribe) for the life of a murderer, which is guilty of death; but he shall be surely put to death."

To those who believe that capital punishment is barbarous and inhuman, I ask: Was God barbarous and inhuman. Who is he that dares to impute barbarity and unrighteousness to God? Again, if the death penalty does not deter crime, how could the God of all wisdom have made such a mistake? Is His reasoning more faulty than man's? Is His wisdom less than man's? The ible tells us that His word is truth, and that He is the source of all wisdom, truth, mercy, and love. "The land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein but by the blood of him that shed it." Is that less true today than it was in Moses' day? Who will answer these questions? The blood of little Marion Parker and of little Dorothy Schneider cries out for an answer. ARDENT.

DIAGRAM OF TRACT.

BY FRED FASSETT.

Lordly parks, enchanting woodlands.

A well-rounded city with no abandoned sections because of the business center growing away from it.

A people happy in the thought theirs is the best city in the country; and believing it have arguments aplenty to support their beliefs.

A city enjoying the friendship of every citizen of the state because of what the city has done for them.

A city enjoying the reputation of being one of the most if not the most hospitable municipality.

A city that pleasingly reminds the wayfarer it is an ideal place in which to linger; and that it has the places where one can tarry, and rest away from the world's cares, unharrassed and free to come and go with none to say them nay.

Vision of Lincoln Men.

That is the vision of a little group of Lincoln men. They have been scanning the horizon of the years with a view to anticipating the needs of tomorrow and so intense has been their crystal gazing, if you please, that now they believe they can see the fruition not far off, of the dreams, the hopes which they have cherished for these many years.

You may call it crystal gazing or by any other name—a rose with another name would still retain its wonderful aroma—but this little group has been looking into the future of Lincoln. In doing so they have seen several things. Some they have liked; others they have not. But, seeing them so plainly there was naught but to believe.

First in the picture that flitted across their vision was one of Lincoln thirty years hence. It was not a pleasant picture by any means. It was a scene revealing abandoned store buildings where now and for many years past was a thriving business center, buzzing with the throb of industry and commerce. As has been the experience of other cities the center of trade had moved away. There was nothing for the business man but to follow or sink into financial wreck and oblivion. Naturally, he followed.

Another Picture.

The other picture was of the same district in the same period. Instead of buildings falling to decay from lack of attention; buildings that could not be rented at any price; that the owners would be happy to lose for the taxes, there was business; plenty of it, and enough for all. The streets were humming with the voices of happy workers. They teamed with humanity, bright-eyed, faces agleam with the light of contentment.

The why of the second vision was a puzzle. All efforts at its solution were fruitless. Every attempt to see deeper into the gleaming globe was without avail.

Suddenly, however, a haze hanging in the background lifted, and before the eyes of the startled lookers was revealed the great difference in the two pictures. On one hand the deserted sector had for a background nothing but waste lands, railroad yards and in the offing as far as the eye could see, lands of little value for farming pursuits. As the veil lifted on the other view there spread to the astonished gaze not only a well kept and constantly used business section, but in the back ground there arose clean well-maintained railroad yards fronting a large residential section. They were mostly the homes of artisans who had moved closer to their work because they could enjoy the benefits of the beautiful parks, playgrounds and pleasure places to be seen in the far background.

Before District Settled.

They had been set up before the district was settled. It was the one great magnet that drew the settlers into the district. Also, it with the building of homes in that direction, was the move made by the business interests and farsighted citizens that maintained a balanced business district and resulted in the center of trade remaining within a radius of a few blocks.

It is this second vision that forward looking business men of Lincoln have seen. With them to see was to act, in so far as it is possible to act.

Business can always move in a natural channel; there is no resistance, they said, but it is a different matter to make it expand against the current. But that is just what this group hopes to do; make water flow upstream, as it were. They want to bring about a condition where there will be no vacant and tumbledown business buildings thirty years from now along what is today the western rim of the commercial center.

Work of City Planners.

The group that is trying to bring about this change is the city planning subdivision of the chamber of commerce. The members have been watching the eastward trend of the center of trade for many years and they have seen it veer to the southeast with the development of the residential section in that direction. Now they have conceived the idea of throwing a dam across this stream of expansion and send the flow to the west and southwest, the direction in which the population drifted when the city was first founded.

To do this the members of the subdivision want the city to purchase more than 1,100 acres of what they term "poor agricultural lands" south of Hawthorne, the state's reformatory for men. Here it is purposed to establish a park; one of the largest in the city. Do this, they say, and there will be reason for the population of the city of the future to settle in that direction thereby holding the center of business at about its present location and making of Lincoln a well-rounded city that will have small possibilities of becoming the drab picture shown in the globe.

Slopes to the South.

The site selected slopes gently south onto a level along the south side. Several swales run through it from the north and there is another along the south side forming the bed of two small streams that merge into a larger water course at about the center of the tract from east to west.

According to those who have investigated the possibility of acquiring the tract, it is claimed the entire piece can be had at a price considerably below the value of average farm lands. This is because of its being unavailable for that purpose and the added fact, it is stated, that there never has been a time that the Burlington railroad has not been willing to make sacrifices where the advancement of Nebraska's capital city is concerned. The property is owned by the carrier, and is for sale to the city.

F. D. Tomson, chairman of the subdivision, has appointed a subcommittee to make a survey of conditions and report at a meeting to be called soon, on the advisability of acquiring the tract. On this committee he named John H. Agee, of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co., chairman. Other members are Charles Stuart, George Holmes, C. B. Towle, J. E. Lawrence and Robert Ferguson.

Price Is Big Factor.

In arguing in favor of the tract those who have studied conditions say the price makes it much more desirable than any that could be purchased to the east, northeast or southeast of the city, if a suitable number of acres in one block could be purchased at all.

It also is argued that the Burlington tract is in an ideal location. It is pointed out that the east edge will be on the great boulevard that, in a few years will completely circle the city. The route of the drive now takes it to O street along the west side of the beach, thence east to the through road which passes the tract. There is a connection with the state hospital road—Park boulevard, running diagonally southwest from Sixth and South streets. Connection also is made with the road in front of the state penitentiary when the east side of the drive is extended to it along Thirty-third street.

Has Many Possibilities.

The size of the tract makes it available for any number of golf courses, it is contended. Then, too, there would be room for a number of ball diamonds, tennis courts,lasge shady places, swimming pools and every convenience that makes for a complete and up-to-date park reservation.

That the place will fit in with the boulevard system and park plan none has disputed to the committee.

The only argument the committee and the subdivision has had to meet is: "It is too far out."

The answer has been: Far flung parks are not unknown. Some of the most enticing recreational places boasted by the mountain places are those at the farthest points. In this day of graveled roads and automobiles distance is nothing.

Parks Are Insufficient.

Lincoln's parks are insuffiient to the demand being made upon them. Thousands come to them every week from all sections of the state, especially from the southern and southeastern, and more would come if the room is provided. Not only would they come, but if pleasingly reminded of the pleasures to be found here they would stay days; where now the wayfarer lingers, but an hour or so, overnight at the longest, and then is on his way.

If Lincoln is to attract people for any lengthy stay it is apparent that greater attractions must be provided. They must be of a magnitude to counteract the clarion call of the great natural attractions of the western rim or the Rockies. Lands north of the railroads will not provide this. They cannot be made ready in time.

Appeal Is Inadequate.

Lincoln has a clarion call that is as good as any but it is not the kind people want. Here is one of the greatest museums in all America. A capitol that ranks second to no public building in the nation, and claimed by many to have no rival in the world, also here is one of the leading universities and Indian lore in abundance. Here is a city carved out of the virgin prairie, known far and wide for its beautiful homes and wide, well shaded streets replacing, great wastes of desert and wild grass which, in the early days, baked and blistered under a burning sun, the whole carrying one of the greatest wonder stories that could be spread to the world.

But this does not carry the appeal for which the thousands who pass through here annually are looking. They are seeking pleasure; playgrounds, if you please, and pleasure they are going to have. Pleasure they get, and they git it wherever they find it most attractive. The lure of pleasure is in the blood of the nation. The place that offers the greatest lure is the place that will reap the greatest reward.

Offer the people of Lincoln the proper incentive and they will remain at home more; they will find here many of the things which they have been seeking elsewhere.

Will Keep People Home.

Acquiring this tract will go a long way toward providing the attention to stay at home. Mome, it will also prove the magnet that will attract expansion in a new direction and open the way to saving the city from the mistakes that elsewhere have brought ruin to great sections in the business district through the migration of business.

No stone should be left unturned to make Lincoln the best rounded business and residential city in the country. All sections would go

Bud Gurney Still Getting Thrills Out of Flying That He and Lindbergh Did in Lincoln Years Ago

BY FRED R. ZIMMER.

The St. Louis to Chicago air mail plane zoomed noisily on into the inky night and into the heavy mist. Ice was forming on the wings and struts of the plane, and with every yard of progress it kept losing altitude. The ice coating grew heavier and heavier and the pilot realized that he must land, but where? Beneath him the fog and darkness loomed menacingly. He knew not where he was.

This was the situation that recently confronted Harlan (Bud) Gurney, former Lincoln boy, now of the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route, while on one of his regular trips between the two cities. But this is but one of the thrills Gurney gets out of flying. It is but one of the things that makes aviation the great fascination that it is .

"I knew I would have to get down," Bud said in telling of this particular incident. "I couldn't see below me, but I knew I was down low, so I lit a flare and sent it down and managed to get down in a field. Here I took a club and knocked the ice off the plane so I could get in the air again, and took off all right. But when I got up above, the ice coating process began again, and I had to make another landing and again knock the accumulated ice off the ship. Finally I got to Chicago, only twenty minutes late; and that day was so bad for flying that none of the pilots on other routes got in there that day."

Fought Ace Hudkins.

Gurney is only 22, but he has been working about airplanes and flying since he was 13 years old. These days he is chief pilot for the Robertson Aircraft corporation at St. Louis in handling the mails.

Bud was born in Beatrice, Neb., in 1905 and was educated in the public schools at Lincoln. He was a classmate of Ace Hudkins at the old Whittier school, and recalls the time he and Ace staged a battle. When he had gone as far as the eighth grade he got a job as helper around the Lincoln Standard Aircraft Co., and there learned the mechanic's end of flying.

It was here he became acquainted with Charles Lindbergh, before the trans-Atlantic flier himslf had learned to fly. And it was with Lindbergh he got one of his first thrills out of flying.

While attempting to test a parachute one day, the two youthful airmen got on too heavy a load and the plane would not gain altitude. Besides the two fliers, the plane carried almost a full load of gas and several sand bags which were to be used in testing the parachute.

Scraped Tops of Trees.

Losing altitude south of the flying field the plane raced over telegraph wires but thirty feet above the state penitentiary. Safely clearing this, Lindbergh guided the ship north, looking for a place to land. As the machine rushed northward, its landing gear scraped the tops of a bunch of trees. Finally a landing was made in a field south of Capitol Beach.

During the time of the flight, Lindbergh kept motioning for Gurney to throw the sand bags over board. Mistaking Lindy's actions to mean he was to attempt a parachute jump, Bud climbed out of the cockpit prepared to jump. Seeing that they were so close to the ground that his chute would not open he climbed back into the plane again. This manoeuver was repeated several times as Lindbergh went through wild motions intended as instructions.

Gurney commenced making parachute jumps while still a mere lad and made fourteen successful jumps when but 14 years old. His drops from speeding planes total fifty-three, not one of which was made in an emergency. He was given his pilot's license when he was but 16 years old.

Has Never Crashed.

Bud has a total of 2,730 hours in the air and has covered a distance of approximately 287,000 miles. During this time he has never crashed a plane and has made only two emergency landings.

One day while taking photographs in a plane the engine back fired and a blaze resulted. Thep hotographer A. O. Russell, wanted to jump from an altitude of 14,500 feet, but Gurney would not let him. He ran the plane down in a side slip, with the flames creeping back along the fuselage as far as the photographer's place, but managed to land. The ship was completely destroyed by flames, but the two occupants escaped uninjured. Bud describes this as "one of the biggest thrills I ever had."

On another occasion a connecting rod on the plane broke while Gurney was doing exhibition flying near Walbach, Neb. He kept the plane from going into a nose dive and landed in a corn field with no great damage either to the plane nor himself.

"Ice and fog are the worst things we have to combat," Bud says. "When a plane gets coated with ice and visibility is bad the pilot is in a fix—he can't fly and he can't land. There is a thrill in that situation.

Feel "Upside Down."

"Sometimes it is so black the pilot can't see any horizon. He is going along at top speed and can't tell, by his senses, what direction he is going, whether he is right side up or upside down, whether he is close to the ground or safely up in the air. Sometimes a sensation will come to him that he is upside down, and he can't overcome it. He even gets in 'arguments' with his instruments, for he cannot convince himself that what he feels is not true, even though the instruments tell him so. But he has to accept what the instruments say and carry on against the way his own intelligence tells him to. It is hard to confound your own judgment, but it must be done.

"After flying blind for a while a pilot begins to feel wobbly. It is just like fighting with a wildcat, or having a bull by the horns—you can't quit or turn loose; you have to keep on fighting until you pull through.

"We get to know every possible field and landing place on the route," Gurney explains. "A flare lasts ten minutes and lights things up so you can read a newspaper two miles away from it; and, when you have to land, you just do your best."

Flying blind out of Chicago one night, Bud knew from his reports that there was clear weather about Peoria. When nearing there, wanting to get his location as soon as he could find a rift in the fog, he decided to descend within 300 feet of the ground. However, the atmosphere did not clear as quickly as he expected it to, and he was startled suddenly by a tree which swished just by one of his wings.

Fooled By Altimeter.

"That was a thrill," he admits. "I was scared. My altimeter showed I was 300 feet up and I didn't expect anything like that. The altimeter is not much good in a fog because of the changes in atmospheric pressure.

Situations like these, Gurney declare, are what gives a pilot a thrill out of flying.

Harlan (Bud) Gurney, former Lincoln boy who is now chief pilot for the Robertson Aircraft Corporation of St. Louis, in handling the mails. Gurney flies a mail plane between St. Louis and Chicago and recently established a record between the two cities when he made the distance in 110 minutes. Gurney started his air career when but 13 years old. He has made 53 parachute jumps and has piloted 37 different types of planes.

After working at the Lincoln field for some time, Gurney got a job as a parachute jumper with a flying circus that was touring Nebraska and the northwest. During the summer he made several jumps.

In the fall of 1923, Bud went to air races at St. Louis to see the stunts and take such part as he could. Immediately he got into the parachute jumping contests and on the first day raced Charles Hardin, a champion, to the ground and beat him. He also won the contest the second day and finished second the third day. The day following, when there was a special exhibition, he jumped from a plane piloted by Lindbergh and made a misstep on landing which cost him a broken arm. This is the only accident Gurney has had in his nine years of parachute jumping and flying.

Carried Into River.

Gurney has had some thrilling experiences while he was barnstorming about the country giving exhibition jumps. On one occasion his rip lines became tangled and he dropped 700 feet before he was able to get his chute open. Another time the wind carried him and his parachute into the Missouri river near St. Joseph. That day he was substituting for a woman jumper, who could not swim. She is of the opinion that had she made the jump instead of Gurney she would have been drowned.

A record for accuracy has been attained by Bud in his jumps. On one occasion when jumping for a marked spot from a height of 3,800 feet he landed within 6 feet of his target. He missed his target but 65 feet while jumping from a 14,500 foot altitude.

After getting his pilot's license Gurney made a barnstorming trip through Illinois, Indiana and southern Missouri. He made enough at this to buy himself a plane. During this time he had his first try at "plane changing," in which a man transfers from one plane to another while in the air. He and another pilot were guiding their planes for the first time in this stunt and when they first passed near each other were moving too slowly. Gurney's ship settled down on Hunter's and the wings locked. Fortunately the wing-walker, Herman Budd, also a Lincoln boy, had the presence of mind to kick the planes apart and Gurney fell into a spin, from which he pulled out just in time to avoid crashing into the grand stand. As it was the wing of his plane took a row of flags off the top of the stands. Undaunted by the mishap, he soared aloft again and the transfer was effected. Neither pilot had ever seen a "plane change" before.

Sprayed Cotton Fields.

Gurney joined the air mail service, but left that to do "cotton dusting" throughout the south. He covered a large area of territory extending from Missouri to Louisiana. Flying but a few feet above the cotton plants, this work entails the greatest amount of skill and daring in a pilot and is perhaps one of the most dangerous kinds of flying. After spraying a field one time, he removed twenty pounds of cotton from the landing gear and under parts of his plane. In many places the fields are surrounded by trees and this makes the work doubly difficult and dangerous for every part of the field must be sprayed.

In the fall of 1926, Gurney became a pilot for a group of army engineers who were making aerial maps of the Missouri river from its junction with the Mississippi above St. Louis to Yankton, S. D. This required careful flying along the route of the river, with the plane in exact position to take on accurate succession of pictures that, placed together, would reveal the course of the stream. The pictures were made from a height of 15,000 feet and each picture covered about 1¾ by 2½ miles. The winds were hard to combat. Gurney tells of one time, when he was covering a course of five miles flying into the wind, when a steamboat going up the river was moving faster than the plane did. Another time his themometer registered 42 degrees below zero while at an altitude of 14,500 feet.

While taking off with two passengers one day the landing gear of Gurney's plane was broken off. He continued his flight, and made a safe landing, neither injuring himself or passengers or damaging his plane.

The distinction of helping a South Dakota school teacher regain her lost hearing is one Gurney can claim. Coming to St. Louis the South Dakota lady discovered that the usual cost of such procedure would be prohibitive to her. A few St. Louis people became interested in her case and took up the matter with the Robertson Aircraft corporation, who agreed to furnish a plane for the test, providing the teacher paid for the pilot. She went out to the field and selected Bud as her pilot and he refused to take any money for his trouble.

Rising to a height of 16,000 feet, the Lincoln youth pointed the nose of his plane earthward and opened the gas wide. The first drop improved the teacher's hearing. A week later another drop was made with gratifying results. After the third drop the woman's hearing was restored to normal.

At one time Gurney went in for stunt flying and successfully looped the loop under the Eads bridge at St. Louis which is only 80 feet above the water. However, Bud has now abandoned this type of flying.

Holds Air Records.

Gurney and Ira Sloniger, another Lincoln boy who has made a name for himself in aviation, hold several air records between them. During a recent ice storm, the pair were the only pilots to carry the mail successfully through. Gurney flew from St. Louis to Chicago, while Sloniger made the trip the opposite way. While taking two planes from St. Louis to New York the two youths set a record for covering the distance between St. Louis to Cleveland. The trip was made in four hours and 26 minutes. The trip to New York was made in two jumps, the only stop being made at Cleveland. Gurney also holds the St. Louis to Chicago record, covering the 378 miles between the two cities in 110 minutes with a full load of mail and express.

During the flood in the Mississippi last spring, Gurney had several trips that were adventurous. His first mission was to carry twelve outboard motors to Stuttgart, Ark., where they were to be used on relief boats.

Made Difficult Landing.

"The motors weighed 840 pounds," he says, "which was more than twice the maximum load capacity of the plane. I couldn't get up in the air far enough to be safe. I reached a bad place in the Ozarks at Fredericktown, when the radiator burst. I got down all right, on top of a ridge and got repairs, but when I took off from the ridge next morning I couldn't get enough altitude to go over the low hills until I had gone ten miles down the valley. However, I managed to make Stuttgart."

He also carried a relief shipment of yeast to Little Rock during the flood, taking the plane down with 350 pounds aboard. Later he accompanied a news reel photographer along the river from St. Louis to Cairo, making flood pictures.

Last May, Gurney rejoined the air mail service. Since then he has a record of getting through on time. During his years of flying, Bud had piloted thirty-seven different types of planes.

Gurney was married last September 15 to Miss Helen Voges of Red Bud, Ill. and they reside at 2208 Charlack avenue, Overland, a suburb of St. Louis.

A Nebraska System For Measuring Emotion

These two questions with several variations are answered by means of the apparatus here pictured.

Dr. Charles Fordyce of the department of mental measuremens at the University of Nebraska, is standing beside the "emotiometer" which he himself developed after several years' work. He is determining how much "kick" Beatrice Ruwe of Fremont gets out of being photographed.

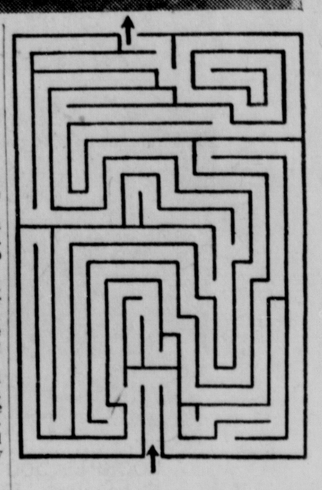
The emotiometer is as unique in its results as it is simple in principle. The subject's arm is encased in a rubber gauntlet, fitting over a copper tube into which she inserts her hand. At the other end of the tube, a small glass tube is connected to extend upwards. Then the whole is filled with colored water.

Strong emotions, such as anger, fear or joy cause the blood to rush from one's body to the extremities. The subject's arm becomes larger. The water in the glass tube rises. And the expert determines that so many millemeters of emotion have been registered.

Opposite results are produced when the subject becomes depressed or saddened. The blood rushing to her body diminishes the size of her arm and lowers the water in the tube.

Steps have already been taken by Doctor Fordyce to measure the emotional effects of music and he will make further experiments along this and other lines.

In the other photo, Mrs. Bess Pennington of Kansas City is seated at a device for determining the speed of her mind, while Mrs. Marie E. Dobson, assistant in the department, is making the test. One of the weights shown in this picture is released by the operator's touch, whereupon the subject releases the other as soon as she is able. The period of time separating the two finger taps can then be ascertained by counting the swings of the weights.



At the right is a Maze with a purpose. Its aim in life is to discover how bright you are. See how long it takes you to start at one of the entrances and trace an unbroken line to the other.

This is only one of many tests used by Doctor Fordyce in the hundreds of mental examinations he makes every year. He has been carrying this work on for the past fifteen years and is one of the pioneer mental testers in the country as well as in the middle west. His laboratory in the Teachers College building is one of the most complete in America. Many seemingly simple puzzles are contained in its cupboards, as well as piece after piece of more complicated equipment.

Nebraska Professor Pioneer In Mental Measurements; Invents His Own Testers

BY PROF. CHARLES FORDYCE.
Department of Mental Measurements, University of Nebraska.

Intelligence may be defined as the ability to adapt ourselves to new situations, or more simply as the ability to learn. This ability is possessed in different degrees by different individuals. Intelligence is limited by the structure and organization of the nervous system which is the instrument of the mind. If the nervous system is simple and poorly organized the mentality is of a low order; if on the other hand it is complex and highly organized the intelligence is correspondingly of a high level. The nervous system is made up of millions of little strings, or neurones, they are called, which transmit and transform the raw materials of thought that come in through the various senses. Impressions may come in through the eye, pass back to the visual area of the brain then be sent directly to the speech center and thence to vocal organs ending in speech, or the same impression might be shunted out to the outer layer of the brain which stirs thought and feeling, ending here or being modified and sent to the speech center and thence out to the organs of speech or it might have some other mental destiny. Thus the nervous system acts as a telephone system in which the sense organs are the outlying stations through which the world communicates sights, sounds, odors, and tastes. These are transmitted to the central nervous system which acts as a central exchange sending the messages out to other parts of the brain or to the muscles or glands of the body.

Mental Level Limited.

In the next place, the mental level is limited by the number and organization of the neurones. In a normal individual there are about seven thousand million of these little nerves, but in the case of a defective where the growth of the nerves is arrested at an early age the number of the neurones is very small and poorly organized. The individual with such a nervous system is capable of only the most simple types of thinking. According to this structure and organization of the elements of the nervous system intelligence varies all the way from that of the imbecile to that of the genius. About fifty per cent of the population belong to the so-called normal group as to mentality, about twenty-five per cent are below the normal and twenty-five per cent above.

Normal Mentality.

If a child ten years of age performs mentally as most children of this age perform, he is said to be of normal mentality; but if a child of ten thinks no better than the average child of seven or eight, he is of inferior intelligence. If, on the other hand, a child of ten thinks as well as the average child of thirteen or fourteen, he is of superior intelligence. It comes, usually, as a surprise to most people to learn that fully one fourth of the children in the public schools are below the normal in intelligence. The great problem of the public schools is that of adapting education to the varoous classes who may be of the same life age, but who differe so markedly in mental age. It is not uncommon to find in a fourth grade where the normal age is ten years, many whose mental ability is that of a child seven, eight or nine and many others whose intelligence is that of normal children of eleven, twelve, or thirteen. This relation of the mental age to the chronological or real age is shown by the so-called intelligence quotient IQ) which is the ratio of the mental age to the real age.

Has An IQ of .80.

If a child of ten years has a mental age of eight, his IQ is .80. The ten-year-old with a mental age of twelve has an IQ of 120.

The IQ's of idiots are below 25 or 30, those of imbeciles range from the border line of idiocy to about 50, and those of morons from the borderline of imbecility to 70 or 75. IQ's of 80 or 85 signify moderate dullness, the average child tests at 100, and anything above 100 indicates superiority. About one child in fifty tests as high as 130, and about one in two hundred and fifty as high as 140. IQ's as high as 200 are on record.

The IQ is therefore a "brightness index," and as such is very serviceable even if far from accurate. Its significance lies in the fact that it has a marked tendency to remain constant, thus affordng a rough basis for predicting a child's later development.

According to Terman, intelligence tests have shown the members of the socially successful classes to have, on the average, better endowment than those of inferior social status. Chldren of the professional classes have an average IQ of about 115 as compared with about 85 for children of unskilled laborers and 100 for the children of all classes taken together.

The Measurement of Intelligence.

The determination of a method for measuring the degree of intelligence is probably the greatest achievement, in the field of modern psychology. The great French psychologist, Alfred Binet, is the Thomas Edison of mental testing Galton Cattell and some others had devised simple scales before Binet's achievement, yet Binet made the first really successful scale.

Publisher less than two decades ago, these tests have in various revised forms come into general use throughout the civilized world. In America, especially, improved types of intelligence tests have been developed which permit the wholesale examination of individuals in groups. This makes it possible each year to examine and classify on the basis of mental ability millions of pupils.

The revised Binet scale for measuring mentality consists of 90 different tests and aims to discover mental ability in memory, language comprehension, orientation in space and time, ability to find likenesses and differences between familiar objects, reasoning ability, resourcefulness and ingenuity, speed and richness of mental associations and ability to generalize from particulars. These ninety tests are so grouped as to be adapted to different mental ages.

One group consists of a set of mental tasks that may be performed by a normal six-year-old, another by a seven-year-old, a third by an eight-year-old and so on up to the superior adult. If a child works accurately the tasks for an eight-year-old he is said to have eight-year-old mentality; if those of a ten-year-old he has a ten year old mentality; if those of a twelve-year-old he has a mental age of twelve.

We sometimes find a youth of ten who performs the tasks of a thirteen-year-old. He is said to have a mental age of thirteen, a real age of ten and an IQ of 130, i. e., he is 30 per cent above the normal in mentality. On the other hand we sometimes find a ten-year-old who cannot perform the tasks set for a child above seven years, he thinks no better than a normal seven-year-old. His IQ is divided by 10-or 70, which means that he is 30 below the mental level of a normal ten-year-old. We find rare cases of junior high school pupils with a mental level of college students and on the other hand we may find some who have gotten into college with only the mentality of grammar grade children.

The following are illustrations of some of the tests for adults:

Test 1.

(a)	3	1	6	9
(b)	4	5	8	3	4
(c)	6	9	7	1	2	5
(d)	3	1	9	7	8	2	4
(e)	8	2	5	9	4	6	3	7

Have some one read the digits in series (a) at the rate of one digit per second. When he is through say the numbers in reverse order. Proceed with series (b), (c), etc. Ability to give series (c) in reverse shows good normal capacity in memory span for numbers. Success in (d) shows superior ability and in (e), exceptional ability.

Test 2.

Have some one read once, distinctly the paragraph below:

"Nearly fifteen thousand of the city's workers joined in the parade on September 7 and passed before two hundred thousand cheering spectators. There were workers of both sexes in the parade, though the men far outnumbered the women."

Now write the answers to the following quesctions:

1—What is said about the number of persons who marched in the parade?

2—Which sex was in the majority?

3—What did the people who looked at the parade do when it passed by?

4—How many people saw the parade?

5—On what date did the event described in the paragraph occur?

Four of the five questions correctly answered is an index of average adult mentality. To answer all of them indicates superior mentality and to answer only three shows mentality below the average.

Three Tests Sufficient.

About twenty tests like the three mentioned, enables an experienced clinical psychologist to determine when the subject tested is of normal, superior, or of inferior mentality.

The writer annually examines hundreds of university students by means of these mental tests. That the results are highly predictive is shown by the fact that the records in the registrar's office show that only 12 per cent of those making high scores in the mental tests fail in their academic work while 75 per cent of those making low scores in the mental tests fail. Scientific measurements in our public schools are equally predictive as to the educational career of pupils.

University Notes

Former Nebraskans will have an important part in the winter convention program of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, to be held in New York City this week. One of the sessions is held under the auspices of the committee on protective devices, whose chairman is Fred L. Hunt, a graduate of the university in 1902, now general manager of the Connecticut River Conservation company, and adviser for a number of New England utilities. Albert M. Candy, '09, will give a paper in another session on "Arc Welded Structures and Bridges." Mr. Candy is an electrical engineer for the Westinghouse company at East Pittsburgh, Pa. At the engineering convention radio communication will be established with the Institution of Electrical Engineers in London, and the addresses given at each place will be heard by both audiences. Dean O. J. Ferguson of the college of engineering will attend.

Dean W. E. Sealock of the teachers college spoke before a meeting of students and teachers at Wymore Wednesday afternoon.

A. J. "Dad" Elliott, regional secretary of the student division, Y. M. C. A., spent the early part of the week in Lincoln, holding interviews and discussions with student leaders of the Y. M. C. A. concerning problems of campus religious life and other phases of college. He also spoke before a group of faculty men at the chamber of commerce Wednesday noon.

Zellner, described by Ray Ramsay of the University Players as America's outstanding characterist, will appear at the Temple theater Friday under the auspices of the Players. He will present in full costume sixteen characters of distinction, taken from life and literature, in rapid succession.

The new officers of the Lutheran Bible league are Clarence Dunklau of Arlington, Neb., president; Roland Wunderlick, Waco, vice-president; Ted Hartman, Louisville, secretary, and Leo Erck, Lincoln, treasurer. The league held its regular meeting for discussion of practical questions Wednesday evening, and held a Valentine party at the parish hall, Trinity Lutheran church, Friday.

Dr. R. J. Pool, chairman of the department of botany, spent the latter part of the week at the University of South Dakota, Tuscon, inspecting the biology department in behalf of Sigma Xi, national scientific fraternity.

Present Status of the Bryan Memorial Hospital Building Fund Campaign

The ultimate goal of the management is a hospital that will be adequate to meet all calls that are likely to be made upon it in the future. It is estimated that such an institution will cost at least $1,000,000 for buildings and equipment.

The total amount subscribed toward this million dollar goal prior to the beginning of the campaign now in progress was about $260,000. Of this amount the members of the board of trustees had contributed about $25,000.

The reason for the present campaign being made at this time is found in the fact that the present capacity is wholly inadequate to meet the calls for service coming to the hospital. During the month of January the average number of patients accommodated per day was larger than in any preceding month. The cast room and every bit of space available was used as bed room. Many applicants have had to be turned away because of the limited bed capacity. Many who would have availed themselves of this service have gone elsewhere because their physicians knew they could not be accommodated in Bryan Memorial.

The purpose of the present campaign, having for its object the addition of $350,000 to the building fund, is to provide such room as is now needed and as will probably meet the needs of the near future. It is the expectation that from this time on there will be a steady and continuous growth in the physical facilities, over a period of years, buildings being added as funds become available.

During the past month a partial canvass of the people of Lincoln, having for its object securing intermediate and small contributions, has been made. Approximately $38,000 has been subscribed by about 400 people. Outside of Lincoln, throughout south eastern Nebraska, a similar canvass is now under way. This has resulted in subscriptions totaling about $22,000. The total thus secured to date is somewhat over $61,000. This canvass is being continued, and will be completed about April first.

In addition to the smaller sums subscribed, there have been verbal promises by substantial citizens of Lincoln of generous gifts, $25,000 or more from each of these, which with the smaller and intermediate subscriptions still to be secured will probably cover Lincoln's half of the $350,000 now being sought.

The time fixed for the payment of subscriptions covers the years 1928 and 1929. It is expected that the large gifts assured by verbal promises will materialize within that period.

The task remaining to the people of Lincoln is to complete the canvass for the smaller and intermediate gifts. To this end a conference of substantial citizens is being arranged for and will be announced in the near future.

There is need of the help of every citizen of Lincoln who can contribute anything in money, payable within the two years, or who can give a day or part of a day to the arduous work of completing this canvass.

HE WHO HELPS HIMSELF.

Editor W. F. Cramb, of The Fairbury Journal, might be forgiven for his pessimistic view of agriculture if he were a newcomer to this state. But Mr. Cramb has lived in Nebraska many years, and his memory extends back to those lean years of the early nineties, when this state had little more than emerged from its infancy.

Mr. Cramb knows something of the discouragements and hardships which were encountered then. His recollections will carry him back to 1896, when nature smiled in her most gracious mood, and the farmers produced 298,599,638 bushels of corn, or a little more than 8,000,000 bushels more than they raised in the remarkable crop season of 1927. For that crop raised in 1896, Nebraska received an average price of 13 cents a bushel, or, according to the compilation of the crop statistician of the Federal Department of Agriculture, $38,817,952. That same year Nebraska produced 19,390,602 bushels of wheat, worth $11,246,549, of which all but a million bushels was spring wheat, a crop but little produced in these later years, because it has been found through long experience that it was not particularly adapted to Nebraska climate. In 1896 Nebraska produced 11,383,020 bushels of potatoes, and got $2,845,755 for the total crop, less than a fourth of what the scientifically-produced commercial crop of 4,000,000 bushels less brings to the farmers. Nebraska produced 34,092,631 bushels of oats in 1896, for which she received 11 cents a bushel or $3,750,189. She produced 907,778 bushels of barley, worth $172,478 and 1,055,844 bushels of rye worth $232,286. The hay crop amounted to $3,250,006 tons, for which the farmers got $2.44 a ton, or $7,930,015.

That was the sum total of Nebraska crops in 1896, although climatic and soil conditions have rarely been more favorable than during that season. The total crop wealth produced upon the farm brought in slightly more than half of the amount realized from wheat in this state in 1927.

But Mr. Cramb is aggrieved. He wants the government to do something to help the farmer, who unbeknown to Mr. Cramb has been doing a very splendid job of helping himself. Mr. Cramb's indignation was aroused by an editorial which appeared in The Star, commenting upon an address given by Samuel McKelvie with reference to the improved condition of agriculture. He writes this letter:

Fairbury, Neb., Feb. 8.

To the editor: In your leading editorial Feb. 8, you praise ex-Gov. McKelvie for a speech he made in Kansas, in which Mr. McKelvie called attention to a county survey made by Prof. Walter Burr, "which showed that while the number of farms had decreased 144 in the 10-year period from 1909 to 1919, the value of the agricultural produce had increased from $3,000,000 to $7,000."

If your admiration of Mr. McKelvie is based on deductions made from such statements, you should be examined by an alienist.

The period from 1909 to 1919 includes the war period, 1919 being the year when agricultural prices reached their peak, while 1909 was before the war started in Europe. You well know, McKelvie well knows, Prof. Burr knows, if any of you know anything, that abnormal conditions prevailed and that an increase in farm produce valuations, measured in dollars during that period, that is comparing 1909 with 1919, means nothing except that the measuring stick had shrunken because of the war. The dollar didn't buy as much of anything.

Following 1919, prices began to go down for agricultural products and kept on going down, as all three of you men know. It is because other things on the market which rose with the shrinkage of the dollar during the war period, have not gone down, that the farmer complains.

And you and Mr. McKelvie, living in an agricultural state, making your living from agriculture, are trying to fool the farmer into believing it is all right and using such petifogging and misleading statements as shown above. Will you kindly publish this correction and explain why you approved of McKelvie's statement based on such misleading statistics.

W. F. CRAMB.

Mr. Cramb deals in the generalities, which has been the stock in trade of the McNary-Haugen advocates. He speaks of prices going down after 1919, a fact which everyone knows, and deplored, and remarks that they "kept on going down. It is because other things on the market which rose with the shrinkage of the dollar during the war period, have not gone down, that the farmer complains."

From 1900 to 1914, the outbreak of the war, the greatest return from a hay crop raised in Nebraska was $14,572,000. From 1921, when the most severe results of deflation were experienced to 1927, there has not been a hay crop worth less than $23,989,000 and in 1923 Nebraska got $38,719,000—or nearly three times the amount received in the fourteen years preceding the outbreak of the World war. From 1900 to 1914, Nebraska produced but one corn crop worth $100,000,000. That was in 1908 when corn netted $104,941,000. From 1921 to 1927, Nebraska has produced but one corn crop which enriched the farmers less than $100,000,000 and that was in 1921, when corn sold for an average price of 27 cents a bushel, and the total crop brought but $56,088,000. In 1922, Nebraska's corn was worth $105,792,000; in 1923 it brought $144,188,000 and in 1924, $184,985,000. The figures for 1925, 1926 and 1927 have not been prepared in statistical form but in at least two of these years, the value of the Nebraska corn crop exceeded $150,000,000.

The greatest return from wheat in any single year from 1900 to 1914 was $42,441,0000. In only one year since 1921, after deflation, has the wheat crop brought less and that situation was the result of a half crop in 1923 when Nebraska raised but 31,388,000 bushels of wheat and got $26,052,000 for the crop. In 1921 Nebraska wheat was worth $49,689,000; in 1922, $57,445,000; in 1924, $69,680,000. The 1927 crop was worth nearly $100,000,000.

There are and have been instances of a lack of parity between the prices of farm products and those of manufactured goods. The situation has not been so acute as has been pictured by Mr. Cramb and certainly nothing in the record justifies the conclusion farming is being reduced to the status of peasantry.

The fact is Nebraska agriculture is in a stronger position than it has ever been before.

Science has been applied to fortify it. Business methods now control it to a larger extent than ever before. Crops are diversified, so that failure in one line of endeavor does not spell disaster.

The sugar beet industry was unknown in Nebraska from 1900 to 1909. The commercial apple crop was of little value. Northwest Nebraska counties had not started to raise vast quantities of the best quality of potatoes, which command a premium upon the southern market. The alfalfa crop was not accorded recognition in the record book of Nebraska agriculture until 1911. Neither was there any attempt to secure figures on red clover until 1915. The poultry industry was in its infancy. Dairying, carried on largely, was ineffective because so many farmers' herds were made up of "boarders" who produced just enough cream to pay for their keep. In 1927 Nebraska produced 120,000,000 pounds of butterfat and butter—worth more than any grain crop raised in the state, with the exception of wheat and corn. And for the last five years the dairies of Nebraska have produced more wealth than any crop raised except corn.

Nebraska's salvation lies in the course which the farmers of this state had the good sense and the intelligence to adopt at the beginning of this deflation period. Farming, the same as industry and business, has not been a half-time occupation in these recent years. The farmer has utilized every day in productive effort. He has developed his sidelines to keep him occupied when the harvest of wheat and corn, and other crops, has not demanded his time. If corn brought more in the form of beef, he fed it to cattle. When pork was high he marketed his corn by feeding pigs. He built up his dairy herd. He expanded his poultry flocks. Without waiting for a bureaucratic government, with another huge army of officeholders to place another huge burden upon his back, he proceeded to help himself and he has done a darned good job of it. Agriculture as it is carried on in Nebraska today is infinitely more self-sustaining and competent than it has ever been before. No one, calmly and dispassionately surveying the facts, can arrive at any other conclusion.

FORT LINCOLN RETURNED TO DUTY.

When a battleship, or any other fighting unit of the navy becomes obsolete, the public recognizes that is a part of the wastage of armament. The ship is consigned to the scrap heap and another takes its place.

Likewise when airplanes or ordnance no longer represent the latest innovations and improvements in modern warfare, they become junk and the public purse is drawn upon to replace them. That explains the terrific burden of preparedness. None of the ships which were America's pride in the Spanish-American war in 1898 remain today. The most efficient ordnance developed toward the close of the World war, including the famous French artillery pieces, and the airplanes with which the issue of the mastery of the air was settled, have been "junked."

It does not end there.

A remarkable case has just come to light in the reoccupation of old Fort Lincoln in North Dakota. Despite its glamorous history, its splendid buildings of brick, with modern conveniences and comforts equal to any found in any army barracks, it has not been permanently occupied by troops since 1913 when the Fourteenth infantry, which had been stationed there was moved to Fort George Wright in Washington. The reason is that it was not considered of sufficient military importance to warrant stationing troops there. The only reason it is being reoccupied is that its housing facilities are so vastly superior to some of those which provide quarters for the regulars.

It was from old Fort Lincoln that General George A. Custer set forth upon his ill-fated expedition in 1876. Located in the heart of the Indian country, it had served as a base for many forays against the Indians when they became warlike. The first construction of Fort Lincoln started in 1872, under the instruction that the fort was to be built at the Northern Pacific crossing of the Missouri river. The surrounding country had not been opened for settlement and the primary purpose was for the purpose of protecting the railroad and the construction gangs engaged there. The name of the fort was changed to Lincoln in 1872, and it was continuously occupied until 1899 when the buildings were rebuilt.

MR. COOLIDGE'S FLOUR SACK PAJAMAS.

Mr. Coolidge's heart is filled to overflowing, no doubt, as a result of that gift of a pair of pajamas made from flour sacks.

The women's society of the Millard avenue Presbyterian church picked this novel means of expressing its gratitude for the economical administration of national affairs, in which Mr. Coolidge has been the guiding spirit. What could be more appropriate than a pair of pajamas made from flour sacks? Shades of pioneer days! But why spoil them with lavender frogs and buttons?

No doubt Mr. Coolidge will appreciate the gift and accept it in the spirit in which it was sent but it would seem the women, the dear ladies of the Millard church are asking a bit too much when they suggest they hope the president "will choose to wear 'em." Now flour sack pajamas may represent a truly commendable idea when it comes to economy, but when it comes to putting the coarse material next to the skin, that is carrying economy to the extreme. Of course in the privacy of his bedroom, Mr. Coolidge would be free to scratch and chafe to his heart's content, but it does seem that the president has enough to irritate without making the nights hideous.

But the gift represents a gracious and thoughtful act, and there is some chance it may be put to a practical use. After the United States senate adopted the LaFollette resolution by overwhelming vote, expressing itself in favor of restricting the tenure of the president to eight years, the thought occurs that it might be well to condemn every member of the senate who voted in the affirmative to wear a pair of flour-sack pajamas for the rest of their lives.

A NEW CURRENCY ISSUE.

Towards the close of 1928 the American people may expect to receive the new and smaller paper currency which eventually will replace that which is now in circulation.

Probably no move in recent months so excellently illustrates the thought given to governmental economy than this decision to reduce the size of our paper currency, and to adopt a more durable paper for it. A paper bill is a paper bill in the eyes of the average individual—crisp and sparkling if it has just come from the printing presses ragged and faded if it has passed through a great many hands. The American people have become so accustomed to currency they never give thought to the length of its life. They know it is darned hard to get, and very easy to relinquish. Too many of us spend it before we get it, so that our acquaintance is of the most superficial and fleeting sort.

It costs the government a very considerable sum each year to print its currency. The processes involved are expensive, calling for the highest degree of artisanship in engraving and the greatest care in press work. The costs of material, particularly of paper, mount into large sums. By reducing the size of the currency, and by making it of paper stock which has greater permanency, the treasury expects to save approximately a million dollars annually.

The fact is many millions of dollars might be saved the taxpayers of this country if careful scrutiny was made of all the various agencies, and every economy device put into effect. The administrative branches, particularly in the treasury, have been operated most frugally. The legislative branch is still wasteful. In the single matter of franked material sent through the mails, in which both executive and legislative branches are gross offenders, a savings of many millions could be made.

Well, it's an even break. The husbands are beginning to learn how it feels to sit in the back seat and get an eyeful of ashes.

"Big Bill" "Ten Small." Possibly the long and short of the Chicago political situation.

Politics and Travel.

Houston dug its own ocean.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see as I prowl hither and thither. The wife and I had a fine visit in Havana, Cuba. It's the first time I had ever been there, although she had stopped there with out a retinue of children one time when they come around through the canal. It sure is a pretty place, one of the cleanest cities I ever saw. They have got some new chief of police or somebody and they are a nut on cleaning up and believe me they got the old town scrubbed and shining.

I will write you more about the Pan American Conference later, as they have only been there long enough now to get over their complimentary remarks, and will be calling each other by their right names as the thing gets hotter. Calvin made quite a hit down there. He didn't say nothing much only the usual pleasantries. But they like it. Of course when they held a clinic over the speech and took it apart, he had simply delivered a high school oration.

Havana is just packed with Americans. All seem to be having a good time. The balance wheel is not so much on this flying, so we had to come home by train, about four or five days and nights of it. It's a nice trip over on the boat from Havana to Key West, about six hours. Nice comfortable steamers. Then a drive around Key West, which is a pretty and unique little city. They have just opened up a highway along the Keys to Miami.

lorida is picking up fine. All the towns are building, and they have got rid of all the ones who only come there to speculate. All the smart ones have just charged a certain amount off to loss, and started the whole thing in on a sensible basis. All the real estate panics in the world can't take that away from it.

We come along the whole Gulf coast country. That's the coming country, the whole thing that lays along the gulf of Mexico, New Orleans is going great. If they will ever do anything on that flood relief, it will go stronger than ever. You know if we should happen to have anyther flood next spring and cause another catastrophe like last spring, just think what congress would have to answer for. Here it's been nine months and not a single shovel full of dirt moved to prevent another one.

Went on over through Houston who put their hand in what they thought was a prize convention grab bag and come out with the democratic one. Well, they seem to be all hopped up over it. You know they never had one before, and they are just as innocent about it. They don't know what they are like. I am glad they got it through. It will give some of these northern delegates a chance to get that old mossback idea out of their heads about the South being slow and behind the times.

It's a great thing for the South to have it down there, and it is especially a great thing for Texas. I have repeatedly said after being in each state of the Union for two consecutive years, that North Carolina has made the most progress in the last five years and Texas is next. It seems a surprise to people who don't travel around much to hear this. Perhaps they hadn't heard of anything that either one of these two had done. But I want to be impartial, and I want to fair, and that is what I absolutely believe. Course we got a lot of them that are humming. But like Oklahoma, and California, and Florida and a dozen others, they have been improving over a longer stretch of time. They have been great for quite a while. But North Carolina just looked like it popped up over night. They got everything. But Texas, that's not state, it's a dominion. Dan Moody's got the biggest range of any governor in the world, I reckon.

This Houston wanted an ocean and they didn't have one, so they just dug one. One man, Jessie Jones, just pulled out his check book when the towns were bidding on the convention nobody had given him any money, there had been no collection taken up before he left Houston) and wrote out his personal check for $200,000; and layed it on the barrel head, and I want to tell you those democrats pounced on it like a congressman on a Mellon's hard-earned savings. It takes a game guy in any man's town to do what Jones did. Most towns would have to have chamber of commerce speeches and luncheons and drives for a year to dig that up. But that's the way those babies down there do things. So go to see the town, even if you are not interested in the convention and the state has dozens of ones like it, not all as big, but they are believed they are, and they will all surprise you.

They say the railroads are going to cut off three hours, going east from California to Chicago. I don't know why they don't cut off 12 coming this way. There is not a road west of Chicago coming out here that couldn't take off a full night, or day. When they get these aeroplane lines going fine they will makes these railroad birds step out here like the trains do east of Chicago. You won't see 'em stopping at every little place. There is not a schedule out here that can't let a train be 3 hours behind and then make it up on one division. They do it all the time.

The Hickman trial run Tom Heflin off the front page out here. Hoover has just been declared the candidate of California. That means that Arizona will be against him. That's the state I got my vote from last time. I hope that delegate hasn't died. Hoover is talking about resigning. That shows right there he is not a politician. He seems to think you can't serve two masters.

Lowden is strong with the farmers, but the east is sorted scared of him. The east thinks if he was elected he would give the farmers relief, and if they ever got relief, they would hcarge 'em too much for their grub. Dawes is the baby that's just sittng back, listening to the sen..., but paying no attention to 'em at all. His mind is on Kansas City on a hot day. Curtis will be on the home grounds, and should Hoover and Dawes go into a huddle, that "Injun" is liable to come out of the scrimmage with the ball. But I still claim that if it looks like a tough race with Smith going to be nominated on the minorty side, that Calvin will be rushed from the side lines to save the game. At least Herst hasn't won my money yet.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

Why is it so hard to be good and so easy to be evil?

But is it? The highest goodness, which simply means the soul's perfect health, like that of the body, is always unconscious. The vigorous athlete in his twenties does not know he has a heart or lungs. They function with consummate ease in him, whereas in some of us they are as restless as the guilty conscience of a wrongdoer.

St. Francis did not find it difficult to give away all he owned, or tend lepers, or sleep in the open drenched to the skin and travel day and night footsore and exhausted to preach his evangel. The lover caught in the storm with his sweetheart needs no urging to shelter her in his cloak. It never occurs to any one possessed by a supreme affection that his ministries are hard. On the contrary, they are a constant joy, as every mother knows.

Fix your affections on things pure and noble and you will feel far less reluctance in practicing them. On the contrary, your cosmic instincts will delight in them.

The way of evil is a seductive path leading to bitterness and misery, with every successive stage apparently a merry journey, yet always attended by increasing doubt, disillusion and despair.

Saskatchewan, Canada.

I live in an extensive farming country where most of us work hard tilling the soil and take our religion seriously.

I have had several arguments lately with farmers as to whether it is a sin according to the Scriptures to thresh grain on the Lord's day when the weather is fair in order to prevent the harvest being ruined by rain or whether we should keep the day and let the grain get spoiled.

What is your opinion?

I know your answer will be read by thousands of interested farmers in this part of Canada.

The real issue here is one of conscience. The majority of men and women are prepared to uphold their convictions if by so doing they suffer no loss. The minority is prepared to uphold them cost what it may. It is the latter group which keeps the sacred fires burning and prevents life from becoming materialized.

The Lord's day provides a much needed opportunity for an impressive exhibition of reverence for a sacred institution. The twenty-four hours of that day are not different

HERE and THERE

(The New York Times.)

That Henry Ford has lost little in originality and flexibility with the passing of the years was evident when the pleasing, admirably machined successor of his almost extinct "flivver" was unveiled from the Atlantic to the Pacific. A man who had clung tenaciously for many years to a piece of mechanism which had become the butt of a thousand jokes would be expected to progress from it by slow steps. But Ford is a law unto himself.

And what an upheaval it proves to have been! More than 125,000 men are affected. Some 45,000 machines, valued at $45,000,000, are critically surveyed. Some of them are retained, some modified for the performance of new functions, some ruthlessly threw on the scrapheap. Devices unheard of are invented to one man's order. Machine-tool builders stand aghast at the working drawings and specifications that they receive. In less than a year a colossal factory—the greatest in the world — is completely transformed. Drop-hammers, forging presses, millers, grinders, welders pour in fro mall points of the compass precisely at the appointed hour.

This miracle is performed without friction and at an expense so small that it surpasses belief, considering the magnitude of the operations involved. Although he has for years been the greatest manufacturer in the world, although his equipment is worth $45,000,000, Ford has never annually discarded more than $250,000 worth of machinery. Even the complete readaption of his plant involved an expenditure which amounts to but $15,000,000 up to the present and which is not likely to reach $25,000,000 when he is ready to produce 10,000 of his new cars a day.

Ford stands apart, the most daring and romantic figure in contemporary industrial history. His independence of thought and action are unparalleled. He needs a new steam turbine and proceeds to build it himnelf. He will not borrow money Therefore he keeps the inconceivable sum of $400,000,000 on hand. That no one may dictate the price of raw materials to him, he erects his own mills for the making of steel, glass, cloth, leather, cement, and buys iron and coal mines and forests. Steamers that bear his name in Spencerian script on their funnels carry his automobiles to all parts of the world. Never before have so many industries been so admirably integrated.

Such is the simplicity and directness of Ford's thinking that industry has not yet accustomed itself to him. He creates a car which consists almost entirely of forgings of unprecedented quality and shape and which cannot be made by existing machinery. He simply orders his engineers to invent that machinery. He is everything in his own companies —general manager, chairman of the board, the board itself, a veritable Mussolini of industry, reasonable only to himself. A whole literature has been published on him and his methods. Yet he is still the enigma that he was nineteen years ago when he first startled the world with the beginnings of real mass production.

Famous Pets of Famous People

Sarah Bernhardt's Menagerie of Pets, Which Included Everything from Spiders to Lions.

The Tiger Cub Was Unregenerate.

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

Throughout her exciting career, the late Sarah Bernhardt was fond of pets of all sorts, ranging from spiders to lions. She was more than fond of them; in fact she was passionately devoted to them; particularly if they were ferocious animals.

As the height of her first glory it was reported all over Paris that she had a whole menagerie chained up in her flat, and that she had been compelled, by her neighbors' complaints, to move.

It is true that guests who came to her apartment at five o'clock for tea first perceived on crossing the threshold a huge dog which growled and sprang at them, but fortunately was restrained by a short chain. His conduct kept many people from further visits.

On entering the hall leading to the first reception room, the visitors met with another unpleasant surprise. A full sized monkey, tied to a chair, but able to move about, chattered at them and gnashed his teeth.

The drawing room contained two birdcages, a tank of goldfish and a roaming company of cats and dogs.

In later days, when she occupied a more commodious residence, she had panthers, lions, a wildcat, a pink monkey and a tiger cub.

All these, except the tiger cub, were tame and used to accompany her to the theater, remaining in her dressing room while she played.

The tiger cub was unregenerate. It terrorized her household. One day, when she took it to the theater, it nearly stopped the performance by tearing at the curtains.

It became too obstreperous, nipping the stage attendants with its sharp teeth. Someone surreptitiously destroyed it with poison.

Personally the pets of Sarah Bernhardt's childhood interest me more than those of her later years. When she was being educated in the Grandchamps convent at Versailles, she always carried about with her small cardboard boxes or cages that she had made herself. These contained crickets, lizards and death watches which she had caught herself; also she had imprisoned five spiders in a little wire cage made for her by Pere Larcher, the gardener.

"The lizards," said Bernhardt in later years, "nearly all had their tails broken. To see if they were eating, I used to lift the lid of the box a little. On seeing this the lizards rushed to the opening. I would shut the box quickly, when, crack! In a twinkling either at left or right there was nearly always a tail caught!"

At lessons, while one of the sisters explained a problem in arithmetic, the curly-headed Sarah sat sadly, a lizard's tail in her hand, wondering how she could fasten it on again! What a picture!

The spiders were the greatest favorites. The little girl admitted that cruelly she caught flies for them to feast upon. Often during recreation ten or twelve of her comrades would stand with her beside the cage, which had been placed on a bench, and watch the ugly creatures spinning webs.

If one of Sarah's school fellows happened to cut a finger, she would hurry to the unfortunate, proud and important.

"Come at once," she would say. "I have some fresh spider web and I will wrap your finger in it."

During a summer vacation in the mountains Sarah adopted seven young goats and wanted more, but her mother interfered. The child planned to take all seven to the convent.

"You are mad!" declared her mother. "Seven goats in a train and a carriage! Where could you put them? No, a hundred times no!"

She finally was allowed to take two of the kids, together with a

Probably no measure before Congress has caused more discussion than the McNary-Haugen bill, which passed the last Congress, was vetoed by the President and is now before this Congress. Yet, it is doubtful if any measure of general importance is so little understood by the public.

Mark Woods has given much time and study to the purpose, the preparation and set-up of the McNary-Haugen bill, and no one is better informed upon the measure than he.

Mr. Woods will broadcast from KFAB station, Lincoln, Monday night from 6 to 7 o'clock and explain the features of the bill; its intent, its application, its safeguards and the results of its operation. He will explain the meaning and the actual operation of the equalization fee, which is a point that comparatively few people understand.

Mr. Woods will show what the President's veto of the bill after it passed the last Congress cost the agricultural and business interests of Nebraska. He will discuss the importance of having a measure of this nature as a safeguard for agriculture.

American manufacturing, railroads, industry, banking, labor have all been safeguarded by federal laws passed by Congress. American agriculture is the greatest industry of all, yet it has not been adequately safeguarded in a similar manner.

It is Mr. Woods' belief that it is in the interests of the entire public—not the farmers alone—that a measure similar to the McNary-Haugen bill become a law, and it is because of his firm conviction of the fundamental importance of such a measure that he will broadcast over the radio from KFAB for an hour Monday evening at 6 o'clock sharp.

OPERA STARS TO SING OVER CHAIN

Charles Hackett and Miss Guilford on Atwater Kent Hour Tonight.

Charles Hackett, leading tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera company will broadcast the concert in the Atwater Kent hour, Sunday night, February 12, assisted by Nanette Guilford of the Metropolitan opera, and the Atwater Kent orchestra under the leadership of Robert Hood Bowers.

Miss Guilford, having made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera house on February 22, 1916, is considered the baby of the "Met." Born in Harlem, Miss Guilford has the distinction of being the only native born New Yorker at the local opera.

She made her stage debut with the Midnight Rounders then playing the Century Roof, but after only three weeks decided in favor of opera as against musical comedy, and after a year and a half of further study became a member of the opera company.

Hackett is a native of Worcester, Mass., where he sang with the high school glee club, later becoming a soloist at a Boston church. In 1911 he was singing in St. Thomas's church, New York City, when he decided to go to Italy for study. There he made his operatic debut.

Hackett has the distinction of being the first American tenor to sing at La Scala, in Milan, the Constanzi in Rome, the grand opera in Paris, the Liceo in Barcelona, the Reale in Madrid, the Colon in Buenos Aires, the Municipale in Rio de Janerio, and the Opera in Monte Carlo.

The concert will be broadcast through the National Broadcasting company and twenty-three associated stations at 9:15 p. m., eastern standard time. The tentative program follows:

Radio Digest

To Keep Test Clips on Wire.

The wire soldered to test clips usually breaks off. This may be prevented by soldering a short piece of bus wire to the under side of the clip. The wire is then tightly wrapped with friction tape, which helps to keep the insulation from fraying and also provides a better grip.

Low Loss Socket.

An excellent low loss socket can be made by taking an ordinary one and screwing it to a square piece of bakelite or hard rubber by means of small screws. The socket is then cut in quarters by means of a hacksaw. This socket will be found to be quite an improvement when used on very short wave lengths, as losses are cut down to a minimum. If the saw cuts are too wide care should be taken so that the tube is inserted the right way.

Output Filter.

An output filter is a device which provides an auxiliary path for the direct current to the power tube, which prevents it flowing in the windings of the speaker. It is so designed that the alteration or speech current goes through the speaker, where it is wanted. An output transformer performs the same function. The object is to prevent burning out the speaker winding and, what is more important, to eliminate this constant strain which impairs the quality and possible output of some types of speakers.

Vibration Due to Loudspeaker.

If "microphonic" noises are experienced in a set, a condition caused by mechanical vibrations jarring the elements of the tubes, try the loudspeaker as far from the set as the cord will reach. If that does not stop it, one of the tubes is microphonic. Shift the tubes to different sockets and pay particular attention to the detector. Another tube in the detector socket may cure the trouble. The best plan would be to get a new tube and by the process of elimination look for the microphonic tube. Keep the wires of the "B" eliminator away from the antenna and ground wires.

Battery Intelligence.

Batteries are the direct cause of many of the noises in a receiver. Run-down cells or poor contacts will cause much the same noise as static, which often gets the misplaced blame. Charge the "A" battery when it reads much below 1225. The "B" batteries should be replaced when they show 15 per cent. below their rated voltage. The top of the "A" battery should be kept clean, especially around the contacts. It is a good plan to scrub the top thoroughly with a stiff brush and water. Keep the cell covers on tightly to prevent any of the wash water from entering the cells. Unless special binding posts are provided, contact to the terminals should be made with heavy clips made for the purpose. When the battery is cleaned and the clips are in place, a coating of vaseline will effectually prevent corrosion. This will keep the battery clean. If the "A" battery is kept near the set, a glass baking dish under it will save the floor or rug from damage by acid leakage. The "B" batteries now on the market are a very satisfactory and economical source of high voltage. The large batteries, while more expensive at first are the most economical in the long run. Their longer life soon makes up for their greater initial cost. Keep the "B" batteries in a cool, dry place. Their life is greatly reduced when they are exposed to the sun or when placed near a stove or radiator. Never use one dead battery along with fresh ones, as this will lessen the life of the better batteries. The "A" and "B" batteries are the power plants of the set. Keep them in good condition at all times.

Radiograms.

Walter Damrosch, guest conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, plans to teach music to millions of school children by radio.

Every room in the Robert Morris Hotel, in Philadelphia, Pa., is equipped with radio and guests can select for their enjoyment the program from three big broadcasting chains at any hour of the day or night.

A thief stole a fine radio set recently from H. C. Hanson, of Evanston, Ill. Before leaving his home for the evening, he turned on the receiver full blast to make burglars think people were in the house, but the stunt did not work.

GRINNELL MEN'S GLEE CLUB WILL SING OVER WHO

A feature of the WHO broadcast for the afternoon of Sunday, February 12 will be the presentation of the men's glee club of Grinnell college in a half-hour of ensemble singing. This program will be on the air from 5:30 until 6:00 o'clock. Among the oldest of such musical organizations, the Grinnell glee club is well known to all Iowans. Annual tours have taken the Grinnell singers to a majority of the state's cities and towns, and recognition of their ability is state-wide. Two years ago, the Grinnell glee club won first place in the National Intercollegiate Glee club competition, held in Chicago.

The Wave Trap.

The wave trap affects principally the reception of station on or near the wave length of the offending station to which it is tuned. It has little effect on stations differing by, say, 50 meters from the one to which it is tuned. There will be a slight difference in the setting of the antenna stage tuning condenser.

For the Notebook.

Examine the ground connection if the set is inclined to oscillate or whistle.

Storage batteries of the lead plate type maintain their voltage very well until almost completely discharged.

Broad tuning is some times caused by the antenna being too long. A shorter wire may overcome the annoyance.

A hydrometer is a convenient instrument for testing the condition of charge in a storage battery. It is inexpensive.

All kinds of interference can be created by the neighbor who operates a single circuit regenerative receiver from an antenna strung parallel to the one next door.

With the removal of the rafters and timbers, the dome of the capitol rotunda is now visible to those who make their way into the new portion of the structure. The mosaic in brilliant colors represents the virtues by which human society is upheld, the civic virtues and the secred virtues, all within a great wheel.

GOOD FURNITURE LINCOLN

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Talking about the players appearing in roles entirely different from those they have been taking and something wholly unsuited for them, we should like to mention Lois Wilson in "The Great Gatsby"

Miss Wilson has always been the really nice girl of the screen. We never could imagine her doing anything wrong or taking the sort of part that would give her the appearance of a vamp. When we read that she had decided to step out of the nice girl type, bob her hair and act like a Theda Bara, we decided to watch the effect.

Well, Lois just simply can't get away with it any more than Mary Pickford can grow up. She tried so hard to be a real naughty girl that she overdid the part and didn't give a sincere portrayal of the part at all. We don't want another type of Lois Wilson, we want the old fashioned, lovely sweet girl that she has always been on the screen, and that we are sure she is in real life.

And we certainly agree with the Rattler about Richard Dix. He seemed to be forcing himself to act like a Spanish dandy when he wanted to act like a regular fellow.

We certainly hope that Clara Bow doesn't decide to settle down into a sweet young thing. She was meant to be a flapper as much as Charlie Chaplin as cut out for a comedian and not for a tragedian, as we've heard he wants to appear.

If John Gilbert ever loses his devil-may-care look, he will no longer be a favorite of mine. And Ramon Novarro doesn't need to try for Valentino's roles if he wants to continue to please us. We like them for what they appear to be on the screen and in the roles in which we have grown accustomed to seeing them play.

Hope this doesn't find the waste basket, but I couldn't blame you if it did, when I only come to complain. Sincerely, A CRITIC.

Dear Movie Editor—I have a daughter who is considered a very talented pianist and dancer for one of her age. I have heard that there might be a good opening for her on a vaudeville stage from a friend of mine who resides in Los Angeles. She tells me that there are many vaudeville houses there and that one company, Fanchon and Marco, I think she said the name was, takes children of all sizes for their prologues at picture show houses.

This friend suggests that I take my little girl to California and let her have a chance to go on the stage. I had intended spending the summer there, anyhow, thinking that she might have a chance to get into the movies. While she is not particular what one would call a beautiful child, she has a very bright smile and winning ways about her so I think she would film well. Will you please tell me what you think about it? Woud you advise me to try for thee movies, and if so what would be my way of going about it? Or do you think she might have a better chance in vaudeville? I am not exactly in favor of a theatrical career for her, but still I think people are changing their views of the stage and I want to do what would be the best for her.

How would one go about getting her on the vaudeville stage? Or is that out of your line?

Any information that you might give me about this would be very much appreciated by a

FOND MOTHER.

You didn't give me the age of your daughter, but I should judge that she is quite a young child from the nature of your letter. If she is under eight, you would find it very difficult to get her in vaudeville because of the strict enforcement of the child labor law in California. You would have to get a permit anyhow, if she were between 8 and 14, but there is scarcely a chance of getting one if she is under 8.

The children in the movies are only allowed to work a certain number of hours a day, and must go to the schools provided on the lot for them for a certain length of time each day.

If you are not particular as to whether she makes much money or not, and if you have plenty of patience and time, you might register her at the Central Casting bureau in Los Angeles and she would no doubt have an opportunity to appear once or twice during the summer if there happened to be many pictures made requiring child "extras."

It's not easy for anybody to break into the movies, even a child regardless of the one in a hundred instances that you might hear of in which a player becomes a star overnight.

I know of a publicity man who took an unusually attractive little girl to Hollywood from New York, a child of one of their friends, hoping to get her a nice start in motion pictures. He pulled all of the wires that he could and kept her there for nearly a year without getting her any nice parts at all, and finally send her back home.

Fanchon and Marco usually send out a Kiddie Revue during the summer, and occasionally they use talented children in their prologue during the winter. They are always on the lookout for new talent, but do not encourage children because of the difficulties they encounter in some cities with the Child Labor commissiioners.

You perhaps read where Babe Ruth was called on the mat a couple of times while he was making his vaudeville tour in California. During the course of his act he invited the children to go up on the stage and receive autographed balls from him. It was held in a few cities, that he was using the children in his act, regardless of the fact that the youngsters were all more than eager to walk up on the stage and receive a ball from the hands of their idol, the "Swat King."

If you are going to California, it would do no harm to take your daughter for a try-out for Fanchon and Marco, or any of the other vaudeville circuits. They usually have some special day every week when they give try-outs at the afternoon picture show. You could learn the day and the show from their office after you got there. You would probably have a better chance if you booked for the day, although anybody can go and wait their turn to try-out. If they like you, they tell you so and arrange for a contract. If there are any suggestions they can make whereby you can improve your act, they are glad to advise you whether they are interested themselves or not.

I would advise you to go early if your child is under fourteen so that you may be able to get her in for work during the summer, otherwise you would have a very slim chance of getting her on.

I suppose you realize that it's not a particularly attractive life for a child. It means three shows a day, seven days a week usually, with uncertain hours for eating and sleeping. I don't know just what the compensation is, but I suppose if you got on at all she would make enough for her own expenses, and possibly yours if she is so young that you would have to travel with her.

I'd be interested in hearing the result of your venture, if you should decide to undertake it.

Dear Movie Editor— Will you please tell me who took the part of Anthony in "Hula?" I really thought he was too old for Clara, but he was good looking nevertheless. Is he married?

I think George K. Arthur and Karl Dane are one of the best comedy teams we have. I like them even better than Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton. What are they working on now? Didn't George play in "The Gingham Girl?" Will you please tell me anything you may know about him?

Is Theodore Roberts still living? I haven't seen nor heard anything about him for ever so long. I know he was sik for a while,c and I thought maybe he might have died and I didn't hear about it.

I miss him so much, because he was always a great favorite of mine. Charles Ogle is another that I never see any more and I wonder if you know what hase become of him.

Thanking you in advance for any information you may give me, I remain DIGNIFIED.

Clive Brook was the hero of "Hula." He really isn't so old. He was born in 1891. Yes, he's married and has two children.

"Detectives" is the title of the next comedy in which Karl Dane and George K. Arthur will appear. George took the role of John Cousins in "The Gingham Girl."

He was born in England and was quite well known as a Shakesperean player before coming to America. His first work on the screen was as "Lem" in "Hollywood" which James Cruze directed. He also took the part of "The Boy" in "The Salvation Hunters' which resulted in a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer."

He played with Marion Davies in "Lights of Old Broadway," and appeared as "Madam Lucy" with Colleen More in "Irene."

Mr. Arthur is married and has a baby. He is interested in several Hollywood stores, so you see he is a business man as well as an actor.

Mr. Roberts is very much alive. He's appearing in a vaudeville skit over the Orpheum circuit in California at present.

Charles Ogle is living in Long Beach where he spends his time in playing horseshoe. He isn't in overly good health and doesn't work before the camera except in rare instances when a particular role happens to appeal to him.

Dear Movie Editor: I'm so busy most of the time that I don't get to see half the pictures I'd like to see, nor write to you nearly as often as I'd like to write. After a hard day at home with a sick and fussy child, I know of no greater joy than to go to a movie and forget the cares of the world for a couple of hours.

The first minute I have to sit down on Sunday after finishing the dinner dishes and getting the youngsters off to bed for their naps, I always sit down and turn to the "Answers to Movie Fans" in The Star. I'm sure you don't realize the joy I get from your department.

Of course I have my favorites among the stars as have all of the rest of the fans. Ben Lyon is one of them and I wish you would please tell me the color of his eyes and hair and whether or not he is married. Also, what is his next picture? I think he is good looking and is as much of an actor and more than some of these foreign players we make so much fuss over.

William Haines is another comparatively new player whom I predict will have a big future. He is the typical American boy type like Lloyd Hughes and Ben Lyon, whom you would expect to meet on the street most any day of the week. Please tell me his age, height and color of hair and eyes. Is he married.

I hope you won't think I'm like a school girl because I ask such intimate questions concerning the stars, but I enjoy them so much more, and feel better acquainted with them when I know a little something about them.

I saw a picture a number of years ago that I liked very much but can't remember who starred in it, Reginald Denny or Wallace Reid. The picture was "Excuse My Dust," and the boys both play in that kind of picture. I think it was before Wallace died that I saw it, so it may have been him.

My young son is demanding to be taken up, so there will be no more writing to the Movie Editor today, I fear. With many thanks for your kindness in answering my many questions, I remain A FAN.

A few years ago the movies were considered a novelty and entertainment for the younger generation, but many of the grownups scorned them as a very unprofitable way of spending an afternoon or evening. It has been a pleasure to notice the gradual change in public opinion until now the whole family can go together and enjoy a good laugh or see an inspiring theme that lifts them out of their humdrum existence for the time being.

There has been, and no doubt always will be, a great amount of criticism concerning motion pictures—they show too much sex stuff, or too much melodrama. They are vulgar. They show no intelligence and there are glaring defects in their settings, their directors and their players—but after all they grow. Of course they still have many faults, but in spite of these the majority of pictures are well worth seeing.

Motion picture players are pictured as living base and dissipated lives, but the majority of them are too much in earnest to have time for much dissipation. They work hard and bend every effort toward getting the big "break" and then keeping it. There's too much keen competition in the field for a player to take many chances on getting glaring headlines in the paper and wrinkles in his brow.

Ben Lyon has dark hair and blue eyes. He's still single, but his name has long been linked with that of Marilyn Miller. Watch for him in "Hell's Angels." James Hall plays with him, and also Greta Nissen. It's another airplane story.

William is sort of the type that every mother hopes her son will grow to be. He is twenty-eight—started the year right by having a birthday. William is six feet tall and has brown hair and eyes. He's never yet been to the altar.

Wallace Reid starred in "Excuse My Dust."

Dear Movie Editor—My chum and I were discussing the Talmadge girls the other day and she insists that Norma is close to forty and I am sure that she is nearer thirty than forty. Which of us is right?

Are Irene and Lillian Rich sisters?

How old are Vera Reynolds and Vilma Banky? Are they married and if so to whom?

Hoping to see my answer soon, I remain MARY.

Pick up the money, Mary. It's yours. Norma will be thirty-one in May.

There's no relationship whatsoever between Lillian and Irene.

Vera Reynolds is twenty-two. She has been married, but nobody knew about it until she sued for divorce. Vilma is Mrs. Rod La Rocque. She is twenty-five.

Dear Movie Editor—One of the best pictures that I've ever seen was called "The Monkey Talks." I wish you would tell me the name of the man who played the role of the monkey in the picture. Olive Borden was the heroine and she handled her role very capably. She's about as cute a little trick as I've seen on the screen to date.

And one of Jack Gilbert's best pictures was "The Show." He is just the type for the role of the tough that he had in that picture. One thing we have to give Jack credit for, and that is he isn't afraid to play any kind of a part before the camera.

Who played opposite Jetta Goudal in "Fighting Love?"

Was it Mary Brian or Betty Bronson in "Stepping Along?" I always do get the two mixed up. They look a great deal alike, I think.

I've written before, so I know that my letter will appear sooner or later. I'll be watching for it until it does appear, so if you have new fans on the list, it's all O. K. with me if you let this slide for a couple of weeks. ALBERT A.

Thanks for the time allowed, Albert.

Jacques Lerner was the talking monkey who gave such a sincere performance in "The Monkey Talks." Mr. Lerner played the same role on the stage in New York and Paris.

Victor Varconi in "Fighting Love" and also Henry B. Walthall.

That was Mary Brian in "Stepping Along."

Working Overtime—Norma Shearer has been working overtime trying to complete her latest starring vehicle so she would be able to sail February 11 on a belated honeymoon trip with her husband, Irving G. Thalberg. Miss Shearer's picture, "The Actress" is based on the stage play, "Trelawney of the Wells."

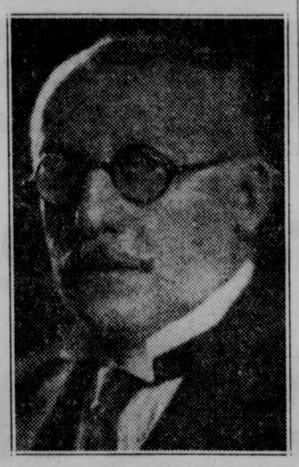
To be really American does not mean that music must be made of negro or Indian themes or in the negro or Indian idioms nor does it mean that its composer must set himself out to write something essentially American. As Maurice Ravell pointed out recently, the American people, although they come from every country in the world, have developed something in their mode and manner of life, and in fact in everything about them that is perfectly individual and is recognizable anywhere as American, and it may be assumed to be a fact that American music will in time develop itself into something, which although it is neither Indian or negro, will be perfectly distinctive and everywhere recognizable as American music.

Gotterdammerung and Meistersinger now have a serious rival. Eugene O'Neill's forthcoming play, "Interlude," will take between six and seven hours to perform. It will start late in the afternoon and there will be a long pause to enable the audience to go to dinner. The plan recalls the original Parisfal performances at the Metropolitan. In that case, however, some of the diners forgot to return to the performance.

TO GIVE PROGRAM AT CONVENTION



Louis Victor Saar, who has won international fame as a pianist, a composer, a musical theorist and a teacher, will give a program of his own works at the Nebraska Music Teachers' association conven to be held in Omaha March 6, 7 and 8. Mr. Saar has taken morep rizes for compositions than any other musician in the land and is well known for his choral and string ensembles for the voice.

—In, Out and Around Broadway

By BRADLEY KELLY

"Jimmy" Walker Kids Harry Lauder.

Harry Lauder and the ever-witty Mayor Walker shared fun honors at the annual Old-Timers' Night at the New York newspaper club. The popular Scot, now appearing at the Knickerbocker theater on his "fifth" farewell tour, sang a brand new song of his own composition. For many years, explained Harry, a book entitled "Flowers of Heather" had "kicked about" his library. Thinking it a better song title than book title the eminent bard composed a song and called it "Flowers of Heather." It should prove a popular number on his cross-country tour.

But the canny Scot who kept the gathered journalists in a constant uproar of laughter was not allowed to escape unscathed. "Jimmy" Walker the next speaker, in fine mettle, began his remarks with—"Well our dear friend Harry left the platform but—that's all he did leave."

Cows Come Home to Broadway.

Strangely enough New York, claiming to be the world's greatest city, is not without its "farms." Within the limits of Greater New York there are 60,000 cows grazing peaceful in limited pastures. A few loll on the upper terraces of skyscrapers. On lower Broadway the milk business is a regular industry. Thousands of cows are housed in abandoned loft building. The milk is sold locally until the animals become "citified" and "milked out" when they are sent to the slaughter house.

And speaking of New York "farms"—on the lower West Side facing the Hudson river piers is a wide paved space several blocks long. It is called "The Farm" and was the scene of Gene Tunney's boyhood battles.

What Happens When Actress Goes to Jail.

Broadway play managers seldom leap to fame overnight. Now and then it does happen. C. Wm. Morganstern, who is presenting the new comedy drama "57 Bowery" at Wallack's theater, is one of the lucky ones. He made his Broadway reputation as manager of Mae West and her naughty drama "Sex" when that "masterpiece" came into profit-bearing collision with the law.

But Morganstern was not the only one to benefit when the stern arm of the law reached out to clutch "Sex" and its then little-known star to carry her off to jail and—national fame. This writer reaped some "glory" as well. This is how it happened:

"Get an interview with an actress—a foreign one!" The Sunday editor was speaking. I found they were scarce on Broadway.

I phoned a knowing friend. "Tell me an English actress to interview."

"Mae West," he suggested. The name conveyed nothing to me. Did he mean Rebecca West, the novelist? "No, Mae West, starring in 'Sex.'" His voice had the ring of authority.

It was 7:30 p. m. in Daly's theater. The manager scanned my card. He seemed impressed. "Hey, Mike, take this guy up to see Miss West!" Foreigners are easy to see, I concluded as I followed the husky "Mike" through the scattered "laborers" of a loudly-wailing jazz band practicing back-stage.

A bright blonde, seeming round and rather plump in her red dressing gown greeted me in the "star's room" with an embarrassed smile. No English blood here! I must be wrong! Tact was in order.

"Were you born in England, Miss West?" I ventured.

"England? Why no—Brooklyn!" Staggered and "stuck"—I resolved to see it through. But the editor was not so game. His howls of rage shook the shop. Worse luck, the interview with the unknown star of "Sex" had to be run. It was too late to get another. I pictured myself out of a job.

Then came the law on the wings of luck. "Sex" was raided and closed by the police. Mae West went to jail and national fame while my interview brought "glory" and even the editor's praise.

Manhattan Aisles.

"Strange Interlude," Eugene O'Neill's new play, continues to stir up discussion by its two unique features for Broadway playgoers—the 5 o'clock curtain and the whispered "asides" or spoken thoughts, as well as its penetrating "O'Neill" study of an erring New England woman. The early opening splits the audience into those who hurry home to dress in the eight to nine intermission and those who dine in daytime dress in nearby restaurants. Otto Kahn and Max Reinhardt set the precedent for the former class.

Lynn Fontaine as Nina Leeds gives a superb performance. Brooding over the death of her betrothed, she becomes a promiscuous martyr of virtue to war-maimed veterans before marrying a weakling pal of her dead lover. Insanity in her husband's family dashes her hope of happiness in a child, but a "eugenic" baby by a surreptitious "scientist" lover solves the problem. Sam Evans, Nina's husband, believing himself the father, becomees proud and prosperous, while Nina and the "scientist" father become hopelessly involved in love. In the last of the nine sets after Sam has died, the child, now grown, flies away in his airplane—he is the embodiment of Nina's first lover—the "scientist" lover leaves for distant parts and Nina, still beautiful even in old age, marries Marsden, a child-hood friend and feelingless writer.

In "Strange Interlude" the Theater Guild has lavished a splendid production worthy of O'Neill's stupendous undertaking of character flagellation. As the curtain descends at 11 o'clock, interest in the play is still intense—not a seat has been vacated. As the fourth season success "Porgy," "Marco Millions" and "Doctor's Dilemma," the other Guild offerings—"Strange Interlude" is a fitting monument to the amazing growth of this organization. Starting out in 1919 with 135 members, $24 cash and a play that failed—"Bonds of Interest"—the Guild now numbers over 25,000 subscribers.

"Salvation," by Sydney Howard and Charles MacArthur with Pauline Lord, is a "revivalist" play. Helen Hayes continues to pack the Maxine Elliott theater with her incomparable portrayal of Norma Besant—"Coquette"—the drama of the south where the old and new clash with tragic results . . . With no Barrymores now on Broadway one may still find the "whole family"—except Lionel—portrayed in "The Royal Family" by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman.

Another family play is "The Queen's Husband" by Robert E. Sherwood. Marie of Rumania, her own royal family and her majesty's late visit to this country are suggested. On the screen Gloria Swanson at the Rivoli scores success with "Sadie Thompson."

Screen Siftings

Stars Again Together—Emil Jannings and Ernst Lubitsch, who with Pola Negri, won world-wide fame in their first picture together, "Passion," ten years ago, are to be reunited in Mr. Jannings' next feature, "The Patriot." The story was taken from the European stage sensation and adapted to the screen by Hans Kraly, who has worked with Lubitsch on several productions. Three carloads of costumes and properties have been brought from Europe for the picture. Florence Vidor has been cast as the Countess Ostermann, while Lewis Stone plays the second role of importance to that of Jannings as Pahlin.

Now a Citizen—Theodore Kosloff, the Russian dancer and fim actor, has received his final citizenship papers which make him a citizen of the United States.

Boles Selected—John Boles has been selected to play opposite Leatrice Joy in her next Cecil B. De Mille picture, "Man Made Woman." Paul Stine will handle the megaphone. Mr. Boles became prominent as a film player as leading man to Gloria Swanson in "Sandra." He's a recruit from the speaking stage.

Sign Horton— And now Warner Brothers have signed Edward Everett Horton to be co-featured with Lois Wilson in the Vitaphone playlet, "Information." Mr. Horton is a favorite on the stage as well as on the screen and has a remarkable speaking voice. Bryan Foy will direct "Information" from a story written by Hugh Herbert.

Rumors Wrong—Ramon Novarro is neither going into a monastery, nor on a concert tour as has been rumored so many times. According to an announcement from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Ramon has attached his signature to a document which will make him an M-G-M star exclusively for some time to come. Mr. Novarro is spending much of his present time aboard a ship on the Pacific where scenes for his latest picture, "China Bound" are being shot.

On Way Home—Vilma Banky has already started to New York, the first lap on her journey to Budapest, Hungary, to visit her mother. Miss Banky is making the trip alone, because her husband, Rod LaRocque, is right in the midst of his new De Mille picture, "The Ticket Chopper."

Cross-eyed Boy Wanted— With 25,000 extras listed, The Central Casting Bureau in Hollywood was unable to fill the request of Mervyn Le Roy, First National Director for a cross-eyed boy of high school or college age, who knew a little something about acting. Mr. Le Roy wanted such a chap for "Goofy," one of Harold's high school friends in the screen version of "Harold Teen."

Fickle— Clara Bow is a fickle young lady when it comes to leading men. She has a new one for nearly every picture. Lane Chandler is playing opposite her in her "Red Hair," and as soon as work is completed on it, she expects to start work on "Ladies of the Mob," with Richard Arlen as the hero. The story is of the metropolitan gang life, from the woman's side.

Everyday Questions

in themselves from those of any other on the calendar. But in setting them apart for rest and worship we manifest our belief in the eternal things which the day commemorates.

Pleasure, business, utility, pecuniary benefit and personal advantage should be subordinated to that belief. The very nature of the case insists that it has the prior claim.

Therefore the farmer who observes the Lord's day according to New Testament teaching while his crops spoil in the field deserves our respect and our sympathy. It is better for him to have little and a clear conscience than to have much and a clouded conscience. On the other hand, the farmer who is equally convinced that his crops must be gathered in on the Lord's day in order that he may avoid bankruptcy and the people be fed is entitled to consideration. It is a matter for your personal decision, in the light of the reasons discussed.

New York City.

I have been married a year and a half and we have a four-months-old baby. Prior to the arrival of our child my wife and I led a very happy and peaceful life, but since the child was born my mother-in-law has taken up headquarters in our home and has even influenced my wife to say that her mother's suggestions with regard to the child would be taken before mine.

I have been a loyal companion to my wife and provided all the money she wants, but this mother-in-law situation has got me worried. How shall I handle it? The wife is somewhat poorly in health and I do not want to upset her or possibly the baby by any vigorous passage at arms with my mother-in-law, yet I feel that the difficulty has got to be faced and some sort of an ultimatum delivered. What would you do?

First, take your wife into your confidence, relate the issue to her as you state it to me and then tell her that your mother-in-law must go. As much as lies in you live peaceably with the lady, but see to it that you live apart.

The domestic happiness you have already enjoyed is your inalienable right, and your judgment, not the grandmother's upon what is best for your child should prevail. You and the mother share parental responsibility for the child's future and, therefore, to you jointly and solely belongs parental control.

Say this and what else is germinal to it calmly and dispassionately. Show its rightness and reasonableness. But say it now and stick to it hereafter or worse things than temporary inconvenience will ensue.

Zion Congregational Church To Be Dedicated.

Formal opening and dedication of the new Zion Congregational church, Ninth and D streets, will take place at services beginning at 10 o'clock Sunday mornnig. The public is invited. Services will be held at 10, 2 and 7 o'clock.

The dedication will be conducted by Rev. G. J. Schmidt, pastor of the church. Rev. H. Obenhaus of Chicago, will deliver the address in German, and Dr. W. Tyler, superintendent of Congregational churches in Nebraska, will speak in English.

Rev. J. O. Thiede, president of Redfield college, Redfield, S. D., will speak in German in the afternoon and Rev. Irvin Inglis, pastor of Vine Congregational church, president of the Lincoln Ministerial Union, will deliver the English address.

Rev. John Hoezler of Denver, Col., general missionary of Congregational churches will speak in German at the evening services. Rev. Benjamin F. Wyland, pastor of First Plymouth Congregational church of Lincoln will deliver the English address.

In addition to the regular choir of forty voices a special choir of one hundred will sing from the cantatas, "Zion and the Messiah," under the direction of August Heinz who has led the choir for the past twenty-five years.

Zion church was founded in 1900 by Rev. M. E. Eversz of Chicago. Rev. C. E. Osthoff was the first pastor. Succeeding pastors were Rev. S. H. Schwab, Rev. G. F. Grove, Rev. George Graff, Rev. C. A. Dettmers and finally, Rev. G. J. Schmidt.

Before coming to Lincoln in 1921 Rev. Schmidt was pastor at Fort Collins, Col., for nine years.

Ground was broken for the new church in the summer of 1927, following a financial campaign by the congregation. Since last October the basement has been used for Sunday school and services. The main auditorium will be used for the first time today. The new structure is of Gothic architecture and has a seating capacity of nearly 1,200.

REV. G. J. SCHMIDT.
Pastor of church for more than six years who will have charge of the dedication Sunday morning.

blackbird a mountaineer had given her.

The goats figured in many a subsequent romp in which her comrades shared.

When womanhood and the development of her artistic career had brought Bernhardt to the height of the temperamental extravagances which her childhood had promised, she could, on occasion, be cruel to animals. But her repentence was quick.

One day she found a stray dog in her dressing room, sniffing at a bottle of smelling salts which it apparently had overturned.

Suddenly angry, Bernhardt dropped the poor animal out of the window and upon a narrow ledge below, from which, if it had made the slightest move, it would have fallen four stories to the ground.

The actress' anger evaporated as quickly as it had come, to be succeeded by shame and chagrin. A few moments later shouts brought attendants to the dressing room. All that could be seen of Bernhardt were her feet and the calves of her legs, to which her maid was clinging desparately. The divine Sarah was hanging head downward outside, grasping for the dumb beast whose life she had endangered and for whom she was now, characteristically, endangering her own.

She was dragged up. Having saved the dog, she took it home, overwhelmed it with kindness and kept it until it died of old age many years after.
